THIRTIETH ANNIVERSARY.

THE AMERICAN HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY held its Thirtieth Anniversary in the Broadway Tabernacle, New York, on Wednesday evening, May 7th, 1856.

Hon. WILLIAM JESSUP, LL. D., one of the Vice-Presidents, occupied the chair, and the exercises were opened with prayer by Rev. Joel Hawes, D. D., of Hartford, Ct.

The Treasurer's Report was read by Mr. William C. Gilman, Recording Secretary.

An Abstract of the Annual Report of the Executive Committee was presented by Rev. Milton Badger, D. D., one of the Secretaries.

On motion of Rev. Benjamin Tappan, D. D., of Augusta, Maine, seconded by Rev. Isaac R. Worcester, of West Newton, Mass.,

Resolved, That the Reports now presented be adopted, and published under the direction of the Executive Committee.

On motion of Rev. Frederick G. Clark, of New York, sec onded by Rev. Benjamin Labaree, D. D., President of Middlebury College, Vt.,

Resolved, That the principle of personal responsibility to Christ, as pervading all departments of the work, is our main reliance for the successful prosecution of Home Missions.

On motion of Rev. Horace James, of Worcester, Mass., seconded by Rev. Henry N. Day, Professor in Western Reserve College, Ohio,

Resolved, That the work of Home Missions, being substantially the work of the Gospel, furnishes a basis upon which the stateliest conservatism and the most thorough reform may coöperate in the unity of the Spirit and the bond of peace.

On motion of Rev. Lyman Whiting, of Portsmouth, N. II., seconded by Rev. Absalom Peters, D. D., of New York,

Resolved, That the Home which it is the care of this Society to supply with the Gospel, demands our regard, for its sublime extent and encouraging aspects.

The last three of the foregoing resolutions were advocated by their proposers, in animated and interesting addresses, which commanded the close attention of a large and sympathizing audience. Appropriate hymns were sung, in pleasing and impressive style, by the excellent choir of the Tabernacle, under the direction of Mr. Francis H. Nash, the voices of the assembly joining in the harmony.

The exercises were closed with the benediction, pronounced by Rev. Samuel H. Cox, D. D., of Owego, N. Y., after which the Society proceeded to the election of officers for the ensuing year.

The following officers were then chosen:

THIRTIETH REPORT.

WE are assembled to celebrate the Thirtieth Anniversary of the American Home Missionary Society. One generation has gone, and another come, since its work began. How changed the field of its culture! How changed the laborers in its service, the patrons and friends who sustain it! Many of its founders a kind Providence has spared to us. But many others of them-more than one half of those who were present at its organization—have ceased from their labors and entered into their rest. There are names among them, which are embalmed in the affection and respect of the wise and the good, over all the land, and which will be in everlasting remembrance. Since our last Report was prepared, two of the Vice-Presidents of the Society—Rev. ROBERT H. BISHOP, D. D., and Rev. THOMAS A. MERRILL, D. D.—have departed this life. By their wise forecast, their catholicity of spirit, their untiring assiduity, and their faith in God, they rendered most valuable services to this cause, in the spheres which their lives adorned. The mournful providence is also yet fresh in our recollection, which removed one of the Directors of the Society — Rev. ARTEMAS BULLARD, D. D. — so suddenly, from his responsibilities, his toil, and his devotedness, to his reward on high.

Fourteen missionaries of the Society have also died during the year: Rev. Harrison Fairfield, in Maine; Rev. Jacob Allen, in Connecticut; Rev. A. L. Crandall, and Rev. Foster Lilly, in New York; Rev. Thomas D. Hudson, in Virginia; Rev. Ward Childs, in Ohio; Rev. A. J. Copeland, Rev. Joseph M. Grout, and Rev. Floyd Overton, in Illinois; Rev. H. C. Werth, in Missouri; Rev. O. S. Powell, in Wisconsin; Rev. Oliver Dimon, and Rev. C. V.

Hess, in Iowa.

To the great name of God, from whom cometh bereavement and prosperity, whose favor this Institution has enjoyed so richly from the beginning, and who has crowned another year of its labors with his blessing, be praise and glory for ever!

The various operations of the Society are noticed in the body of the Report, under their appropriate heads and in connection with their respective localities; such details as can be presented in a compact form are embraced in the following

SUMMARY OF RESULTS.

The number of ministers of the Gospel, in the service of the Society the last year, whose names are found in the preceding General Table, together with those engaged in superintending the work, and who are mentioned in connection with the respective Auxiliaries and Agencies, is 986.

Of these, 799 were in commission at the date of the last Report, and 187 have been since appointed.

They have been distributed in 24 different States and Territories, as follows: in Maine, 97; New Hampshire, 43; Vermont, 43; Massachusetts, 42; Rhode Island, 7; Connecticut, 44; New York, 137; New Jersey, 13; Pennsylvania, 48; Virginia, 8; Tennessee, 2; Kentucky, 1; Ohio, 80; Indiana, 36; Illinois, 93; Missouri, 21; Michigan, 72; Wisconsin, 87; Iowa, 73; Minnesota, 14; Kansas, 3; Nebraska, 1; California, 13; Oregon, 8.

This distribution gives to the New England States, 276; the Middle States, 198; the Southern States, 8; the Western States and Territories, 504, including 21 on the Pacific coast.

Of the whole number in commission, 528 have been pastors or stated supplies of single congregations; 315 have ministered to two or three congregations each; and 143 have extended their labors over still wider fields.

The aggregate of ministerial labor performed, is 775 years.

The number of congregations and missionary stations which have been fully supplied, or where the Gospel has been preached at stated intervals, is 1,965.

Ten missionaries have been in commission as pastors or stated supplies of churches of colored people; and 59 have preached in foreign languages—23 to Welsh, and 31 to German congregations, and 5 to congregations of Norwegians, Swedes, Swiss and Frenchmen.

The number of Sabbath school scholars connected with the missionary churches and stations is not far from 60,000.

The contributions to benevolent objects, reported by 578 missionaries, amount to $24,580.30.

Fifty missionaries make mention in their reports of revivals of religion, in the congregations to which they have ministered; in connection with some of which there have been 30, 40, and 50 hopeful conversions. The whole number of hopeful conversions, reported by 352 missionaries, is 2,005.

The additions to the churches, as nearly as can be ascertained, have been 5,602—viz., 2,625 on profession of their faith, and 2,977 by letters from other churches.

Fifty six churches have been organized, in connection with the labors of the missionaries, during the year; and fifty have attained to such a degree of strength and prosperity as to need no longer the fostering care of the Society. Forty eight houses of worship have been completed; thirty repaired or improved, and fifty six are in process of erection. Fifteen churches are reported, as having provided their ministers with comfortable parsonages; and ninety young men, connected with the missionary churches, as in different stages of preparation for the gospel ministry.

THE TREASURY.

RESOURCES.—The balance in the Treasury, April 1, 1855, was $16,804.81. The receipts for the next twelve months, have been $193,548.37; making the resources of the year $210,353.18.

LIABILITIES.—There was due to missionaries at the close of the last year, $12,488.74. There has since become due $183,673.94; making the total of liabilities $196,162.68.

Payments.—Of this sum, $186,611.02 have been paid; leaving $9,551.66 still due to missionaries for labor performed. Towards canceling these claims, and redeeming additional pledges on commissions daily becoming due—amounting in all to $78,127.67—there is a balance in the Treasury of $23,742.16; the greater part of it received in payment of legacies near the close of the year.

The receipts exceed those of the preceding year, by $13,411.68; and those of any former year, by $2,339.30. The amount received in payment of legacies, is $41,225.01; which is greater than the amount from the same source the last year, by $12,418.94; leaving $992,74, as the portion of increase for the year, from the regular contributions of the churches. The number of missionaries is less by 46, and the years of labor by 40, than in the preceding year; while the additions to the churches are but 32 less; and the number of churches which have become self-supporting—50 in all—is greater by ten than that last reported. The diminution in the number of missionaries is not equal, by 18, to the number whose support has this year been assumed by their people, added to the number who have been removed by death. Many changes have been occasioned by other causes, such as the failure of health, age, infirmities, or engaging temporarily in some other sphere of use-To supply the vacancies which have thus been made, and to occupy the new fields which have been opened, 187 commissions have been issued to men, who were not in the service of the Society at the date of the last Report—a number just equal to that added the preceding year—and yet the supply has been inadequate to the demand. It gives some relief to find the deficiency, on the missionary list, chiefly in those States where aid has long been rendered, and where the churches are becoming more and more able to sustain themselves, such as New York, Ohio, and Illinois; while in Iowa, Minnesota, and Oregon, the number of laborers has been increased by 17. The experience of the Committee, however, makes it more and more painfully manifest, that the number of men annually entering the ministry is not sufficient for the necessities of the churches—scarcely enough to enable them to maintain their present positions, to say nothing of the supply of the whole country and the conquest of the globe. And from this cause, more than from all others, have we reason to apprehend the most serious embarrassment to our missionary operations in the future, unless the Spirit of God be poured upon our churches and upon the families which compose them, upon our schools and colleges and seminaries of sacred science; and our young men, of talent and education and piety, are everywhere constrained to say, "Woe is me, if I preach not the Gospel!"

With a diminished number of missionaries, there has been an increased expenditure of $8,893.68, showing that progress has been made this year also, and in a greater measure than any year before, in raising the standard of missionary support. This has been done by correspondence and conference with those who have enjoyed the labors of the missionaries, by calling out their resources, as God has prospered them, to effect an object so just to the missionary and so vital to the prosperity of the people, as well as by enlarged appropriations from the Treasury of the Society. The progress which has been made in securing to missionaries a more adequate support, the last few years—a measure so imperiously called for by the circumstances in which they have been placed though of necessity gradual, is by no means inconsiderable. average cost of a year's labor to the Society, has, in consequence, advanced, the year now closed, ten per cent; in five years, thirty four per cent; in ten years, forty five per cent; and in thirteen years, sixty one per cent. If the missionary churches shall continue to cooperate with the Society in this endeavor, according to their ability, and the more favored churches, after supporting adequately their own pastors, shall put at the disposal of the Society the requisite funds, we hope to see the time ere long, when it shall be conceded by all men, that "the laborer is worthy of his hire," and that it is meet that "they who preach the Gospel shall live of the Gospel."

Remarks.—1. From the foregoing Table it will be seen, that in the last fifteen years, the receipts have more than doubled.

- 2. The total receipts, for the thirty years, is $3,102,048.77.
- 3. The total of years of labor is 17,296. These years are reckoned in each Report, by adding together the number of months of labor which the missionaries have actually performed.
  - 4. The whole number of additions to the churches is 137,941.
- 5. The average expenditure for a year of missionary labor includes the entire cost of the Society, of obtaining the missionary, defraying his expenses to his field, and sustaining him on it, as well as all the expenses of conducting the Institution. The increased average of recent years has been occasioned by the greater number of those who have held full commissions, and the expensiveness of more distant missions—particularly of those on the Pacific coast—and the larger appropriations that have become necessary, as the expenses of living have increased, to secure to the missionary a comfortable support.

- 6. The difference between the annual average expenditure to a missionary and the average for a year's labor, is occasioned by the fact that a missionary is named and counted in a Report, though in some cases he may have labored but a fraction of the year.
- 7. The fifth column—that of new appointments—shows how many have to be called in each year, to supply the places of those whose support is assumed by the people, the vacancies occasioned by death, sickness, removals, and other changes, and to make the increase, if there be any, over the number of the preceding year.

PRINCIPAL AUXILIARIES, AGENCIES, AND MISSION-ARY FIELDS.

MAINE MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

The receipts of this Society, during the year ending March 1st, were $15,939.57, exceeding those of the preceding year by $4,291.09. The expenditures within the State were $12,223.06; and $500 were forwarded from its Treasury to the Parent Society. There were also received into the Treasury of the National Society, from congregations and individuals in the State, $511.82; making the total from the State, $16,451.39; and the amount expended beyond its bounds, $1,011.82.

The number of missionaries the Society has in its service, is 97. They have ministered to 95 churches, and in 30 towns and plantations where no churches have yet been gathered. The congregations thus aided are gaining strength; some of them have been visited with the special influences of the Spirit, and many of them bear testimony to the prosperity of their Sabbath schools, and the good effects of the Temperance reform.

In the increasing ability of the Society to aid in planting the institutions of the Gospel on our western frontiers, the Trustees especially rejoice. "Our Home Missionary work," they say, "may well be regarded as embracing the whole land. In what part of it are not the sons and daughters of Maine to be found? The portion of its annual receipts which this Society shall deposit in the Treasury in New York, for the benefit of the mighty West, will go to the support of missionaries from Maine, in preaching the Gospel to hearers from Maine. In the Territory of Kansas, there are emigrants from Maine, of sturdy frames and bold hearts, ready to do their part, at the ballot-box and elsewhere, whatever dangers may threaten or enemies assail, on the side of order, law, and liberty; and we would esteem it a privilege, there to aid the good missionaries already sent, and others who are yet to be commissioned, in proclaiming, amidst the din of political and national excitement, the unsearchable riches of Christ."

NEW HAMPSHIRE MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

NATHANIEL BOUTON, D.D., President; BENJAMIN P. STONE, D.D., Secretary and Treasurer. Office at Concord.

The receipts of the year ending March 1st, were $7,083.57. Of this amount, $5,805.02 were expended within the State; and $1,256.02 were forwarded, by direction of the donors, to the Parent Society. There were also paid directly into the Treasury of the Parent Society, from congregations and individuals in the State, $344.85; making the total of contributions to this cause, $7,428.42, and the amount expended beyond the limits of the State, in furtherance of the objects of the National Society, $1,600.87.

Forty three missionaries have been in commission during the year, and the aggregate of labor performed is thirty four years. The number of members connected with forty six churches aided is 2,114, and the number of pupils in their Sabbath schools is 3,324. Thirty two missionary churches have, within the last twenty years, become self-sustaining.

"With regard to the general aspect of our field," says the Secretary in his Report, "it has still its lights and shades to encourage and dishearten the friends of Home Missions; but the former, we believe, are more prominent than the latter; while the latter furnish no solid arguments for shutting up our bowels of compassion, and for ceasing to remember the poor. Though emigration and deaths are exhausting the little strength of some of our churches, and though the progress of others is made a seeming impossibility, from want of materials or from sectarian hostility, yet it is apparent that that form of sound morals and church order which were dear to our fathers, is yearly gaining a wider respect and influence throughout all the rural districts of New Hampshire. The results of our missionary labors in this State, for the last twenty years, though not such as to prove that the Millennium has come, are yet sufficiently encouraging to fill our hearts with faith and hope for the future. We rejoice in the evidence that the great body of the tried friends of the cause are still determined to hold on in their friendship and liberality, looking forward to the next generation, perhaps, for the gathering of the harvest for which they have been so long sowing the seed."

VERMONT DOMESTIC MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Hon. Erastus Fairbanks, President; C. W. Storrs, Esq., Treasurer; Rev. John F. Stone, Secretary. Office at Montpelier.

The receipts of this Society, for the year ending March 1st, were $4,309.01. There were also received into the Treasury of the Parent Society, during its financial year, from congregations and individuals in this State, $397.05; making the total for Home Missions, $4,706.06. The expenditures for the year were, $4,853.25.

The number of missionaries employed is 43; three of whom have been installed as pastors. Two churches have taken themselves from the list of beneficiaries during the year; and the whole number founded or fostered by the Society, within the last thirty years, which are now sustaining the institutions of the Gospel without aid, is forty two. Many more would have come to this position of independence, had it not been for the drafts annually made upon them by emigration to the West. One of the greatest causes of present weakness and discouragement to the churches in Vermont is from this source.

The Secretary of the Society, in his recent Report, says: "If the depleting effects of emigration shall continue for a few years longer, unless God shall interpose by powerful revivals, I see not but our desolations must greatly increase. Already about one half of the churches in the State are too feeble to support the Gospel without aid. And many are so reduced and disheartened. that they will make no further attempt to have preaching, unless they are visited and encouraged by the assurance of liberal help from the Missionary Society. About fifty churches are now destitute of preaching; and there are about fifty towns in which no Congregational church exists. Not less than one hundred towns have no preaching in our connection, and many of them are without stated preaching by any denomination. Not less than twenty churches, the names of which still appear in the Minutes of our Convention, are so nearly extinct, that they can hardly be said to have even 'a little strength.' Nearly all of these must be entirely broken up in a few years, if the causes which have occasioned their weakness continue to operate, and the most decisive measures be not taken to 'strengthen the things that remain,' and help do not come from on high."

MASSACHUSETTS HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

RICHARD S. STORRS, D.D., President; BENJAMIN PERKINS, Esq., Treasurer; JOSEPH S. CLARK, D.D., Secretary. Office in Boston.

The receipts of this Society, during the year ending March 1st, were $38,223.84. Of this amount, there were expended within the State, $5,956; and $31,000 were forwarded to the Treasury of the Parent Society. There were received, in addition, by the American Home Missionary Society, during its financial year—in payment of legacies, $9,809.47; from the Hampshire Missionary Society, $1,950; from congregations and individuals, $7,499.76—in all, $19,259.23; making a total for the cause in Massachusetts, $57,483.07, and the amount put at the disposal of the National Society, $50,259.23. The total of receipts exceeds those of any preceding year, by $11,185.06; and the amount forwarded to the Treasury of the Parent Society, for its general purposes, that of any other year, by $9,486.48.

The number of missionaries in the service of the Society is 42. The churches aided are situated in communities which, without them, would soon become moral desolations. Through their influence, nearly 4,000 souls are gathered into the sanctuary every Sabbath, and more than half that number instructed in Sabbath schools. They comprise a membership of 1,540, nearly 100 of whom were added the last year. The last Report of the Society says: "Out of 469 Orthodox Congregational churches in the State, only 38 are now leaning on the Massachusetts Home Missionary Society for support; which is about 8 per cent. Sixteen years ago, when we numbered only 375 in all, 80 of them, or about 21 per cent, were unable to stand without this staff. Thus is the Lord 'sending us help from the sanctuary and strengthening us out of Zion."

The great work of national evangelization this Auxiliary justly regards as its own; and the more largely they contribute of their resources for its advancement, the more earnest are their desires that it may not be impeded, but carried forward on a scale commensurate with its importance. "Look," says their Report, " at the triumphs which have been achieved, through the agency of Home Missions, all over New England and throughout the great West. Look at the doors continually opening for still greater achievements on the distant shores of the Pacific. Look at those vast interior solitudes, fifty times as large as Massachusetts, in geographical extent, suddenly resounding with the tread of coming multitudes, rushing forward with intense interest, as if to another battle of Waterloo, unquestionably at hand, and to be decided by the moral forces that are brought into the field within a very short time. In these pressing circumstances, with these exciting prospects before us, who can think of a retrogressive movement without pain? Who can be willing that a year should come to a close without recording some marked progress, when, in answer to every prayer put up to Heaven, there comes back the response of God to Moses, with ever-deepening emphasis: 'Wherefore criest thou unto me? Speak to the children of Israel that they go forward."

RHODE ISLAND HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

THOMAS SHEPARD, D.D., President; GILBERT RICHMOND, Esq., Providence, Treasurer; Rev. Constantine Blodgett, Pawtucket, Secretary.

The receipts of this Society, for the year ending March 1st, were $1,484.74. Add to this $178.09, paid directly to the Parent Society, and we have $1,622.81 as the total of Home Missionary collections in this State. The expenditures of the Society were $1,475.

Seven missionaries have been in commission during the year, prosecuting their labors at important points with fidelity and success. The churches at Tiverton and Slatersville, formerly aided, are now self-sustaining; and the latter, particularly, is an efficient and liberal church.

"The fluctuating character of our manufacturing villages," says the Secretary of the Society, "holds the churches, year after year, at a point, in numbers and pecuniary ability, short of self-support. And this it must do for years to come, rendering our enterprise preëminently one of faith and patience, and requiring large appropriations of missionary aid. We have, however, the satisfaction of doing something to evangelize in a degree this floating mass of operatives, meeting it now in this location, and then in another, with the Gospel of salvation, and elevating the character and condition of all, and, by the grace of God, saving some. The tide of general improvement is yet rising in the communities which enjoy the labors of our missionaries. And the progress in all good is owing to their labors, far more than the people themselves suppose. Our older and self-sustaining churches are reaching, by degrees, the true idea of the Home Missionary work, in its bearings upon temporal and eternal interests, and are rising accordingly to a more liberal and cheerful outlay for the support of feeble churches.

CONNECTICUT MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Rev. Horace Hooker, Secretary; E. W. Parsons, Treasurer. Office at Hartford.

The receipts of this Auxiliary, for the year ending March 1st, were $8,131.38. Of this amount, $4,206.33 were expended within the State, and $3,000 have been forwarded to the Parent Society. There was also received from this State, by the American Home Missionary Society, during its financial year—in payment of legacies, $8,136.55; from congregations and individuals, $12,828.34—in all, $20,964.89; making the total from Connecticut $29,096.27, exceeding by a small amount the receipts of the preceding year, and furnishing $23,964.89 to be expended through the National Institution on the Western field.

The number of missionaries employed is 44. Five churches have, during the year, reached the point of independence which enables them to dispense with further aid. And since the connection of this Auxiliary with the Parent Society in 1830, a period of twenty six years, forty churches which have participated in its bounty have become self-supporting; more than one third of them are in manufacturing villages.

The Secretary of the Society, in referring to the work which has been accomplished in the land the last thirty years, says: "The deep and increasing interest in the Home Missionary enterprise through a whole generation, the liberal supply of means furnished for its execution, and the favor extended to it both by God and man, deserve, on a review, the gratitude of every friend of the church and of our country. Nor is gratitude the only feeling which such a review is fitted to inspire. Who can fail to admire the Providence that, in advance of wants, undeveloped and unapprehended by man, devised and had in readiness an instrumentality commensurate with the need; opening new fields for occupation, yet hiding from view the full magnitude of the work, till the patriot and the Christian were strengthened, by overcoming minor difficulties, to meet manfully its rapid succession of demands on their faith, beneficence, and energy? When, more than forty years ago, Mills and Schermerhorn, agents of the Missionary Societies of Connecticut and Massachusetts, lifted the veil which concealed the moral and religious state of the great western valley, the heart-rending scene aroused the churches to action; for the evil, though appalling, was not deemed beyond relief. But, had the work been delayed for a third of a century, and the mighty West been peopled by millions without religious institutions and the safeguard which the Gospel throws around a free government, despair would have paralyzed effort. Enough of novelty to keep alive the missionary spirit, and enough of demand to awaken responsibility without depressing hope, have, from the first, characterized the work, showing that it has ever been the care of a watchful Providence."

PHILADELPHIA HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

John A. Brown, Esq., President; Henry Perkins, Esq., Treasurer; Rev. Robert Adair, Secretary. Office at Philadelphia.

The field of this Auxiliary covers the States of Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Maryland, and Delaware, with the District of Columbia. Its receipts for the year ending March 1st, were $7,826.02. Its expenditures were $9,017.08. The balance at the commencement of the year was $1,565.67, and at the close, $374.61. There has also been received by the American Home Missionary Society, during the twelve months ending April 1st, from New Jersey, $877.50; from Pennsylvania, $175.50; from Maryland, a legacy of $4,875; from the District of Columbia, $2.62; in all, $5,930.62; making the total contributions of this field $13,756.64. This exceeds the total of last year by $3,492.60.

The number of missionaries under commission during the year is fifty seven. Forty four are now in commission. Fifteen pulpits are vacant. The churches, with few exceptions, are enjoying the usual share of temporal prosperity, and the attendance on the means of grace has been unusually good, except during the severe weather of the past winter. Some are experiencing a refreshing from the presence of the Lord.

"The great hindrance," says the Secretary, "to a vigorous prosecution of this work is the want of men and means. There are positions of great prospective importance that we can not occupy for want of these. To plant the institutions of the Gospel in such places, the missionary would have to be sustained almost entirely by our Society, which the present state of our funds will not warrant. Had we the men, and the means adequate to sustain them for a few years, in some fields that are yet lying waste within our bounds, we could accomplish a work that would tell with power upon the everlasting interests of future generations."

These observations come with peculiar force at the present time. For, while the receipts of this Auxiliary, in 1853, were $9,235.53, and in 1854, $13,345.68; in 1855 they were but $9,-146.14; and in 1856, only $7,826.02. Thus, in the midst of growing desolations, and in the presence of opportunities of usefulness like those described above, the receipts of the Auxiliary are smaller than they have been since 1852. During the past two years the Home Missionary cause, in this field, has obviously met with serious hindrances. It is hoped that those which have operated to occasion this loss may not be permanent.

CENTRAL AGENCY, NEW YORK.

Rev. Theodore Spencer, Secretary; J. E. Warner, Esq., Treasurer. Office at Utica.

The receipts of this Agency for the year ending March 1st, were $5,434.29, being an advance of $548.68 upon those of the year preceding. In addition, contributions have been made from this field directly to the Treasury of the Society, amounting to $2,764.15, making a total of $8,198.44. More than half of this amount was appropriated for the benefit of churches at the West. The sum of $4,084.90 has been expended within the bounds of the Agency.

Forty missionaries have been sustained in this field during the year, who have ministered to forty five churches, and have supplied over five thousand souls with the ministrations of the Gospel. Well concerted efforts have been made by several of the Presbyterian and Congregational bodies, in coöperation with this Society, to revive their feeble churches. Under the direction of the Cortland Presbytery, a mass meeting of its churches was held, in January last, at which every church was represented, and which recommended that those in need of aid should combine, each with one or two of its neighbors, for the support of the stated ministrations of the Gospel. Much good has already resulted from this meeting, and the adoption of this plan. A similar policy is commended to all churches in like circumstances. The increasing deficiency of ministers to meet the ever-growing demand, and the urgent necessity of furnishing a more ample support to those who enter the sacred calling, seem to compel to this course. The various causes of benevolence which signalize our day, have no more active or decided supporters than are to be found in the missionaries of this field. In the rural districts, the Temperance cause, in its new aspects under the prohibitory law, has been very generally sustained and the law enforced, the violation of it forming the exception and not the rule; and it is from the churches that the influences proceeded which secured its observance.

"Recent events," says the Secretary, "have led us to notice, with peculiar satisfaction, the ardent attachment which our churches entertain towards the American Home Missionary Society. So far as our observation has extended, they repose with entire confidence in its principles of operation, in their adaptation to effect the important object in view, in the suitableness of the means employed to carry them out, and in the wisdom of its administration; and, as a consequence, we have received the hearty cooperation of the churches according to their ability. It is, indeed, a rare pleasure to present the cause to such churches, knowing the kindly spirit in which it will be received, and the generous response which will, almost invariably, follow. They love the Society as their almoner in doing good; and the history of its operations, within our bounds, shows that their views of the good it has effected here are not exaggerated. Since 1826, the Society has aided two hundred and sixty nine churches on this field. These churches have all enjoyed revivals of religion, most of them frequently; and while tens of thousands of souls have been brought under the invitations and warnings of the Gospel, a very considerable number have been converted to Christ. Indeed, portions of this period have been rendered remarkable by the out-pourings of the divine Spirit, and the harvests of regenerated souls. These churches have sent forth their young men into the ministry, and have cooperated in every good work. We see no reason to doubt that nearly all of them would now have been abundantly able to sustain themselves, had it not been for the excessive emigration which, for the last twenty five years, has been a constant drain upon their strength. Many which had become self-supporting, have thus been reduced again to a state of dependence; and yet, ninety two, or more than one third of the whole number, maintain themselves without aid, and are helpers of the weak."

During the period of which we speak, the sum of $95,290.33 has been appropriated to the churches on this ground. This has all been raised on the field itself, and large amounts in addition have been poured into the Treasury, and have been expended for the benefit of the churches in the newer settlements. We bless God for the good which the Agency has already accomplished, and look forward to its future with cheerful hope and with large ex-

WESTERN AGENCY, NEW YORK.

The receipts of this Agency for the year ending March 1st, were $9,445.60, exceeding those of the year before by $2,876.40. The expenditures were $6,462.65. The sum of $2,624 was remitted from its Treasury, and $13,578.15 were contributed from its field, directly to the Treasury at New York. The contributions, increased as they have been by an installment of $12,000 of the munificent legacy of Deacon Jabez Goodell of Buffalo, surpass those of any previous year, amounting in the aggregate to $23,023.75. Of this sum $16,561.10 went for the benefit of churches beyond the bounds of the Agency.

Fifty one missionaries have been sustained on this field during the past year, and have ministered to fifty seven churches. Three new fields have been taken up, and eleven missionaries appointed who were not in commission last year. Several houses of worship have been enlarged, and several built; but less has been done than had been anticipated, on account of the failure of the crops. A few of the churches have been blessed with revivals. In one, upwards of fifty persons are reported as hopefully converted.

The population of Western New York is not increasing as in former years. In many of the small villages and rural districts, there has been a decrease of the number of inhabitants. The eyes of thousands are turned towards the West, and these are saying to their neighbors, "Let us go hence!" One pastor of a self-supporting church has been compelled to leave his field, a fourth of the members of his church having emigrated, taking with them almost one half of its pecuniary strength. In many cases foreigners are coming in to occupy the places of those who remove, furnishing new material for the churches to work upon, and fresh obstacles to their progress. The frequency of ministerial changes has also operated unfavorably upon the prosperity of the churches. Some have had as many as five ministers within fourteen years; one has had six in seven years; one has had twelve in thirty one years, and another thirteen in twenty three years.

"It is nearly thirty years," the Secretary observes, "since the organization of this Agency by the American Home Missionary Society. Previous to this time, but few missionaries were on this field; and although there was a population of half a million, the receipts for Home Missions were only about $640 a year. The Western Agency gave an impulse to the cause, and its success shows the adaptedness of the American Home Missionary Society to the work it has undertaken. Four hundred and forty two missionaries have labored under the supervision of this Agency. Of these fifty two have gone to their rest, and twenty seven have become superannuated, or been disqualified in other ways for the stated performance of ministerial duty. Three hundred and forty four churches have been aided. Of this number, one hundred and seven are now self-sustaining; namely, eighty nine Presbyterian, and seventeen Congregational churches, with one Lutheran church. Perhaps twenty others, after having reached the point of self-support, have been obliged, by removals, deaths, and the organization of new churches, to apply again for missionary aid. A few have become extinct. Since the second year of the Agency, this field has more than sustained its own feeble churches. Sixteen hundred commissions have been issued, pledging assistance to the amount of $144,293. The contributions have amounted to $298,311.04, exceeding the sum bestowed upon the feeble churches, by $154,018.04.

No one can contemplate the results of Home Missionary labor in the State of New York, without having his gratitude and his faith strengthened. He will be grateful for those two hundred churches that have risen from feebleness to strength, and for that devotedness and that munificence which have made them fountains of blessing, not alone to the communities wherein they stand, but to distant regions of our own and other lands. He will be confident that the older churches which have succeeded in their enterprise of benevolence, so as to create such allies as these, will not grow weary in their christian endeavors, and that the instrumentalities which have been thus owned of God here, will continue to be blessed, wherever applied, until no more of our American world remains to be conquered.

WESTERN RESERVE AGENCY, OHIO.

Rev. James H. Newton, Perrysburgh, Secretary. T. P. Handy, Esq., Cleveland, Treasurer.

The receipts of this Agency, during the year, amounted to $2,524.13; and the expenditures, to $2,341.15. The number of missionaries sustained, is thirty one. Some of the churches have been permitted to rejoice in revivals of religion, though we have been cheered with news of this character less frequently than we could have wished.

The duties of the secretaryship of this Agency—made vacant in January last by the resignation of Rev. Myron Tracy, since deceased—were acceptably performed for some months by Rev. John C. Hart, of Ravenna. The office has more recently been filled by the election of Rev. James II. Newton, for a number of years a missionary of this Society at Perrysburgh, in Wood County. Mr. Newton enters upon the interesting and arduous duties of his new position, with the cordial good wishes and the confidence of the Committee and of the friends of Home Missions on his own field. May a kind Providence bless his labors, and those of his associates in the Agency, to the churches and the people whose most precious interests are their care.

There is need of more missionary work upon this field than it has been practicable to secure for it. Several churches seem to be dying out for want of faithful self-denying ministers to break unto them the bread of life. In all these places, where no watchmen are on the walls of Zion, errorists are busy sowing the seeds of spiritual death. Necromancy has made its appearance in a number of places, and has led astray not a few; while others, in their devotion to "reforms," have forgotten the one reformation which is alone essential. The work of "complete evangelization" is by no means complete yet, on the Western Reserve, although encouraging progress has been made, and present tendencies are, on the whole, favorable. It is a most important field of christian effort, and throws heavy responsibilities upon the churches and ministers, to whom, under God, the care of its spiritual interests has been intrusted.

MARIETTA AGENCY, OHIO.

REV. THOMAS WICKES, Secretary. A. T. NYE, Esq., Treasurer. Office at Marietta.

The receipts into the Treasury of this Agency have been $335.63; and the payments, $527.60; the balance of expenditures on this field has been paid from the Treasury at New York.

Ten misionaries have been employed during the past year, and have ministered to fourteen feeble churches. This period has not been marked with any unusual successes, and yet has had its encouragements. Says the Secretary: "We have here some faithful, devoted men; nor are they laboring in vain. Some waste places have been made to rejoice, and streams have burst forth in the desert. The means expended in this field have not been lost. The Gospel has won many trophies, and a multitude have been gathered here which shall adorn the Saviour's diadem. God has visited some of the churches with the special tokens of his love: and is pouring out his Spirit upon cities and towns in this region, with unwonted power, so as to move the whole population."

But the whole history does not flow in this strain. Southeastern Ohio, in common with adjacent portions of that and of other States, is suffering from emigration and from immigration. In many instances churches are drained of their best strength; and often the population which comes to fill the vacancy, gives the churches more of work than of reinforcement. No missionary church has reached the point of self-support. One did succeed, for a year or two, in sustaining its minister, but has since fallen back upon the Society, and is now at a low point. This state of things, however, we have reason to hope, will not continue. South-eastern Ohio is obviously destined to contain a large population. Its mineral wealth is immense; and the southern line of railroad, which will be opened within a year to the Ohio river, cannot fail to develop these resources to a vast extent. Its agricultural interests must also feel the impulse of this advance, and with the consequent growth of commercial prosperity and of population, it is to be hoped and expected that the churches will increase in strength and in efficiency. Still, some years must pass before these hopes can be realized. Meanwhile it is plainly our duty to be faithful in the work of to-day, keeping all things in readiness for the time of growth which, sooner or later, is sure to come, so that its new responsibilities may not take us unawares. The Home Missionary work, like that in the foreign field, is a work of faith. We are compelled to endure the day of small things, and to wait patiently the development of God's plan, watchful for every opportunity of doing good, and cherishing undoubting confidence in a final triumph.

WESTERN OHIO.

Rev. MARCUS HICKS, Columbus, Agent.

Thirty nine missionaries have been sustained in this portion of the State, during the past year; and the contributions reported amount to $2,061.61.

No new features of much importance have characterized the experience of this portion of the missionary field during the past year. The high prices of all the necessaries of life have pressed heavily upon many of the ministers here, as elsewhere; and in some places, emigration to the richer lands of the farther West, has drained off the best strength of once promising congregations. The phases of infidelity, peculiar to the present day, have not neglected to show themselves here; and occasionally men of influence and standing, who had already begun to depart from the simplicity of the truth, have been led still farther astray into absurdities and impieties, realizing in their own persons the fulfillment of the threatening upon those who "receive not the love of the truth." These errors are only too frequent in almost all portions of the missionary field.

The whole number of missionaries sustained in this State, the past year, is eighty. The total receipts, through the Treasuries of the Agencies, amount to $4,930.38, which, with $1,572.22, contributed directly to the Treasury at New York, make a total for the whole State of $6,502.58.

The whole sum appropriated to the support of missionaries

during the year, taken with the necessary expenses of the Agencies, and a just proportion of the general cost of conducting the Society, would rather exceed than fall short of $10,000. The churches of Ohio, therefore, fail, as yet, by a very considerable amount, of meeting the necessities of their own field. The deficit is not so large, however, but that we may hope, ere long, to congratulate our brethren of this populous and wealthy State, upon their independence of foreign aid. It must be confessed, indeed, that to one who looks only upon the large cities on the lakes and the river. and the vigorous towns that have sprung up along the many lines of railroad that now cross Ohio in various directions, to one who feasts his eye upon the rich lands of the Scioto valley, or is entertained beneath the hospitable roofs of the merchant princes, whose mansions look forth upon the charming dales and heights around Cincinnati, it may seem incredible that such a State should need look to the barren hills and shores of New England for aid in the support of her feeble churches. But it is to be remembered, in the first place, that the proportion of this wealth which is in the hands of christian men is much smaller in Ohio than in New England. Moreover, a large share of the christian capital of the State belongs to denominations that do not sympathize with this Society. We must also take into account the extensive regions which still remain but sparsely settled, where only a few openings have been made in the primeval forests, and the fields have but just begun to yield their increase, in response to exhausting toils. Finally, we must remember that emigration is severely felt by the churches in certain parts of Ohio; and that the new railroads, while sure to prove, in the end, an incalculable benefit to the State as a whole, are now occasioning changes which are injurious to many particular towns and rural districts. Facts like these must qualify the judgment which would otherwise be formed, of the fidelity and liberality of the churches of Ohio.

Nevertheless, after making all this allowance, the other fact still remains, that the difference between $57,000 and $6,500 is greater than the difference between the available strength of the supporters of this Society in Massachusetts and Ohio. The contrast is too wide. Eastern churches will have reason to admonish the churches whom they have long so liberally, and so gladly aided, unless these shall soon bring up their contributions to a higher mark. For, after making every just and charitable allowance for the circumstances already alluded to, it is still not conceivable that the present discrepancy between the contributions of Ohio for Home Missions, and her real ability to give, need continue. A State with an area of 40,000 square miles, nine tenths of whose surface is susceptible of cultivation, and three fourths of it eminently productive; in agricultural wealth already the third in the Union, and ranking probably as the fourth in mineral wealth; with sixty considerable towns and villages, a population of two and a quarter millions, and taxable property, valued, four years ago, at more than five hundred millions of dollars; such a State, skirted on two sides with navigable waters leading to great markets, while her interior is penetrated and crossed in all directions by canals and railroads, and is peopled with an industrious and vigorous population—such a State will not look abroad for the support of her feeble churches, longer than is necessary for the development and concentration of her immense though somewhat scattered forces. If Maine, with a valuation of less than $125,000,000, can spare $15,000 for Home Missions, Ohio, whose earliest settlements were of the same Puritan stock, possessing now four times the wealth of her sister State, ought surely to be able to raise $10,000. Another season of favorable harvests will bring, we trust, more favorable returns from this important missionary field.

INDIANA.

Rev. HENRY LITTLE, Madison, Agent.

Thirty six missionaries have labored in this State, during the past year, under commissions from this Society, and the sum of $2,835.47 has been contributed to the cause of Home Missions, being an advance of more than $1,700 upon the contributions of the previous year.

Indiana is greatly indebted to the assistance of the American Home Missionary Society. "It is safe to take all the Presbyterian churches of both Schools, with the Congregational churches, and say, that they were originated or sustained through its instrumentality. The exceptions, if any exist, are very few." The names of forty churches are readily recalled, embracing sixteen now connected with the Presbyterian Church, O. S., that were once dependent, but are now self-supporting. Many others would now have been independent, were it not for the effects of the schism of 1837. This division has been, and is still, most detrimental to the cause of Christ in Indiana, fruitful of feebleness and of dishonor. But for this, each one of the second and third rate towns in the State might be blessed with the invigorating influences of a strong, well compacted, and harmonious church, where now two debilitated and alienated congregations are dwindling under the blight of their rivalry. In some places, not even these relics are left; but in their contentions, both have perished. There is wisdom-for those who are willing to be taught-in these lessons of experience.

Indiana is feeling the effects of emigration as well as Ohio. Sixty persons have been known to go from a single church in one year. A successful and popular minister has recently lost twelve valuable families. The New York and New England emigration goes to regions beyond; and that which comes in from other quarters is not Presbyterian or Calvinistic. Fewer revivals are reported for the past year than for some previous years. Yet the missionaries have labored, in general, with fidelity and success. In some districts, the reforms of the day encounter the grossest prejudices. The opposition to the Temperance cause, in one instance, broke forth in acts of malignant violence. Elsewhere the missionary has to contend with an ignorant fanaticism, sometimes superstitious and sometimes full of unbelief; and he finds himself surrounded by men denying immortality, or insisting upon baptismal regeneration, or scoffing at all religion—claiming to have proved it, by their own personal experience, a deceit; or he has to mourn the deplorable backslidings of those who once professed faith in Jesus Christ, and whose example is now quoted, not only againt Christ-ianity, but even against morality.

But while experiences like these are not uncommon in missionary life in Indiana, and elsewhere at the West, there are others of quite a different nature. A single year's labor has sometimes created a church where there was none, established a Sabbath school and prayer meetings, given a new impulse to secular schools, and a healthful stimulus to the whole mind and heart of the community; a house of worship rises to view, while the drinking shops disappear; the Sabbath day is hallowed; a new appreciation of the Gospel's truth and preciousness is imparted, and the whole moral atmosphere of the place is renovated. With facts like these to encourage us in our work within this State, we have every reason to push forward our plans with unflagging energy and unfaltering hope, confident that the time is not very far distant when we shall witness "greater things than these."

ILLINOIS.

Rev. ARATUS KENT, Galena, Agent for Northern Illinois.

In this State, the Society has had in commission since the last Report ninety three missionaries; and has received into its Treasury, from the same field, $4,952.52—being an advance upon the previous year of $1,139.57.

During the past year the reports from the churches have, in general, been favorable; although the number of revivals of religion has been smaller than in some previous years. One missionary reports that, as a result, under the divine blessing, of systematic labors continued for the space of two years, "a majority of the population" within his field gave hopeful evidence of having been born again. "Day schools have been established, summer and winter, the Sabbath school is in a flourishing condition, and there are but two or three irreligious families, in which the voice of prayer does not ascend, morning and evening." This was accomplished among "a rude, ignorant, and vicious population, unused to the decencies of public worship;" among whom "intemperance, gambling, and Sabbath breaking, with other kindred vices, had prevailed to an alarming extent." It is worthy of note, that these most encouraging results were not the fruits of any extraordinary and startling measures, but the reward of patient, persevering, christian labors in all the usual methods, and especially in neighborhood meetings. We see no good reason why a similar success might not become a matter of common experience.

Among the indirect results of christian fidelity in this State, is one of very considerable significance. The Illinois Central Railroad "is now to a great extent a Sabbath-keeping road. No regular trains run on that day, and very seldom is its sacred quiet broken by the scream of the engine. If a healthful religious interest is kept up and increased along these lines, we shall be spared the dreadful consequences of Sabbath violation by this vast corporation. Very soon this company will exert a tremendous influence in this State. How important that this influence be on the right side!" This railroad is fast working a change in the southern counties of Illinois, so long shunned by capital and education, so long given over to ignorance and wickedness. Old towns are growing larger; new villages are springing up. Immigrants are bringing capital and industry; institutions of education are struggling, with cheering prospects, for a foothold; ministers are multiplying, and churches are taking a new start. The natural resources of this region are very great; and it is probable that its climate has been much misrepresented. There seems to be no scarcity of healthful localities; and we may hope soon to behold this neglected region swarming with a busy and intelligent population.

The change, material and spiritual, which has come upon the northern and central portions of this State, within the last thirty years, is very great. Whole regions that then presented to the eye an uncultivated wilderness, now bud and blossom as the rose. Places that were then unknown to the white man, except in imagination, now present thriving villages and young cities teeming with the activities of busy life. The uncultivated and untrodden prairies now feel, from east to west, and from north to south, the heavy tread of the iron horse, as he brings from the sea ports the merchandise of foreign climes, the emigrant seeking a new home, the teacher, and the missionary of the cross, or disburthens the soil of its superabundant harvests, interchanging the product of neighboring and of remote localities. The moral changes are as wonderful as the physical. "When I first came to Illinois," testifies one of many witnesses, "morality and religion were almost unknown; Sabbath-breaking, gambling, drinking, horse-racing, and all manner of wickedness, seemed to be the order of the day." Now, even the railroads do not forget the Sabbath day; noble institutions of learning and benevolence are shedding abroad their health-giving light, and hundreds of evangelical churches are pouring benign, renewing influences into the life-blood of the people. The prospect is most cheerful and inspiring, when we look at the greatness of the work, and at the good which God hath wrought. When we turn to look for the laborers who are to occupy this ever-widening field, we are compelled to own, alas! that the laborers are few.

MISSOURI.

Rev. TIMOTHY HILL, St. Louis, Secretary.

The number of missionaries sustained in Missouri during the last year is twenty one; the contributions from the State amount to $188.75.

Missouri was entered by the missionaries of this Society in the year of its organization, at the same time with Illinois; and the fields then opening in these two States were looked upon with equally cheerful expectation. Similar efforts were made in both for the establishment of churches, schools, and colleges—but with very dissimilar results.

In 1838, fourteen missionaries were sustained within the bounds of this State. In 1842, this number had become reduced to six. During the following year, however, it was so increased that in 1843 twenty missionaries were reported as having held commissions; and the contributions amounted to $750. Most urgent appeals continued to come from St. Louis, pleading in strong, unqualified phrase the pressing necessities of the State, and the importance of the moment. In a population of over 500,000, there were "less than sixty Presbyterian ministers." "In two sections of the State, each larger than Massachusetts, there was not a single Presbyterian or Congregational minister devoted to the work of saving souls." At the lowest possible estimate, it was said, "twelve missionaries were needed immediately." The Society thereupon exerted itself to meet the emergency thus presented; and the Report for 1846 announced that ten missionaries had been sent to Missouri during the year, making the number then under commission twenty five. This number fell the next year to twenty The contributions continued small; and it was evident that the work was moving heavily. In 1849 the prospect brightened a little. The receipts amounted to $1,274.75; and the band of missionaries increased again to twenty five. In 1850, the number of missionaries reached its maximum, thirty three being then reported as under commission during the year. The churches had begun to feel, however, the drain of emigration to Oregon and California. In 1851, there were only twenty nine missionaries, and the receipts were less than $800. Two years later, there were thirty missionaries; and the contributions reached their maximum, amounting to $1,369.86. The State was then suffering, not only from emigration, but from European immigration, "introducing a frightful amount of infidelity, intemperance, profanity, and Sabbath desecration." The local Secretary reported, however after having made extensive tours-that "many of the most formidable obstacles to the progress of the truth were giving way. Among them Slavery, that dreadful power which paralyzes industry and enterprise, is evidently waning before the intelligence, morality, and progress by which the present is distinguished."

The aid granted by Eastern churches through this Society, was most gratefully appreciated by the brethren of Missouri; and had been, from the first, "constant, prompt, and liberal;" and yet, in 1854, the contributions received from this State amounted only to $285.53; and, notwithstanding urgent appeals for laborers, and strenuous efforts to procure them, the number sustained was less by two than during the preceding year-and this while "as many as eighty counties in Missouri, all containing a sufficient population to require missionary culture, had not been reached by the denominations that sustain this Society." In 1855, the corps of missionaries had suffered a still farther diminution, numbering only twenty four; and the contributions reported were but $256.25. Meanwhile, excitements on the subjects of slavery had been recklessly stimulated, the peace of several of the churches was seriously menaced, and now three among the most able of the missionaries have been compelled, without any good ground of complaint against them, to leave their fields of labor. Thus it is, that after thirty years of faithful and cordial effort, in cooperation with the churches of Missouri, the Society finds itself with but twenty one missionaries in the State—only one more than it had thirteen years ago—and in the receipt of less than $190 from her churches; while in the neighboring States of Illinois and Iowa, the missionaries increased—during the period from 1842 to 1855 in the one case more than two fold, from fifty to one hundred and two, and in the other more than five fold, from twelve to sixty

The religious interests of all these States have suffered from emigration, and from the influx of foreigners. In all, the Gospel has had to contend with infidelity, intemperance, the love of gain, and with the difficulties that arise from newness of settlement and sparseness of population. Missouri is inferior to neither of the others in the richness and variety of her natural resources; for, what she may want in fertility of soil, she makes up in the wealth of her mines, and in her navigable rivers. The increase of her population, for the ten years ending in 1850, was nearly 78 per cent., and that of Illinois was less than 79 per cent. What, then, is the occasion of this wide contrast in the success of reli-Why are not the churches of Missouri as numergious efforts? ous and as vigorous to-day as those of Illinois? Why are they not advancing like those of Iowa? Why is it that, in all the States south of the Ohio, a similar ill success has attended missionary operations? These questions force themselves with sorrowful emphasis upon the mind, will not be silenced, and demand of us an honest answer. That answer comes in one word, and that, one of the saddest words which an American Christian is ever called to write—Slavery. The hostile influences of this system are still felt by the missionaries, the churches, and the people of Missouri. The correspondence of this Society from that State establishes the fact of a violent endeavor, on the part of a portion of the inhabitants, to force slavery into Kansas. Nothing could well be more pernicious to the cause of religion and good morals than an effort like this. We must not suppose, however, that all the Christians of Missouri are carried away by this excitement. "I am glad to know," writes a missionary, "that probably every member of my churches is right on that subject. If the question of freeing the State from that great evil were to be tried on just grounds, they would vote, to a man, for the State to be free."

But although, as honest interpreters of the facts, we are compelled to own these serious discouragements and obstacles to the missionary work in Missouri, let it not be supposed that this Society has reached the end of its labors there. It was established as an instrument of the churches in doing the work of Christ, who sent forth his disciples to preach the Gospel to a world that was filled with slavery, and with every abomination. We are not at liberty to doubt that the Gospel is equal to its mission. The ministers sustained by this Society in Missouri are a band of truly faithful and devoted men. Their labors are arduous; and in the face of great embarrassments, they have not been left without manifest and precious tokens of the divine presence. While that is granted, the "children of Israel" must "go forward."

On the whole, the present condition of the churches is as encouraging as, under the circumstances, we could expect. We will never cease to cherish the hope, that this noble State, endowed with such magnificent natural resources, with an imperial position and a vast population, shall yet be blessed with a moral and spiritual progress in some measure commensurate with her material grandeur; nor will we be disheartened though we find that the exercise of much patience and faith is here required, ere the inheritance of the promise is realized.

MICHIGAN.

Rev. HERBERT A. READ, Marshall, Agent.

In this State, this Society has aided, the past year, in the support of seventy two ministers, and has received contributions amounting to $2,359.48. Though the year has been one of unusual mortality in this region, only one missionary has fallen; and little interruption of missionary labor has been experienced. The churches have enjoyed at least an ordinary measure of spiritual prosperity, and during the closing months of the missionary year, several of them have been visited with extensive and powerful revivals of religion.

In consequence of the aid received from abroad, in the work of church erection, more houses of worship have been secured than in any former year. An unusual number, also, are still in process of erection. Seven churches which have hitherto been dependent upon the Society have, within the year, relinquished its aid; and the number would have been considerably increased, but for the partial failure of the wheat harvest in the southern and western portions of the State. Abundant evidence appears that the institutions of the Gospel are more highly prized than heretofore, and that its hidden leaven is diffusing itself through the mass of society, which is taking its type of civilization, more and more, from the teachings of the sanctuary.

But, notwithstanding this advance in religious things, the want of ministerial labor is urgent and increasing. Of the 200 Presbyterian and Congregational churches in the State, fifty seven are without a shepherd. There are also many villages, containing a population ranging from 500 to 2,000, and rapidly increasing in importance, where there is no church or minister connected with either of these denominations. The population of the State, which now falls little short of 600,000, is increasing more rapidly than at any former period. The line of settlement, in its northward movement, has not yet reached the center of the State. More than half of the southern peninsula, and the whole of the northern is yet an unbroken wilderness. By means of the Detroit and Milwaukie railroad, which traverses the State, passing through the northern tier of settled counties, this section is brought into easy communication with the markets of the East; and as its attractions to the agriculturist are greater than those of the southern portion, it must be rapidly settled. The immense lumber trade of this region, which, the last year, amounted to $5,000,000, is also creating many business centers along the shores of the lakes, and opening avenues through which the flood of immigration will flow into the interior. The completion of a ship canal, forming a navigable connection between Lake Superior and Lake Michigan, has given a new impulse to mining operations in the northern peninsula, and must multiply fields for missionary labor. Since the last Report, a missionary has been stationed at the Sault St. Marie, and the attention of the Committee has been directed to several points in the mining region which they desire to occupy as soon as suitable laborers can be found. To supply the feebler churches in the older settlements, with the ministrations of the sanctuary, and to keep pace with the northern frontier, as with rapid strides it advances upon the retreating wilderness, will require a large accession to the missionary force hitherto employed in this State.

WISCONSIN.

Rev. DEXTER CLARY, Beloit, Agent.

The number of missionaries who have held commissions in this State, since the last Report, is eighty seven, being less by thirteen than the number sustained the preceding year. One missionary has been removed by death; but this diminution is to be attributed, chiefly, to the fact that an unusual number of laborers, in consequence of ill health and other causes, have been compelled to abandon their fields, and the Committee have found it impossible to supply their places. Of those under appointment during the year now reported, seven have preached to congregations of Welsh, one to Germans, and one to Norwegians. One hundred and fifteen churches, and about fifty congregations where churches do not exist, have been statedly supplied with the means of grace.

Since the last Report, fourteen churches have been organized in various parts of the State, and five have ceased to be dependent upon charitable aid. Two of the congregations aided have installed their ministers, and there is, in the community generally, a growing appreciation of the pastoral relation. Twenty five of the congregations of this State, which are in sympathy with this Society, are now under the care of pastors; and the Committee are accustomed to encourage those whom they assist to institute this relation at the earliest practicable period. Sixteen houses of worship have been completed within the year, and twelve others have been commenced. The whole number of church edifices in the State, owned by churches of the denominations now referred to, is one hundred, leaving seventy congregations still unsupplied. The large expenditures of the churches, for the erection of houses of worship, have temporarily embarrassed their efforts to provide for the support of their ministers, and, in some instances, have diminished their contributions to the various objects of benevolence. An additional burden has also been thrown upon the churches, as well as upon the Society, by the necessity for an increase of ministerial support; yet most of them have, during the year, relinquished a portion of the missionary aid previously received, and $1,655.62 have been contributed by congregations in this State, to the funds of the Society. The number of young men preparing for the gospel ministry is larger than at any former period, and the churches seem to be awaking to the duty and necessity of preparing their own sons to replenish and swell the ranks of their future ministry. Revivals of religion have not been as numerous or powerful as in some former years; yet in several churches there have been seasons of special religious interest, and, at the close of the year, several revivals of unusual power were still in progress.

Twenty one years have elapsed since the Home Missionary work was commenced in Wisconsin. In 1835, before a territorial government had been organized, before a single christian church had been formed, and while the footsteps of the red man were yet fresh in the soil, the vine of the Lord was planted by missionary hands; and in no other State have the fruits of this agency been so rapid and luxuriant in their growth. One hundred and seventy churches already stand as witnesses to the liberality and efficiency of this Institution, and encouragements to the continued prosecution of its work. The newer portions of the State are being rapidly settled. Its dense forests and wild prairies are becoming fruitful fields. In the space of a few months, the infant settlement grows into a thriving village, and the village expands into a city. New fields are thus opened, and new demands created for missionary labor. And, notwithstanding the efforts that have been made to keep pace with this progress, and to meet these demands, there are now in the State, chiefly in the northern part of it, fifteen counties in which there is no minister, and ten others having each but one. In that portion of the State which lies north of the Wisconsin and Fox rivers, containing about 40,000 square miles, there are but twenty four churches, sixteen ministers, and six houses of worship. This region has received a very large accession to its population during the past year. Most of these new settlers are entirely destitute of the means of grace, and, through the few missionaries scattered over this region, they send forth their affecting appeals to the sympathy of their more favored brethren.

The missionary work in this State derives both importance and difficulty from the fact that its population contains a larger foreign element than that of any other State. About one third of the adult inhabitants of Wisconsin were born in Europe. In some portions of the State, they threaten to dispossess the inhabitants of the land, and to dwell therein. In several of the larger towns, they already cast a majority of the votes. Multitudes of them are refugees, either from oppression or justice. They are impatient of all political or religious restraints, and are avowed enemies of the Church, the Bible, the Sabbath, the marriage relation, the cause of Temperance, and all kindred institutions. Most of those who adopt Protestant and orthodox creeds are enslaved to a heartless formalism, and the efforts of this Society to introduce into their churches evangelical principles of membership and discipline, have thus far met with no considerable success. Yet the effort must by no means be abandoned. The arguments and motives which heretofore have urged us to seek the salvation of these strangers within our gates, are now enforced by the warning which God addressed to the Jewish Church respecting the inhabitants of Canaan: "They shall be snares and traps unto you, and scourges in your sides, and thorns in your eyes, until ye perish from off this good land, which the Lord your God hath given you."

IOWA.

Rev. Julius A. Reed, Davenport, Agent.

Seventy three missionaries have labored in Iowa during the year, under the direction of this Society, twenty two of whom have entered its service since the last Report. The whole number of laborers sustained is greater by ten than in any previous year. Two of the missionaries, reported at the last Anniversary, have since closed their earthly labors, and entered into their rest.

Ninety six churches, and fifty other missionary districts, have been statedly supplied with the means of grace through the agency of this Society. In order to extend the privileges of the Gospel as widely as possible, the missionaries have distributed their labors, in some instances, over fields too large to be efficiently cultivated; yet by this means a great multitude who, otherwise, would not have been reached, have been furnished, though inadequately, with gospel privileges, wide regions of moral destitution have been explored, and much information gathered, respecting their spiritual wants, which, however, would be of greater value if an adequate supply of laborers could be found to occupy these opening fields.

In some particulars greater progress has been made, during the past year, than during any which has preceded it. Twenty churches have been organized in missionary fields, nine houses of worship have been completed, several others are in process of erection, and an advance has been made of about thirty seven and a half per cent. upon the pledges of last year, for the support of the ministry. The contributions of the churches of this State, to the Treasury of this Society, within the year, have amounted to $1,158.43. If the same measure of material prosperity which has been enjoyed the past year shall continue, many of the congregations which have hitherto depended largely, for their sustenance, upon the funds of this Society, will not only relinquish its aid, but become efficient helpers in sending the Gospel to the regions beyond.

The growth of this State is far outstripping the efforts of this Society for its evangelization. Of the ninety seven counties into which it is divided, only forty eight have yet been reached by this agency, and half of these enjoy, each, the labors of but one missionary. Of the remaining forty nine counties, thirty one contain a sufficient population to justify and to demand missionary culture. Twenty five churches, also, are unsupplied with gospel ministrations, and are in danger of becoming extinct for lack of a shep-A missionary in Southern Iowa thus describes the herd's care. destitutions within the limits of the ecclesiastical body to which he belongs: "This Association includes a territory of 16,756 square miles, now more or less settled. This is more than twice the area of Massachusetts. The territory of present ministerial effort comprises eleven counties, or 5,956 square miles. The territory unprovided for embraces twenty one counties, containing 10,800 square miles, and had, by the last State census, a population of nearly 40,000. Now it may safely be put at 50,000. These twenty one counties lie between the Des Moines and Missouri rivers. How are these teeming thousands to be supplied with the bread of life?" Another missionary in the western part of the State makes the following statement: "The Association embraces thirty five counties on the western slope of the State. It covers an area of about twenty one thousand square miles, with a population of about twenty thousand souls. In these thirty five counties there are four ministers who sympathize with your Society. These are able to preach statedly in eight counties, and to about one thousand souls; so that nineteen twentieths of the population are destitute, so far as our faith is concerned, of the means of grace."

Into the northern counties, the tide of immigration has flowed with unprecedented rapidity. The population of the State in 1855, amounted to 325,014; and it is estimated that 100,000 souls have found a home there within the last year. The present rate of increase can hardly fail to continue. Lines of railroad communication with the Eastern States have already reached the Mississippi river at four points opposite to this State. Two railroads extending into the interior are already in operation; and several others are in the process of construction, which will soon traverse the entire breadth of the State. Thus the fertile prairies of Central and Western Iowa will soon be brought into easy communication with the East, and will be dotted over with the homes of hundreds of thousands who will demand the bread of life at the hands of their brethren in the older States. Let the friends of this Institution accept their appropriate share of this responsibility, and gird themselves, with new zeal, to the work committed to their hands.

MINNESOTA.

The Society has had in commission in this Territory, within the year, fourteen missionaries, six of whom have been appointed since the last Report. Four new fields have been occupied, in portions of the Territory recently settled, where it is believed that the timely aid of the Society will result in the speedy establishment of self-sustaining churches. One of the posts occupied, and which is now the outpost of the missionary field in this direction, is Belle Prairie, on the Mississippi river, 113 miles above St. Paul. Near this point commence those vast pineries, which have already become a source of immense wealth to the Territory. In these forests, 600 or 700 men are employed during the winter months. Entirely destitute of the privileges of the Gospel, and removed from the restraints of religion, they are abandoned to vice and dissipation. In the summer they descend, like a pestilence, upon the cities and villages below. To follow these lumbermen to their camps in the wilderness, and to meet them as they return, with the messages of the Gospel, is one of the arduous and difficult duties devolving upon the watchmen on this northern frontier.

The missionaries in this Territory, with the people to whom they minister, are struggling with the difficulties incident to their frontier and remote position, and to a rigorous climate. The people are generally poor, and oppressed with many and heavy burdens; most of the congregations are small, and either destitute of houses of worship, or burdened with efforts to build them; yet their liberality in sustaining the preaching of the Gospel indicates their high appreciation of its value, and is an encouragement to the Committee to respond to their appeal for temporary aid. Most of the churches have made progress, during the year, towards independence, and one, it is hoped, will not be compelled to apply for further assistance. The amount received into the Treasury of the Society from this Territory is $162.98.

Minnesota is supposed to have doubled its population within the last year. The Governor of the Territory, in his late Message to the Legislature, uses the following language: "In my last annual communication to the Legislature, it was stated that the population of the Territory was about 35,000. One year has passed away since that estimate, based upon statistics then in my possession, and our population during that period has more than dou-We know, from a census taken the past season, and from statistics gathered from other reliable sources, that Minnesota contains, this day, fully seventy five thousand souls—an increase, in 1855, of 40,000, or more than one hundred and fourteen per cent. The vast amount of rich soil not yet occupied; the unsurpassed water power for propelling machinery of every kind; the extensive pineries for supplying lumber; the inexhaustible copper mines of Lake Superior; the invaluable commerce of the Mississippi, Minnesota, and St. Croix rivers; all combine, in an eminent degree, to invite population, capital and wealth; and it requires no excess of credulity to anticipate the most wonderful progress in the next five years." The most rapid immigration has been in the southern portion of the Territory, extending from the banks of the Mississippi to the Great Bend of the Minnesota. This section probably contains not less than 15,000 souls, the majority of whom arrived there during the last year, and are almost entirely destitute of the means of grace. Urgent appeals in their behalf have already been made to the Committee, and are yet unanswered. From these statements it will be seen that the time has come for greatly enlarged operations in this portion of the missionary field.

KANSAS.

At the date of the last Report, two missionaries were laboring in Kansas, and a third was under appointment. He reached the Territory in April, with a company of emigrants from Hampden Co., Mass, and proceeded with them to the place selected for the founding of a colony, on the banks of the Neosho, about one hundred miles from the Missouri border. Here he commenced his labors, which, however, were much interrupted by his own ill health, and that of his family, occasioned by exposure and privation. During the summer, sickness prevailed to such an extent that a majority of the inhabitants left the place, and the missionary was compelled to suspend his labors. Subsequently he resumed his work at Topeka, and in the vicinity; but having been twice visited by domestic bereavement, he was obliged, in March, to return to the East with the remnant of his afflicted family.

The other missionaries have prosecuted their work, without interruption, but amid manifold difficulties and embarrassments. One of these is the want of suitable accommodations for public worship. At Manhattan, in the neighborhood of Fort Riley, where a church has been organized, within the year, the congregation has worshiped in a log cabin, without floors or windows, to which, of course, the light of heaven had no access, except by avenues which would admit equally the winds and storms of winter. At Lawrence, the Hall which had been used as a place of worship was, for a time, converted into a barrack for soldiers; and the congregation was driven into a small and inconvenient private room. This difficulty, it is hoped, will soon be obviated by the liberality of the churches at the East. In other respects, also, the condition of the people of this Territory has been exceedingly unfavorable to the successful prosecution of the missionary work. Many of them have emigrated thither hastily, under the influence of excitement, and with little knowledge of, or preparation for, the extraordinary circumstances that awaited them. With limited resources, in an unsettled country, and surrounded by those in a like condition with themselves, their time, and thought, and means have been engrossed in the work of providing for their pressing physical wants, and spiritual things have been, in a great measure, forgotten. In addition to this, an intense excitement has been produced by the political events of the year. While an invading horde was hovering upon the borders, or actually encamped upon the soil of the Territory; while a question vitally affecting its future character and destiny was being decided by foreign force, against the will of the people, the community was, of course, agitated to its lowest depths. And although the state of feeling disclosed affords a guarantee, in regard to the ultimate issue, in which every patriot and Christian must rejoice; for the present, it is not favorable to the establishment of gospel institutions. Yet, under all these discouragements, the missionaries have labored on in faith and hope, and though the visible results of their labors have been small, they have done something to lay the foundations of many generations.

In these circumstances, the Committee have not deemed it expedient to send additional laborers to this Territory. But the time for such action must be near at hand. The reign of violence will be short. He who stilleth the noise of the seas, the noise of their waves, and the tumult of the people, will ere long compose these angry elements, and prepare a way among them for the feet of him that bringeth good tidings, that publisheth peace. It will be the duty of this Society, by providing a faithful and efficient ministry, to take a prominent part in making Kansas a free, prosperous, and christian State.

NEBRASKA.

Since the last Anniversary this Territory has been added to the field occupied by this Society. It was organized as a Territory by Congress, in May, 1854; but the repeal of the Missouri restriction, which formed a part of the act of organization, had the effect to direct the attention of the country and the current of emigration chiefly to Kansas. During the past year, however, several settlements have been established, principally on the banks of the Missouri, near the mouth of the Nebraska or Platte river. Early in the year, the attention of the Committee was called to Omaha City, situated on the Missouri river, opposite to Council Bluffs. It is the present capital of the Territory, and contains five hundred inhabitants. In November last, Rev. Reuben Gaylord, one of the earliest missionaries of this Society to Iowa, was commissioned to occupy this outpost. He left the field where he had labored successfully for seventeen years, to become again a pioneer in the missionary work. His labors have been commenced under encouraging auspices.

Nebraska covers an area of more than 300,000 square miles, being the largest of the political divisions of our national confederacy; and is watered by the Missouri, Platte, White Earth and Yellow Stone rivers and their numerous tributaries. A large portion of it presents unrivaled attractions to the agriculturist. A railroad will soon be completed, across the State of Iowa, to a point on the Missouri river, opposite Omaha City, connecting that distant outpost, by iron links, to the Atlantic coast. This Territory must therefore soon be occupied by tens of thousands, for whose spiritual welfare the charities and prayers of God's people will be invoked. The Committee, accepting the new responsibility thus providentially devolved upon them, have unfurled the gospel standard at the portal of this great Territory. They must look to those in whose behalf they act, to enable them to keep pace with the incoming army of occupation, as it extends its peaceful conquests over this vast domain.

CALIFORNIA.

Rev. TIMOTHY DWIGHT HUNT, San Francisco, Agent.

Four missionaries have been sent to California since the date of the last Report, and one who had been sustained by his people during the preceding year, has been commissioned to labor in another section of the State. The whole number sustained by the Society, within the last twelve months, is thirteen. All the new fields occupied are important towns in the mining region of Northern California. One of them, Iowa City, contains within a radius of two miles, about 4,000 inhabitants, where, eighteen months ago, the tall pines stood in unbroken solitude. Downieville and Shasta, where missionaries have been stationed during the year, are places of equal or greater importance, but have been less rapid in their growth. These towns, like most others in California, are peculiarly subject to sudden vicissitudes, and may lose their present

The scenes which have greeted the missionaries, at their entrance into these fields of labor, have been appalling. A community consisting of 1,000 or 2,000 souls, and which is the business center for three or four times as many miners, which has no Sabbath, or sanctuary, or preacher of the Gospel; where theaters, and drinking saloons, and brothels, and gaming houses receive more visitors, and tradesmen transact more business, on God's day, than on all the other days of the week; where not even a private Christian can be found to administer the consolations of religion at the bedside of the dying, or in the house of mourning-such a community presents little that is attractive to the eye of a christian minister, except its urgent need of gospel institutions. Yet such have been the features of nearly every field occupied by this Society in California, until the standard of the cross has been erected by the missionary. The aspects of the missionary work, throughout the State, have not materially changed since the last Report. Much hindrance has been experienced from fires, financial embarrassments, the failure of the crops, and the fluctuations incident to mining pursuits; and the churches have made less progress than they expected towards the condition of self-support. Most of them, however, are gradually increasing in their membership, their material resources, and their moral influence. A large sum has been expended, during the year, in the erection of houses of worship, and contributions, to the amount of $447.77, have been made to this Society. A striking change has already been effected in the morals of the communities blessed with the labors of the missionaries. Gambling, Sabbath-breaking, licentiousness, intemperance, and other prevailing vices have received a sensible check, and public sentiment, in regard to all subjects affecting the welfare of society, has reached a higher standard.

The Agent of the Society has made a more thorough missionary survey of the State than has ever been made before; and the information he has gathered, in regard to its religious condition and wants, is of great value. A portion of it has been given to the public in the pages of the Home Missionary. In a recent tour in the northern part of the State, several important towns were visited for which no ministerial provision has yet been made. One of them, not yet one year old, but containing, within a circle of two miles' radius, two thousand souls, supports two theaters, but no church; and its religious privileges consist of a visit from a Methodist itinerant preacher once in two weeks. In view of such destitution, and of the consequent frightful wickedness which everywhere met his view, the Agent urges the vigorous prosecution of the missionary work, at whatever expense. "Home Missions," he says, "will prove the mightiest agency of our much needed reforms, and of our development in all the elements of true social and national prosperity and glory. Establish the Sabbath, rear a church, found a school, open a lyceum and a reading room, and thus form the nucleus of a thinking, sober, religious community, and lay the foundation for a virtuous, law-abiding, God-fearing public sentiment on all our coasts, and in all our valleys, and along all our mountain streams, and in all our settlements and encampments, and who in the East would not feel less solicitude for husbands, and brothers, and sons, and sisters, and daughters now scattered over this land? What a burden will be lifted from ten thousand hearts, when it shall be known in eastern homes that, wherever the loved ones of their broken circle may wander, over our wide territory, they can not go beyond the limits of the acknowledged and honored Sabbath, nor beyond the sight of the country or village church, nor where the sound of the solemn bell can not greet them, nor where the voice of the herald of salvation can not reach them! What a burden, too, will be lifted from the church, when the universal establishment of the Gospel, in all the rich valleys, and over all the flowering prairies, and over the tops and down in the gorges of the wooded and woodless mountains, and on the banks of the bays, and lakes, and rivers, and ocean shores of California, and Oregon, and Washington, shall decide the character and destiny of their great future!"

OREGON.

Eight missionaries have labored in this Territory under the direction of the Society, during the past year, two of whom have received their commission since the last Anniversary. One of the latter sailed from New York in October last, and has taken charge of the church at Portland, which had been destitute for a year and a half; the other had labored in Oregon for many years as a missionary of the American Board of the Nez Perces Indians. He has been commissioned to minister to three churches, in the valley of the Upper Willamette, which were gathered by his labors. During a portion of the year, Rev. Harvey Clarke, who had also been employed for several years among the Indians, has been engaged in a temporary agency for this Society. He has given his attention chiefly to the exploration of the destitute portions of the Territory, and to the occasional supply of congregations for which no other provision could be made.

Three or four of the churches have enjoyed, during the year, the refreshing visits of the Spirit. But the accessions from the world have in no case been large, and the general progress of the missionary work has been slow. The peculiar hindrances which have opposed the labors of the missionaries in this Territory, have been frequently referred to in former Reports. New obstacles have arisen during the year just closed. In the early part of it, an extraordinary ferment was produced, and thousands were enticed from their homes by the reported discovery of gold in Washington Territory. Scarcely had this bubble burst, and the people returned to their usual avocations, when the storm of war burst upon them. The fierce excitement which followed the interruption of business, the desceration of the Sabbath by warlike preparations, and the departure of many to the theater of conflict, have greatly hindered the labors of the missionaries, and impaired the influence of the truth. But the good seed has been faithfully sown; truth has been widely disseminated by means of Bibles and tracts; the interests of education and temperance have visibly advanced; and a few sheaves have been gathered—the first fruits, it is hoped, of an approaching and abundant harvest. The missionaries have applied, repeatedly and urgently, for additional laborers to supply congregations already gathered, and to enter new fields. These appeals have gone forth to the churches, through the periodical of the Society; but an adequate reinforcement has not yet been found.

It is the purpose of the Committee, as soon as a suitable laborer can be procured, to occupy at least one station in Washington Territory. Rev. Mr. Hunt visited this region in the autumn, at the request of the Committee, and has communicated much interesting intelligence respecting its condition and prospects. Olympia, the capital of the Territory, situated at the southern extremity of Puget Sound, contains already about 400 inhabitants; and several other settlements, along the shores of the Sound, give promise of future importance, and will soon demand the attention of the Society. "At present," says Mr. Hunt, "there are but 6,000 people in the whole Territory. But, even now, her lumber trade is greater than that of Oregon, while the very small portion of her soil under cultivation supplies all the wants of her people, and yields a large surplus for markets abroad. We believe this Territory will yet become a State worthy of the great and honored name it bears; and I need say no more to impress you with the importance of embracing it, as soon as practicable, in the field of your missionary work.

GENERAL SURVEY.

With this record closes the thirtieth year of the labors of this Society. Having completed this survey of its operations for the last twelve months, we propose to glance, in conclusion, at some of the results which have been achieved since this work began. With noble and lofty aims, with almost prophetic sagacity, the venerable men, who originated this Society, laid its foundations, and summoned the friends of Christ to its support. Yet their vision did not compass the full magnitude and bearings of the work to which they put their hands. "The name which they gave to their Association when they baptized its infancy, with tears of believing hope," still defines the sphere of its labors; but how changed the field which that name describes! How different the Home which spreads out to our vision, from that for whose evangelization the founders of this Institution planned, and toiled, and prayed, thirty years ago! Since that time, nearly 1,000,000 of square miles have been added to our national domain, and 17,000,000 to our population. Seven States have been received to our Confederacy, containing now two and a half millions of inhabitants, and nearly equaling, in territorial extent, the twenty four States then existing. The population of the great States and Territories that lie north and west of the Ohio, and which now form the principal field of the Society's operations, has swelled from half a million to 8,000,000 of souls. Europe, too, has, in the mean time, transferred more than 4,000,000 of her people to our shores, to be saved by our fidelity or lost through our neglect. The army of emigration which then seemed pausing on the banks of the Ohio and the Wabash, has pushed on westward, across forest and prairie, and lake and river, till it has scaled the Rocky Mountains, and has founded an empire on the shores of the Pacific, whence Christianity shall go forth, completing the circuit of the globe, to bless the continent that gave it birth. Awed by these majestic movements of Providence, yet bewildered, almost, by the awfulness of the trust they impose, we exclaim: "O Lord, thou hast increased the nation; thou art glorified; thou hast removed it far unto all the ends of the earth!"

That the labors of the Society have not kept pace with the demands of the field intrusted to its care is painfully evident. That a larger measure of fidelity and zeal would not have secured far greater results, we dare not claim. In this review we find abundant cause for humiliation before God; yet we cannot survey the history and achievements of this enterprise, without fervent gratitude to him who, with instruments so poor, and by means so feeble, has accomplished a work so vast. The fields that have enjoyed its beneficent culture are in nearly every State and Territory of the Union, and extend from the mouth of the St. Croix to the Golden Gate of California. Nearly one half of the existing churches of New England have been indebted to its fostering care. In Central and Western New York, the same may be said of nearly 600 churches, comprising about four fifths of those connected with the denominations that sustain this Institution. On the Western Reserve in Ohio, nearly every church has been planted or nurtured by its husbandry. In these fields, however, to a very limited extent, this Society entered into the labors of other organizations which had been pioneers in this work. But in the farther West, very little systematic missionary effort had been attempted previous to this time. During its first year, the Society sustained the only minister, of the denominations now referred to, who was preaching the Gospel in the great Territory of Michigan, where now it can count more than 200 churches, which are trophies of its labors. By its agency, less than twenty three years ago, the first congregation of white men that ever assembled for worship on the western shore of Lake Michigan, was gathered by a missionary of this Society, within the walls of Fort Dearborn, where now stands the city of Chicago, with its 90,000 inhabitants; and within a circle 150 miles radius, drawn from that center, and in which not a single church then existed, not less than 400 have since been planted by this single instrumentality. Less than twenty one years have elapsed, since the gospel standard was first erected in Wisconsin, and now this Society is permitted to point to 170 public altars which have been reared by its hand. In Missouri, its operations were commenced at an earlier period, and and have been hindered by peculiar obstacles; yet every Presbyterian church in that State, except two or three in its principal city, has shared its bounty. It followed the advancing tide of emigration, as it swept over the prairies of Iowa, and now, after a period of less than twenty years, it finds nearly 100 churches, in that infant State, which are the offspring of its beneficence. has ascended the Mississippi, erected the standard of the Cross along its frowning bluffs and verdant slopes, till the feet of him that bringeth good tidings, and those of the adventurous pioneer, have been arrested by the dark forests that shade the upper streams of the Father of Waters. Its messengers were the first standardbearers of that peaceful army that claimed, and by the grace of God will hold, the virgin soil of Kansas and Nebraska for truth and freedom. Following in the track of our conquering armies, it embarked upon the great and wide sea, and bore the Ark of Salvation to our new-born empire on the Pacific coast. In the face of unparalleled difficulties, it has done more than any, perhaps than every other organization, to rear the religious institutions which shall bless the millions who are to inhabit those distant

In prosecuting this work, it has collected and disbursed $3,102,048.77. The number of laborers under its commission in a single year, has increased from 169 to 986; its yearly income from $18,140.76 to $193,548.37; and the fields occupied from 196 to 1,965. Under its direction 17,296 years of ministerial service have been performed; the Gospel has been proclaimed at about 4,300 stations, in thirty six States and Territories; and 137,941 souls have been gathered into churches receiving its aid. About 1,000 churches, reared by its labors, have passed from the list of its beneficiaries to that of its patrons; and among them are some of the most prominent and useful churches in the land. From tender plants, in this brief period, they have become Cedars of Lebanon. They stand, thickly planted, among the rugged hills of New England; along the great thoroughfares of travel and traffic that penetrate the interior; in the commercial centers that line the shores of our mediterranean waters; on the river sides and over the broad prairies of the remoter West, and in the rising cities of our Pacific borders. On no field of evangelical effort has the promise been more strikingly fulfilled: "There shall be a handful of corn in the earth upon the top of the mountains; the fruit thereof shall shake like Lebanon."

We gain, however, but a very partial view of the results of this Society's labors, unless we pursue them into every department and over every field of social, intellectual, and moral, as well as religious enterprise. We must trace them in those noble systems of education for which many of our younger States are honorably distinguished, and in their seminaries of learning, of every class, from the primary to the collegiate school. We must look for them in all benevolent, humane, and reformatory institutions. We must detect them in all those social and public movements by which good morals are secured, wholesome sentiments diffused, and all the higher interests of society conserved. Nay, we must follow these streams just now bursting from their fountain-head, as they flow in a thousand channels, and in ever increasing volume, through all future time.

From this cheering retrospect we would gather fresh courage for our ever augmenting work. As we turn to contemplate its claims, we find in it new elements of interest and importance. Even in some of the older Western States, a new missionary era has just commenced. That stupendous system of internal improvements, now in progress in those States, is augmenting by hundreds of millions their material wealth, and enhancing in a like ratio the importance of their religious culture. Along the line of the great thoroughfares that are spreading their iron web over those primeval solitudes, towns and villages are springing up in great numbers, and with marvelous rapidity. And as, year by year, these avenues are opened through regions yet untouched by the foremost wave of emigration; as the emigrant hosts penetrate our vast northern wilderness, and gather along the now solitary shores of our great inland seas; as the pilgrims of freedom spread themselves over the broad prairies of Kansas and Nebraska; as the gigantic forests that fringe the banks of the Columbia and the Straits of Juan de Fuca, fall before the ax of the pioneer; as the gold-seeking hordes of the Sierra Nevada crystallize into the forms of permanent society, the field of this Institution will be enlarged and its work increased. To meet these accumulating responsibilities, and carry forward this enterprise on a scale commensurate with the country's growth and wants, will call for a higher standard of liberality, and zeal, and faith, accompanied by the constant blessing of Heaven. "Hitherto hath the Lord helped us;" and his continued favor is the only and sufficient pledge of our future success. Let then the conductors and patrons of the Society gird up their loins for the labors of another year, humbly invoking the aid of him whose servants they are. "YE THAT MAKE MENTION OF THE LORD, KEEP NOT SILENCE, AND GIVE HIM NO REST TILL HE ESTAB-LISH, AND TILL HE MAKE JERUSALEM A PRAISE IN THE EARTH."

In behalf of the Executive Committee,

RELATIONS OF AUXILIARIES, AGENCIES, &C.

State and other large Auxiliaries.

Most of the State Missionary Societies were in existence before the formation of the National Society, and some of them—as the Missionary Societies of Connecticut and Massachusetts—were among the earliest organized efforts in our country for sending the Gospel to the destitute. They have voluntarily connected themselves as Auxiliaries with the American Home Missionary Society, from a conviction that greater unity of plan and efficiency in action would thereby be promoted.

The terms by which such Auxiliaries—acting on the principles of the Parent Society, undertaking the supply of the destitute within their own bounds, and paying over their surplus funds to the Parent Institution—are connected with the Parent Society, are such as to secure the following objects, viz.:

First—The Auxiliary is not superseded or overshadowed by the National Institution, but, on the contrary, is invigorated and sustained by connection with it.

This is secured by the provision that the Auxiliary is the sole agency for this cause that operates on its field. It controls all appointments in the State to which it belongs. From it alone, so far as its means will allow, the feeble churches receive assistance. Thus a direct relation and strong attachment is cherished towards it, in the hearts of the ministers and churches.

Again—while the local operations of the Auxiliary are thus encouraged and sustained, its connection with the Parent Society is such as to awaken an interest in the destitute beyond its own limits, and afford facilities for reaching them. It is not only a Society for local purposes, but it is also a branch of the National Society, and, as such, has the control of all agencies for the collection of funds within its own field, and can direct the manner in which its surplus resources shall be expended beyond its own limits. Thus, the State and other large Auxiliaries are not merely organizations to help the Parent Society; they are integral parts of it, bound together in one whole by a common interest in and free access, through the Parent Society, to the great field to be occupied, and governed by the same general principles and rules in carrying on the work.

Agents and Agencies.

Besides preaching to the destitute and taking up contributions for Home Missions, the Agents of the American Home Missionary Society exercise a general superintendence of the operations of the Society within their respective fields. By correspondence and personal visitation, they ascertain the wants of the destitute; assist them to obtain the preaching of the Gospel; and instruct and encourage them to develop their own means for its support. They receive applications for aid, and make such preliminary examination as may be necessary before submitting them for the action of the Executive Committee; and in other ways labor to insure a judicious and economical application of the Society's funds. At present the Society has in its employ no merely collecting Agents, nor any whose services are not required for other purposes in the regions where they labor. The Secretaries of several of the larger Auxiliaries are also the Agents for this cause in their respective bounds.

In certain districts, where the duties of an Agent are likely to be peculiarly responsible, there is associated with him a board of counsellors selected from the region of his labors, called an Agency. These Boards of Agency differ from Auxiliary Societies, in that they have no independent existence, but are appointed by the Executive Committee from year to year, and are governed by rules which the Committee prescribe. Their office is to counsel and direct the Agent in carrying out the principles of the Society, and to give advice in relation to such local matters as may be submitted to them by the Executive Committee. The persons composing the Board of Agency, are selected for their intelligence and interest in this cause, and their influence in promoting it; and are so distributed over the field as to secure a personal acquaintance with its condition. The Agent of the Society is also the Secretary of the Agency with which he is associated.

These boards of counsel might not have been necessary, had the ecclesiastical bodies on the ground been able and disposed to pay sufficient attention to the missionary work, and to act as its directors in their respective bounds. But the ministers composing them are usually scattered over a wide extent of territory, and meet but seldom, and only at seasons when they are not much occupied with other business; and accordingly it has been necessary in some cases to organize agencies for this specific work. But in other cases, Synods, Presbyteries, and Associations have chosen to act as Auxiliaries to the Society, examining into the condition of the destitute within their bounds, and recommending the appropriate action for their relief. Ecclesiastical bodies thus related to the American Home Missionary Society, act through

Committees of Missions.

The American Home Missionary Society has ever regarded the ecclesiastical bodies as the appropriate judges of the standing of their own ministers, and of the wants of the churches in their connection. Accordingly the commission issued to every missionary requires that his credentials be acceptable to the ministerial body of his denomination, within whose bounds he is appointed to labor. And the various Presbyteries, Associations, &c., are invited to appoint each, a Committee of Missions from its own members, to receive applications from its churches, and suggest to the Society the action proper in each case. Such a Committee constitutes the official source to which reference can be had for information and advice, in all matters pertaining to missions in the connection to This mode of cooperation has been preferred by numerous which it belongs. ecclesiastical bodies, from the first formation of the Society. It guaranties to the churches of each denomination represented in the Society, that their respective claims shall be fairly considered, with all the advantage of having the indorsement of the body to which they belong. The advice of such a Committee, acting in the name and by the direction of the ecclesiastical body to which they belong, is regarded as the highest authority in matters pertaining to the standing of ministers and churches in their connection, and has the same influence with the Society, as that of the Board of Agency appointed by itself.

There is one limitation to this influence, however, which ought to be stated.

There is one limitation to this influence, however, which ought to be stated. Should any ecclesiastical body so far swerve from the principles of truth and gospel order, as not to retain the fellowship and confidence of the great body of the Presbyterian and Congregational churches in our land, that fact would cause its recommendations not to be respected, as a basis of action, by the Executive Committee.

As cases may occur in which the feeble churches may not be aware of the existence of any Board of Agency, or Committee of Missions, through whom to apply for aid, a general provision is made, that applications may be vouched by any two ministers of known and approved standing, who can certify to the facts of the case. If the information thus given is not sufficient, other facts are sought by the Executive Committee, with as little delay as practicable, from the most authentic sources from which they can be obtained.

Such, briefly, are the relations of the American Home Missionary Society to the various organs, through which the community seeks to act out its missionary feeling. It will be seen that this plan secures the united action, in the missionary work, of those whose views of doctrine and church order admit of cooperation, and whose interests in the great field are essentially the same. This combination insures a homogeneous policy as to the manner and amount of appropriations, and the qualifications of missionaries; it has discouraged sectional feelings, and diffused throughout each part an interest in all the rest; and thus has formed ties between the West and East, along which has passed from the latter to the former, a silent and invisible current of moral influences more valuable if possible, than all pecuniary grants. At the same time the connection of the Parent Society with the various associations that act with it, is such as to secure to them entire freedom in the missionary work, in their respective spheres, and an influence beyond them, in cultivating the waste places of our common country.

Applications for Aid.

Feeble congregations, applying for aid in supporting the Gospel, are requested to embody in their application the following particulars, viz.:

The name of the church or congregation; the number of communicants, and the average number of attendants on public worship; the denomination and size of congregations immediately contiguous, with the distance to their places of worship; the total amount of salary which the applicants propose to make up, the portion of that salary which they pledge for the given time, and the arrangements that are made for securing it; whether aid is expected from any other source; and the least amount that will suffice from this Society; whether the minister for whom a commission is desired, is the pastor of the church, or if not, whether any arrangements are made or contemplated in the course of the year, with reference to his installment. These statements should be signed by the trustees and elders or deacons, or by a committee of the congregation, and confirmed by the certificates of two or more clergymen, acquainted with the facts. Also,

The name and post-office address of the minister whose services they desire to secure; whether he is a resident of the place in which he preaches, and is engaged in any other calling than that of the ministry; his credentials; and the certificate of two or more ministers of known standing, as to his general character for piety, zeal, and acceptableness, as a minister of the Gospel.

Where the ecclesiastical body with which a church is connected has a "Committee of Missions" to act in their behalf, this Committee are the proper persons to certify the statements of the church, the standing of the minister, and his prospects of usefulness in the place where his services are desired; and the application should be sent to them for their endorsement and recommendation.

Applications, after being properly endorsed and recommended, should be addressed to the care of the Agent (or Secretary of the Agency or Auxiliary) for the region where the applicants reside.

As a general rule, the appropriations of the American Home Missionary Society are for twelve months from the date of the application; at the end of which, if further aid be needed, a new application must be made, containing all the particulars above stated, and endorsed and recommended in like manner. And each congregation applying for renewed aid, should furnish, in addition to other testimonials, the certificate of the missionary, that they have fulfilled their previous pledges for his support.

The address of the Society's Agents and the Secretaries of its Auxiliaries will be found on the cover of its Reports and of the Home Missionary. Where no such medium of communication with the Society exists, applications may be sent directly to the Society's office in New York.

ADDRESSES

At the Thirtieth Anniversary.

Address of Rev. Frederick G. Clark, of New York,

ON MOVING THE FOLLOWING RESOLUTION:

RESOLVED: That the principle of personal responsibility to Christ, as pervading all departments of the work, is our main reliance for the successful prosecution of Home Missions.

MR. PRESIDENT: The theme of Home Missions, especially on occasions like this, is very apt to assume what might seem an ambitious form. Our speakers have seemed to stand far above us, on some imaginary mountain. Thence they have surveyed, as by a single glance, the vast stretch of the field. At their feet, smiling now in fruitfulness, lie those sections of our own State which to our fathers were missionary ground. Forty years ago, "The Young Men's Missionary Society," of this city, were sending the Gospel to the counties of Oswego and St. Lawrence! From such humble beginnings, to what grandeur of proportion has the work advanced! From that stand point of rational anticipation, what a scene is spread out to view! How field stretches beyond field, State beyond State, Territory beyond Territory. Away moves the restless line of empire, as if borne by magic hands. The nation is moving her tent-stakes by day and by night. Her cords lengthen continually. History seems to blend with prophecy, and, beyond the lifted veil of futurity, we are shown States numbered by scores, distances in our own home measured by thousands of miles, and people counted by tens and hundreds of millions. Our home is seen extending literally from sea to sea. Our villages and cities checker the mighty landscape. Population, agriculture, mechanic art, science, Christianity, flow triumphantly through our valleys, and rise by resistless progress upon our Alleghany and Rocky Mountain slopes. Our vast rivers are covered with mer-chandise, and with human souls. The scream of our engines startles the wilderness, and the hoarse cough of our propellers is heard far up our unfrequented streams. Imagination runs wild at the scene, and outstrips credulity in the eagerness of her flight.

We do not marvel, sir, that enthusiasm should kindle at scenes like these. And if the prophets of our national destiny should at times become extravagant under such influences, perhaps the coldest critic might excuse the fault.

But we are concerned with this scene as it presents a kingdom to be won for Jesus. By some magic wand we would gladly transform the scenery, so that it should present only a vast multitude of human souls; of souls gathered from all nations and countries—yes, and from our own firesides, too; of souls for which the blood of a Divine Redeemer has been shed; of souls for whose eternal welfare we are to put forth our earnest christian endeavors. We would shut out every aspect of this fascinating scene, which could hinder our appreciation of the gigantic work to be done for Christ. This land belongs to our Immanuel. His scepter is to be stretched over it. His throne is to be set up on it. His divine honors are to be sung by its vast multitudes. He is to be enthroned in these hearts as Redeemer and King. Righteousness is to flow along all these valleys, and to reach our mountain tops, in the fullness of its tide. Truly "there remaineth yet very much land to be possessed." And the possession is to be Christ's, through the aid of human instrumentality.

And now the problem is propounded, How shall this great work be done? How shall we prosecute the cause to its utmost completion? We would fain bid our seers to another burden. We would have them sit down to the task of estimating the military stores required for a campaign like this. Tell us, by what arithmetic we shall compute the treasures of spiritual strength, which are requisite to achieve this triumph. Measure for us the mighty sum of almsgiving, and prayer, and faith, and heroism. Picture to us the fierce struggles of truth with error, the onsets, the repulses, the pursuits, the victories. human souls shall be subdued to Jesus.

all, and tell us the sum which must be expended, before this vast domain of Ah, sir, this work in so child's play! It is easy to boast at putting on the harness. It is easy to be full of courage, when we see brilliant uniforms and plumes dancing, and banners waving. But it is another thing, to be brave when the gloss of military trappings is gone, when banners are riddled with shot, when plumes are tattered, and the army is marching weary, faint, and struggling, through the swamp and the wilderness. So it is easy for us, tonight, to exult in the prospect of this land subdued to our King. But, sir, which nerves the arm in the hour of conflict. This great work is a campaign which will test the power and endurance of the Church. Those missionary churches do not grow up in the wilderness by any magic power. Strong arms must hew the timber, dig the trenches, and rear the walls. Cares, and tears, and prayers, and struggling hopes must be laid with holy faith under each corner stone.

Upon what, then, shall we rely, as certain to secure this result? Surely no ephemeral principles will answer here. No diluted, or merely human principles will do the work. I would not insure a cause so gigantic, so long-drawn in its destiny, if it must rest on its own popularity. Will you trust it to national ambition? No, sir; that will fail. Will you trust it to any amount of personal or social influence? No, sir. Will you rely on any measure of past success; or upon any views of national or ecclesiastical expediency? No, sir, to none of these, can you intrust a cause so vast, and so peculiar in its origin and destiny. All these mere human dependencies are liable to fail you in the very heat of the conflict. God is teaching us some striking lessons on this subject, at the present time. His providence is bidding us, "Cease ye from man, whose breath is in his nostrils; for wherein is he to be accounted of?" We are being forced to the inquiry, "If the foundations be destroyed, what can the righteous do?" The landscape of christian activity is undergoing a surprising change. New features are presented. Old ones, and those with which we are most familiar, are settling down. Volcanic agencies are upheaving the surface of human opinion. Mountains spring forth suddenly from the plain. We can not be long inattentive to this changing scenery of christian activity, or we shall feel ourselves lost, and our spiritual geography out of date.

If I mistake not, the solution of this problem is indicated in our Resolution. The principle of personal responsibility to Christ is, under God, our main reliance for the successful prosecution of our work. We need this principle, pervading the enterprise in all its departments. Under its influence the work be-

Under the same influence, it must continue and end.

I will venture to represent the spirit of our Resolution, as some kind angel from the throne of God. She comes, whispering gently in the ear, "Come down from those giddy heights of observation. You have seen enough. You know the vastness of the work. Come, learn the lesson of its accomplishment." So saying, she seems to lead us aside, to a quiet spot, away from the noise, and strife, and ambition of this world. Let us patiently follow her, she will do us no harm; and her heavenly lessons may be life to us and our cause.

Following this kind monitor, I find myself in a vast area of holy motive. It is a garden inclosed. The wordling never comes there. To him the theme is all a mystery. This influence is as the "hidden manna" of the Apocalypse, and the "white stone, and in the stone a new name written, which no man knoweth, saving he that receiveth it." The scenery of this sacred spot has two central points. Each is eloquent. One is Calvary; the other the "Great White Throne!" One is the cross; the other, the scepter of judgment. At the one, I see Jesus crucified; his mild eye bent on me, and seeming to say:

"'This have I done for thee! What doest thou for me?"

By this agony and blood you are mine—bought with soul-throbbings, and tears, and death!" Here, I learn to say with the sainted Schwartz, "Soul, remember what it cost Jesus Christ to save you!"—and with the Apostle, "He died for all, that they which live, should not henceforth live unto themselves, but unto him which died for them, and rose again." Thus do I feel myself bound to that very cross by the great cord of dying love, and by the countless strands of divine sympathy and grace. These heavenly influences, issuing from the cross, seem to enter my very soul, and to pervade my whole being. I am carried away by the measureless claims of divine love, until I exclaim with the christian poet:

"But drops of tears can ne'er repay
The debt of love I owe;
Here, Lord, I give myself away,
'Tis all that I can do!"

But as yet this principle is only half-developed. I look up, and behold that "great white throne," and the Judge sitting there. The earth and the heavens have fled away, and no place is found for them. In view of that throne, I am charged to be faithful, "before the Lord Jesus Christ, who shall judge the quick and the dead, at his appearing and his kingdom." I find that inquisition is to be made as to my fidelity. The eye of the heart-searching Jesus is on me, measuring my deportment towards every claim, every bond, every obligation. Wherever Christ's cause is impoverished, or in sorrow, I see only Jesus in person; I must visit and succor him. Ah, mysterious relation of my soul to Christ! Here at once, a three-fold bond holds me to his patient service. Its strands are the Redemption, the Sovereignty, and the Judgeship of Jesus! This, then, is the principle, and the only one, to which we dare commit our cause. The argument in its behalf need not be protracted. The pious heart grasps it, in every throb of its holy emotion. Time would fail to spread it out, to-night.

Were I to attempt the plea, my first argument would be the very simplicity of the principle—that, which with some, might prejudice the case. Great things are simple. The all-controlling agencies of nature are simple. Its manifold phenomena depend upon the operation of a few simple principles. Our physical necessities depend on simple things. Condiments and viands are not to be compared with bread; nor wine with water. A simple principle in philosophy will strike right and order throughout the entire system. Give the soul one simple principle of undoubted authority, and it will go long and far in the light of it.

We too easily forget the axiom of this heavenly science of doing good. We are like the astronomer, who, in the exaltation of success, should despise to use the first principles of mathematics. He becomes involved in hopeless confusion. Yesterday his towering intellect may have walked among the stars. To-day he falls to the earth in failure and shame. The novice in the science, who carries along his first principles, will soon outstrip the philosopher, who outgrows the memory and the use of his axioms.

So, sir, do we need to have our eye single, if the whole body is to be full of

Yet is it not true, that there is a fearful tendency in us to the adulteralight. tion of principle? Whatever may be our starting-point of holy action, do not the pure principles of Christianity too easily become mixed? They are diluted with philosophy, expediency, social and ecclesiastical expediency, until it would require a nice analysis to discriminate between the divine and the human, in our motives of action.

I plead for this principle, also, that it is divine, and therefore perpetual in its working. It is the creation of God's Spirit in the soul of man. It has to do with fixed and immutable things. Its bearings are all taken with reference to the cross and the judgment throne. It is entirely independent of earthly relations and contingencies. It is superior to all fluctuations of popularity, expediency, or encouragement. Times may change, but this principle abides the same. Measures, policy, the currents of popular feeling may change; but responsibility to Christ is a principle as immutable as the throne on which he will sit in judgment. Human principles, merely, are like wells dug in rainy seasons, ample in spring-time, but dry in the drought of August. But divine principles, springing from the mountains of eternal truth, are perennial streams of holy motive. The hotter the sun, the more copiously do the dissolving snows give forth their streams of water, to be the life and joy of the land. Thus, in some countries, there are summer freshets. So divine principles flow to us all the more richly, and with a higher appreciation, when merely human plans and principles are found to fail, and thus prove their ephemeral nature.

As a divine principle, the spirit of our resolution brings us into sympathy with its Author. It is the providence of God in the soul, corresponding to the march of his sublime purposes without. It identifies us with Christ, and his work with ours; and enables us to realize our high destiny as laborers together with God. Dependence on God will thus be ever realized. The Church will understand and develop the responsibilities of faith, and at every stage of her work will ever occupy an humble posture before the mercy-seat. Thus faith and works will go on at equal pace, until they reap their mutual reward.

This principle is essentially cross-bearing, and for this reason is our main re-It rests upon the words of Jesus to every convert, "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily and follow me." This is the first lesson of our discipleship. It is a lesson, too, which we may never forget or outgrow. I believe, sir, there will ever be something heroic in earnest Christianity. It is so under all skies, and in all circumstances. For such a type of piety is sure to find a cross in its way. Our border missionaries, who set up the outposts of the kingdom, and who toil and suffer there, are he-Yes, sir, to many of them I would apply the epithet in its higher sense. Our missionary wives are heroines. God only knows what they do and suffer, for his cause. Their heroism is unnoticed by earth; but I believe it draws the admiring gaze of heaven. There is heroism, too, in many an humble home where toil, and self-denial, and faith, and patience are blended, to furnish their annual tribute to this cause. I would gladly lead you to one such home, which I have in mind. You should see the utmost simplicity of life and manners. You should find a style of living which would be despised in many a fashionable christian family. But, sir, you should find a deep-fixed principle of responsibility to Christ, which will ever bear its fruit, though no Agent come, and no outward influence be exerted.

Give us this spirit, then, and our cause will never decline. Install this heroism, this readiness to do, to suffer, to wait, in all departments of this work; let us have it in the office of our Secretaries, in our pulpits, in our homes, at our distant missionary stations-everywhere, whither our labor and our influence are to go, and the work will never stop, for any hardship or sacrifices.

Finally, this principle is essentially Home Missionary. True Christianity develops in the heart, and thence works outward in widening circles, to the utmost shore of influence. The pebble cast into the lake can cause by one movement the concentric ripples to hasten to the bank, So Christianity follows patiently in the channels of natural sympathy, finding there its path of duty, and its most obvious development of responsibility. It is guided in this course by the harmonious lessons of Scripture, which say to those possessed of heavenly knowledge, "Come thou and thy house into the ark." "Teach them to thy children." "Go call thy husband and come hither." "Believe, and thou shalt be saved, and thy house." "Go home to thy friends, and tell them how great things the Lord hath done for thee."

Always doubt that piety, sir, which does not shine at home, and bear its grateful testimony at the fireside. True religion will pass from heart to heart in the sacred channel of home affection. It is a morbid religion which develops, fungus-like, all in one direction, over-leaping home and its sacred claims, to spend itself only on distant objects. It will, indeed, reach every interest, and in due time light up every field with its glow. It will encircle the earth with its sympathy, and alms and prayer. But its growth will be symmetrical. From the fireside it will extend regularly outward by rapid development, finding in neighbor and fellow-citizen only a brother, and in country only the home, whose roof is the sky, and whose side-walls God has placed far asunder. Thus a simple piety, at work to discharge its responsibilities to Christ, is found to be the highest form of patriotism.

This, then, Mr. President, I would propose as our main reliance in this cause. Acting out this principle we shall ever be found following the cloud of providence through whatever stretch of wilderness it may lead. Our chief want in all this work, ever has been and ever will be, the simple principle of love and obligation to Jesus, a spirit like our Master's, producing forbearance, love, zeal, and patient continuance in well-doing. Let this be in us and abound, and we shall never be unfruitful. Possessed of this principle, we shall never tire in our work—never ignore our obligations to this cause, through any pressure of other interests, never lay down our arms, till we are ordered by the Captain of our salvation to exchange toil for rest, faith for sight, and temptation for the security and crown of heaven.

Address of Rev. Horace James, of Worcester, Mass.,

ON MOVING THE FOLLOWING RESOLUTION:

RESOLVED, That the work of Home Missions, being essentially the work of the Gospel, furnishes a basis upon which the most stately conservation and the most thorough reform may coöperate in the unity of the Spirit and the bond of peace.

Mr. President: It is the single aim and sublime purpose of your Society, as set forth in its published documents, to bring this entire land of ours under the powerful and benignant influence of the Gospel. You, sir, will cheerfully acknowledge this to be its holy mission. Those on whom it especially devolves to perform its labors, in all the different departments, claim for themselves, and boldly claim, that they are doing on this field the precise work of the Gospel, no less, no more. On this they ground their expectation of the sympathy and support of the christian community.

This is as it should be. This is the secret of your increasing influence with the churches. The American Home Missionary Society could not report nearly two hundred thousand dollars as passing through its Treasury, and one thousand missionaries as performing its christian labors, in a single year, did not its numerous benefactors, all over the land, believe, at least, that it is directly and efficiently hastening the triumph, throughout this whole area, of the glorious Gospel of the blessed God.

If you should ever descend, brethren, from this high vantage ground, a chilling distrust of your operations would begin to creep over the public mind; your short-comings would be discussed in the religious journals and in the private conferences of those who love God and an unbound word; funds would begin to be withheld, and men would boldly talk of coming up, in the strength of united and indignant suffrage, to restore to our beloved Society the defenses it had abandoned. Sir, it is the safety of such an organization as this, its only safety, ultimately, to stand squarely and unequivocally upon the gospel platform. And therefore the very work in which we are engaged invites us, as we meet again to-night in joy, to refresh ourselves with a view of those eternal principles on which our enterprise is based.

The resolution just read alludes to a double work, one to be wrought in opposite directions, combining the elements of high conservatism and radical reform, not in a way to contradict or to neutralize each other, but to give instead wholeness, beauty, efficiency, point and prevalence to the truth. My intelligent hearers must have noticed that most things which are by constitution truly beautiful or great, result from a union of apparently antagonistic forces held by each other in mutual repose. Equipoise is the law of the pendulum, the law of the tides as they gracefully rise and fall, the law of the winds and of the waves. The heat of the tropics is matched by the ice of the poles; winter is confronted by summer, day-light by darkness, and deluge by drought. January and July keep guard of frost and fire upon the out-posts of the year. In mechanics, action and reaction; in vital functions, renewal and waste; in economics, demand and supply; in magnetism, the positive and the negative; and in celestial motions, gravitation and centrifugal force, continually restrain each other; and ceaseless harmony is the result of their ceaseless antagonism.

The Gospel, also, has a two-fold voice, though its deep meaning is ever one. It comes to us from that Divine Being who mingles mercies and judgments together for our discipline; who gives to us free-will under the condition of absolute dependence; who allures by promises, and warns by imprecations; and who has prepared both a prison-house and a paradise, in which may be developed forever the eternal distinctions between right and wrong. And therefore it is fitting that the divine system of truth and salvation should combine a variety of forces, and propose to itself a compound result. The first object of the Gospel is to secure personal holiness. But organic changes follow next, and are requisite to its free course and full development. It first regenerates the man; and then, through him, reforms society and per-

In doing this work it exhibits a wonderful conservatism. Its cardinal design is the conservation of eternal interests, the soul's great salvation. It comes to plant, to build, to reap, and gather into the garner of God. It comes to lift up the hands that hang down, and confirm the feeble knees; to establish on an immovable foundation whatsoever things are true, honest, just, pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report. The holiness of Deity is infinitely and eternally glorious; and a sweet savor of it is shed by the Gospel along the paths that human feet have trod. The light of heaven reflected from Gethsemane and Calvary, gilds the entire panorama of human history, and throws upon the whole picture a nameless charm. No conservatism exists like that of the Gospel. Nothing can so embalm an evanescent grace, or fix a changing excellence. Whatever has been done on earth to satisfy the longing of the heart for rest, to meet the aspiration of the true man for deliverance from continual fluctuation, from unprincipled and unscrupulous compliance with the ever varying demands of selfishness and sin, has been done by the Gospel; and the sweet heaven, up to whose supernal glory the Gospel undertakes to lift us, and with us a lost but ransomed race, is an abode in which is to be gathered, rank upon rank, all the perfected goodness and blessedness of the universe. The stately conservatism of the Gospel finds its completion and fulfillment amid the splendors of the New Jerusalem.

Not less true is it that the Gospel discovers a powerful element of reform. Its first work in the soul is to overthrow the fundamental law of its existence and action; inaugurating a reform so vital, so deep, so radical, as to be compared in the Scriptures to the most violent changes we are acquainted with in nature. Creation, birth, death, and crucifixion are terms none too strong to convey to us a just conception of it. The work of reform, once begun, must ever move on. The Gospel, striking all the while at the sins of the individual, gives him no rest, except in the putting away of every thing offensive to God, or injurious to man. It continues to renovate and change him from grace to grace, and glory to glory, until he comes unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ.

What the Gospel does for the individual, the same will it do for society. It first works out its proper results upon one man and one woman who are united in the guidance of a household, and through them reforms the whole family. It affects a large number of families, and so gains power with a community. It lays its hand next upon institutions, gives law to organizations, modifies governments, dictates to kings and princes, and confidently sets its simple utterance against all the mandates of earthly authority. It aims at nothing short of the absolute annihilation of all wickedness. It cuts off remorselessly every practice or precept that is not coıncident with the law of love. It makes a clean sweep through all departments of thought and effort. It explores every corner of the universe; and there is not a loophole of retreat in all the government of God where the smallest sin can hide itself away from gospel scrutiny and gospel malediction. Nowhere but in that world into which shall in no wise enter any thing that worketh abomination or maketh a lie, can the searching reform of the Gospel survey the ground with satisfaction. Its truest type on earth is the soldier of the cross striving against sin; its antitype is heaven. Here then, at last, on the plains of Paradise, do christian conservatism and christian reform lovingly meet and embrace. Here, at least, they keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace.

Now, why, in the name of our common Christianity, may they not do the same on earth? Is the Gospel one thing here and another there? or is it the same, yesterday, to-day, and forever? And if it be ever the same in principle and power, in compass and sweep, ought we not to obtain our ideas of what it is and what it can do, by looking forward to the period of its triumphant success? And ought we not to bring back from thence some portion of that holy boldness and joyous faith, which may make it, even in our puny hands, an instrument of almighty power?

Ah, christian brethren and fathers, here has been, I fear, the fault and weakness of our times. We have taken our pattern from Patriarchs or Reformers, who, though very good men, did only half comprehend the divinity and spirituality of the Gospel instead of diving into the lower depths of that Gospel, to bring up thence the riches of salvation for the healing of the nations. We have thought to go down into Egypt for horses, when we have at hand the chariot of Israel and the horsemen thereof. We need not grieve and mourn as if we were weak in our appointments and defenses. We have in our hands a perfect remedy for the world's wickedness, a perfect instrument for the world's regeneration, if we will only dare to use it. The Gospel, for purposes of aggression and conquest, has far mightier weapons than its foes. It can grapple with evil, with all evil, and, in the name of the Lord of Hosts, can lay low this Goliath with a smooth stone from the brook, and then leap upon the giant, draw forth his own sword from its scabbard, and with it cut off his head.

Oh, sir, if all professedly christian ministers should preach the Gospel in the true spirit of it, and the whole Church of God should apply the Gospel in the full power of it to whatsoever doth offend or work iniquity, sin would disappear before it like stubble before devouring flame. Only let the world hear Christ's own Gospel, from the lips of his servants, without any tame withholding of it, or any ignoble trimming to the breeze, through fear or favor of man; aye, if you please, let the world be faithfully addressed by just those truths that are "calculated to receive the approbation of all evangelical Christians," and it is enough for us. We will ask no more. Nothing more than this is needed, with God's blessing, to spread millennial glories over the earth.

And this result will follow, in accordance with the well-attested principles, that the higher law must always overbear and subjugate the lower. The blood flows upward now in the arteries of my arm, in spite of gravitation; and the flesh upon your faces is fresh and beautiful to-night, because the superior law of physical life has suspended the laws of natural decay. The stronger principle has triumphed. So is it with the Gospel. In the realm of morals it is the highest known law, the highest possible. God never made a higher, and (I speak it reverently) he can not make a higher. Every thing, therefore, which is not pure and holy must go down before the Gospel. The law of selfishness, the law of gain, the law of tyranny, the laws of political affinity and of social intercourse, the law of sect, and the code of honor must all succumb to it, for they are only its vassals. Every thing in the great realm of responsible life is subject to God's law, and must do it homage. For every plant which my Heavenly Father hath not planted shall be rooted up.

Would you, then, do the work of God in the strife against the powers of darkness, pour upon them the light of divine knowledge and the warmth of infinite love. A focus of rays from the sun of righteousness will melt down sin, though it be of adamantine hardness. It matters not if it be intrenched behind time-honored constitutions and compromises, or be authorized by an habitual practice, "whereof the memory of man runneth not to the contrary," yet is the simple Gospel more than its peer. It makes no difference if it be upheld by all that is grasping in human selfishness, and be defended by all that is brutal in human passion; or if it be surrounded with the embellishments of genius and the sanctions of what is miscalled religion; still must it perish in the consuming fires of eternal truth. This magnificent work the simple Gospel can do, while nothing else can. Infidelity can not do it; because she never did any thing alone, but rage and boast, and make herself intensely disagreeable, by her lofty pretensions and her absolute impotence. Societies for moral reform, merely, can not do it; for they only pare off the skin of the apples of Sodom, but cut not to their core. Laws and courts can not do it; for their whole efficiency depends upon the moral support of a christian public sentiment. Nothing can do it; nothing under heaven, but that Gospel, which connects all passing events with the sanctions of eternity, and illumines the awful front of sin and death with the wonderful love of God incarnate.

Let no man say, then, that certain evils of society are exempt from our sphere, and beyond our reach; that the Gospel does not touch them; that we may not meddle with them; that Christianity has nothing to do with them, but they must be left to other influences, must be turned over to other agencies. Preposterous idea! If the Gospel, faithfully administered, does not reach and remove these evils, then it is because they are not evils, but good things that have a right to be protected and cherished. Whatever opinions or practices flourish and grow strong beside the altar of our holy religion, have a right to flourish. If the Christianity of the Bible spares them, then no destroying angel will ever pour out on them the vials of wrath. Polygamy, intemperance, slavery, sectarianism, party rancor, and the greed of gain are either fruits of the Spirit that ought to be encouraged and strengthened by the Gospel, or they are the offspring of hell, which it ought to consign in judgment to the deepest damnation. Certainly, there is no escaping from the principle that whatever the Gospel does not condemn, has vindicated its right to live, and whatever is not fit to live, it will destroy. Let nothing be tabooed, when holy prophets and apostles come to reap down the world's harvests.

Sir, this is, in practice, no intricate matter. It all lies in the palm of your hand. Your Society goes forth to carry the Gospel to lost men. This whole sisterhood of christian institutions is professedly doing the same. Of this they are making joyful proclamation this very week, from day to day, and from assembly to assembly. On no other basis could they maintain a Christian standing for a moment. Well, then, let them preach that Gospel just as it is, throughout their combined agencies. Let them print it, circulate it, apply it, and act it out, in universal love. Let them pray and write; let them trade, and vote, and speak in the spirit and power of it. Let them give it place, its own place. Let them give it all the scope and authority which are its own. Let it go forth to men in heaven-sent freedom. Let it antagonize and fraternize just as it will, in obedience to its own inherent constitution. Give it a clear field and a fair opportunity, and if it will not answer the purpose, if it is incompetent to do the business of purifying the world from all unrighteousness, then we will own that the Gospel is a failure, and Christians are a set of deluded fanatics. If the Gospel is to be confined to Sunday services, and to deal only with men in their personal experiences, while it leaves all untouched whole systems of abominable and outrageous wrong, both in the Church and the State; if commerce and its journals—if politics and its partisans, are to restrict the christian ministry, and dictate to the christian Church, crying out "great is Diana of the Ephesians" because their craft is endangered, then we might as well hang our harps upon the willows, and weep life away in vain regrets over a world, to which is reserved the blackness of darkness for ever.

But, sir, I have not so learned Christ; and I humbly submit the question whether this be not the grand failure of our christian enterprises. If we distort that which is infinitely beautiful, if we weaken that which is the perfection of strength, if we defile that which is the ideal of moral purity, shall we wonder that the poor, dumb, crippled thing, that we miscall the Gospel, does not convert the world in a trice? Oh, my brethren, it is ourselves that need converting; we who preach and pray, we who organize and marshal these forces. Christian Church, throughout its whole membership, needs to be baptized into a higher life, and a more inspiring knowledge of the word and will of Christ. We ourselves are more than half responsible for the monstrous evils and errors before which we have fainted and fallen. They have appeared like Anakims in our eyes, and we have seemed like grasshoppers in our own. In esteeming the Gospel weak, we have made ourselves so. The motley crew of anti-Bible reformers, that, with cheeks protuberant, are blowing their tiny horns and calling them gospel trumpets, would lose their occupation, if the world should hear from all the regular trumpeters "a certain sound." German infidelity in the West has imbibed its strongest prejudice against the truth, from the siding of European evangelism with a tyrannous and grinding aristocracy. The Irish emigrant hates Protestantism the more cordially, when he associates it with the oppressions of his native land, and I verily believe, though I grieve to say it, that the well-meant, but mistaken endeavors of good men to palliate and apologize for our country's great wrong to the African race, have directly tended to make vast multitudes of men scout and deride the Gospel as a contemptible

But, brethren, we are persuaded better things of you, and things which accompany salvation to our land, though we thus speak. Your brave utterances, in behalf of oppressed millions have thrilled in the heart of a grateful constituency, and I bear to you to-night, from a New England State, of which I am proud to be a son, and which has furnished substantial tokens of her interest in this Society,* her most affectionate congratulations. Your missionaries, half of them in the West, and the other half nearly equally divided between the Eastern and the Middle States, with a mere sprinkling of them in the whole South, show significantly enough by their very distribution, if not who need their services, at least who appreciate them. It is not adulation to say that your devoted missionaries, as a body, are as fully penetrated with the spirit and power of the Gospel, as any who preach it; more so, probably, than we are, whose lines are fallen to us in pleasanter places, and amid more hallowed christian enjoyments and associations. But the light of the moon shall yet be as the light of the sun, and the light of the sun shall be sevenfold, as the light of seven days.

Yes, you have done a great work; but I see a grander work before you. I see it and hail it from afar. God's holy kingdom cometh. Through clouds, darkness, and storms, onward it cometh, in the might of a conqueror. Slowly but surely, unhasting, unresting, still it cometh.

"For sometimes glimpses on my sight,
Through present wrong the eternal right:
And step by step, since time began,
I see the steady gain of man."

The distant tread of advancing millions, like low rumbling thunder, is borne to our ear. Our finer sense catches ærial whispers, of which the very air is full. They bid us take heart. They sweetly assure us by saying, "Lo! I am with you always. Go preach my Gospel; clothed with its full panopoly, your hearts throbbing with its mighty impulses, your step resounding to the majesty of its triumphs. Go Preach MY GOSPEL." Lord, we obey.

Address of Rev. Lyman Whiting, of Portsmouth, N. H.,

ON MOVING THE FOLLOWING RESOLUTION:

RESOLVED: That the Home, which it is the care of this Society to supply with the Gospel, demands our regard, for its sublime extent and encouraging aspects.

Mr. President: The word Home in the title this Society bears, has not, as I remember, been much spoken of lately; and in order to make its meaning keep pace with the growing expanse in space and interests it is made to cover, it seems to me worth while to say a little about it.

Do you remember, sir, whether, when these foundations were laid, the surveyor was abroad? and had any of the fathers then seen a prairie, or gazed upon the Father of Waters from his western bluffs? No doubt they had, sir; for the width of the land was opening on many a brave eye; and in pious courageousness, these arms of mission love were opened, knowing what a household of churches might, by Jesus' governing grace, be made to sit together in the heavenly places it was going forth to prepare. Oh, sir, what a Home has it become! Nations may sit down by its fireside, and kneel in peace at its family altar! No other home, so ample and so free, short of "mother dear, Jerusalem!"

If the term American, in any sense describes the intentions of this mission, they cover an area of seven and a half million of square miles. The British Isles possess a surface of less than one eighth of one million of miles; that is, this Home Mission domain would take in about sixty kingdoms of Great Britain. But if the latitude of 50° north be taken as its limit, below which latitude the Republic is chiefly found, our extension comes down to an area equal to thirty Great Britains!

And what is this immense domain—the Home of these Missions? Is it a Sahara, or a morass? a tropic plain, strewed with the ashes of the sun, or a polar field, crusted with glittering snows? Neither, sir; but rather, such a piece of garden-land as the world nowhere else possesses. "A land of brooks of water," and truly, "a land in which thou mayst eat bread without scarceness" it is. Hills and valleys adorn it; mountains and plains it has which would have swallowed up Shinar, and dwindled Babel to a mole-hill! Rivers in gentle channels, offer their serviceable currents to some part of every fifty miles square; and a bunch of inland seas hang, like a cluster upon the stem of mountains, which stretch down the land like a row of tent-poles, whose curtains are fertile vales, and majestic plains, sloping down to oceans and to measureless valleys! Canals, too, plod their tiresome courses between far-divided cities, joining them by waterlines longer than was the march of Alexander, from the shores of the Hellespont to the banks of the Issus. Then, in mazy tracks, the iron roads chase about over rivers, into and through mountains, up stream, down stream, north and south, east and west, backing up into grim quarries and jagged timber-lands, across fenceless corn-fields and blooming cotton-fields, through prairie and plantation-everywhere the hurrying foot of man would go. Sixteen thousand miles of these ringing rails are spiked down over the land-enough of them to cross Great Britain into squares of about twenty six miles each; and making together, as much length of road as all the rest of the world possesses. Thus much on the surface. Above it a few feet in the air, are stretched thirty five thousand miles of iron strings; gasping and whispering in such authority, that millions of dollars, and events much bigger than dollars, are moved every day at their bidding. The national brain indeed, seems to be getting on the outside of the skull; and truly "lines of thought" have come to be something more than rhetorical figures! Call this a glance at the ground plan of the "Home" we are speaking of. Now, for a moment, in the interior of its elevation.

Survey, first, the 36,221 enumerated church edifices, with sittings for about 14,000,000, or for less than two thirds of the dwellers in our land; then, of colleges, 137; professional schools, 130; and surrounding these, innumerable common and private schools. Then, each week, above 2700 different newspapers and periodicals, using the learning of these schools, are sent about the land.* These we may call the fixtures, the permanent furniture of this great "Home;" and yet, great as it is, so vast is the nation's growth, that the immense western line of occupation is every year pushed a quarter of a degree toward the setting sun. The "hardly bestead and hungry" from all nations cry out, "Come, and let us go up to this good land." What a wide, a friendly home they find it! And, sir, its place in the procession of Jehovah's plans is as impressive as any feature How many centuries it lay hidden under the palm of his hand, until the eternal counsels at work in the Old World, had made the race ready for a new, fresh world. Then it was laid open, a kind of second Testament for the nations, supplemental and more glorious than the first-the older hemisphere a realm of law-fierce, sensitive law, from the thrones of empire and the peasant's hut, keeping watch and ward. Sir, herein is a sublime symbolism, a true historic mystery. As the revelation from God progressively opened to man, and as it paused in the completed Canaan of the first covenant, and as the glorious Gospel of Christ, the Lord, came in another period, a separate, yet vital and more glorious part of the divine inspiration; so the face of the earth progressively opened in its first known hemisphere, to the occupancy of man; and when that dispensation of empire was ended, a reserved hemisphere is brought forth, a true gospel reservation, on which to complete the glorious purposes for which the world was made. From the sight of the perpetuated races it long lay hidden; until the apparatus for life in it—so to say—could be got ready; until the steam-gush had been schooled to its box of steel, and trained to toil with wheel and axle; and keels for the ocean's paths had been fledged with fleeter than fabled wings; and too, until the touch of a finger could toss a sentence, even though filled with destinies, across the land; and, until that Titan, the printing press, could outequal the hundred-handed Briareus, flinging its glowing scrolls all abroad.

Oh, sir, what an apostleship of powers are these! And were they not got ready for the ministry of this new Testament of empire? Behold, Jehovah Jesus makes all things new. Extent of space and extinction of distance he begins with. Never so huge a land waving a single banner; never such swift and powerful forces for knowing a land put into the hand of man. Providence almost forsakes its ancient ways, transcends its older courses; for nations, in a day, wheel in the marches of present providences, rather than as of old, slowly turning as centuries transpire.

Sir, with joy we declare it, these all preëminently are Christ's. He is the Mediator and Executor of this new empire covenant. Behold, he makes a new earth indeed; and over it, by countless hands, the curtains of this benign mission of good will to the dwellers in it, are spread and upheld. To Him belong these lakes and rivers, these canals and roads; upon them he is going from victory to victory; and along them go his messengers, sowing the good seed of the kingdom on every side. His they are, for he made them; for him they willingly, or unwillingly, work. Not a piston-stroke of the engine but propels the world toward his cross; not a turn of the myriad-lettered cylinder but speeds on the angel, flying with the everlasting Gospel, to preach to every nation, and tongue, and people. Oh, sir, what an age for toil, and what forces the Court of Glory has subsidized to help the toiler; and the work is all at home! Without dipping the sole of our foot in foreign waters, or going from the sound of mother tongue, a score of millions can hear our testimony for Christ. Nay, "Mission" scarce it is. From every end of the earth they come flocking unto

Does not such a home claim honor, devotion, and love? If in Jacob's tents Jehovah loved to dwell, because his name and mighty deeds were there kept in mind, shall not Jacob's children love the land, in which the foundations for his kingdom are so manifestly planted? Sir, what motives these are to us, to keep entire this field for common toil, as it is given to us; one, open field, for our co-working with Jesus Christ. How jealously should every invading partition and boundary question about this broad family mansion be watched! Fellow-laborers for Christ, shall we ever let our forms, or platforms, be turned into ecclesiastical fencing-stuff, to cross and choke up the king's highway! Oh, sir, the world of souls already here, moan forth their rebukes of every ungracious, envious meum and tuum, stopping the word of life from its mission of eternal redemption to them.

Let a single parable instruct us against such interceptions. In earlier days, in the county towns of New England stood many a noble, roomy, family mansion. A smile of welcome seemed to greet you, from the wide threshold and genial windows, and generous cheer always awaited the guests within. But, in the march, or rather the madness, of modern improvement, a good many of these generous, old homes, have been cut up and partitioned into six by these generous, old homes, have been cut up and partitioned into six by ten pigeon holes, to be let out to penny-paying tenants. This, of course, just spoils the grand old mansions. Half the rooms are robbed of sunrise, and the other half of sunset; and, worse than that, these "cabined, cribbed, confined" boxes, get no fresh air; and so, bad distempers creep into them. There's no ventilating the little wheezy closets, and a constant racket of coughs and rheumatisms, is all the time going on there; and an elsewhere decently-disposed fever once getting hold, stiffens up, straightway, into malignant. No sunshine -no good air there; what should hinder?

Mr. President: Let us beware. To the last mite of faith, and patience, and love, let us defend this dear Home Mission family mansion, from such an ignoble fate. It is too bad, to spoil a lovely christian homestead, in such a way. What! a soul of us all, knowing the boundless love of Jesus, and want to turn the noble capitol of the Mission Republic, into a denominational baracoon, or a theological model lodging-house! cut up into dark entries, and labeled chambers, with grim posters over the doors, warning off members of the family who love the kingdom, and the blessed Lord of it, with all their hearts!

Will the Divine Master come and take up his abode with us, if we thus de-Will the Divine Master come and take up his abode with us, if we thus deface and mar the gates of his praise, by our jobbing and underletting schemes? Oh, sir, in the name of his great love, let us do no such thing. We are blind enough, and sickly enough already; but if we thus abuse our noble homestead, we shall grow more blind, and sickly, and lame, till no soundness is left in our bones. We want this wide mission field open. The sweet airs of heaven need to blow through it, upon us all; and the "Light of the World" shining in it, to give "light unto all that are in the house." We would have the beams from the day-spring from on high, streaming through the eastern windows, and gilding the western waters, and we want the sweet solace of setting day, to deck our eastern hill-tops; and the north wind, and the south wind, to come and blow upon all our gardens, that the spices thereof may flow out. Don't let us hang up a single curtain, to shut out those beauteous beams, and fragrant winds, and to chill the dear intercourse of souls bought, all alike, with the precious blood of the Lamb!

And, sir, if we are careful, thus never, in the least, to reënact the mournful sight of the soldiers parting the vesture, and upon the raiment casting lots; if we will make "our work in the Lord," one of "union sweet, and dear accord," soon, the churches fed from this bounty, shall deck the land like the stars of vesternight, and this mission shall be a bow of promise, spanning this wide

The order for his work is, Onward. The banner-legend is: "Speak unto the people that they go forward." Victories, yea triumphs, await the sacramental host, just so long as diligent valor inspires their march. Oh, sir, what a "Home" this shall be when dotted over with Zions of which, when he writeth up his people, it shall be said, "this, and that man was born there." Then, the Highest himself shall establish her—then, glorious things shall be spoken of thee, my native land, almost A City of God!

CORRESPONDENCE

Between the American Home Missionary Society and the General Assembly.

The substance of the following paper has already appeared in print. It is important, however, that the facts and the principles elucidated in this document should be in the possession of all the friends of the Society. We therefore give it a place in the columns of the Home Missionary.

The General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, at Buffalo, 1853, adopted the following order,

"Resolved, That a Committee of Conference be raised to confer with the Executive Committees of the American Home Missionary Society, and of the Philadelphia Home Missionary Society, for the purpose of ascertaining what arrangements can be made for the relief of feeble churches at the West, and in other destitute places, which may not be provided for by any existing rules of the American Home Missionary Society."— Minutes of the Assembly, 1853, page 341.

The Assembly's Committee submitted to the Executive Committee of the American Home Missionary Society the following

Inquiries.

1. "Will it be consistent for them to make such an alteration in the rules of the Society, as will allow appropriations to congregations in large towns and cities?"

2. "Will they consent to make appropriations to a church or churches, in places where there is already a church aided by the Society?"

3. "Will it be consistent with the rules of the Society to assist a missionary laboring under the direction of a Presbytery or Synod?"

To these Inquiries the Executive Committee of the American Home Missionary Society made the following

Reply.

The Executive Committee of the American Home Missionary Society have carefully considered the questions proposed to them by the Committee of the General Assembly, and in reply respectfully submit the following statement:

The First Inquiry is as follows: "Will it be consistent for them to make such an alteration in the rules of the Society, as will allow appropriations to congregations in large towns and cities?"

The rule to which reference is made in this inquiry was adopted in the year 1844, and is as follows:

"Whereas, The American Home Missionary Society was originally formed, and is now patronized by the christian public, as a provision for supplying the means of grace to those who are specially destitute, and who can not reasonably be expected to obtain the blessings of the Gospel in any other way—and whereas, in times past a few cases of congregations in large towns have been regarded as so far extraordinary in their claims as to justify appropriations in their behalf, but recently cases thus situated are becoming so numerous as to require the adoption of a general rule; Therefore,

"Resolved, That it is inexpedient for this Committee hereafter to make appropriations in aid of congregations in this city and its vicinity, or in other similar situations, where the members may enjoy religious privileges in congregations connected with the Society, without greater inconvenience than those who live in smaller towns are subject to."

It will be observed that this rule applies to those towns and cities only, in which the means of grace already exist in connection with one or more of the denominations acting through this Society. In places, however populous, where it appears to this Committee that gospel institutions can not be sustained by these denominations to an extent obviously needed, without missionary aid, this rule is not enforced. Exceptions are made also in favor of congregations of colored people, and those worshiping in a foreign language. But the design of the patrons of this Institution in contributing to its funds is, to send the Gospel to that portion of our population to whom it would otherwise be inaccessible. The support of missions in such communities as this rule contemplates, is indeed an important, but is properly regarded as a distinct department of benevolent effort, and is more economically and successfully conducted by local organizations.

When the church accommodations of a large town or city become insufficient for its increasing population, the natural and healthful process of extension is colonization or contribution from the surrounding churches, and the local sympathy which can be enlisted in this way only, is often essential to the growth and prosperity of the assisted churches.

The attempt of this Society, therefore, to conduct City Missions of this character, would, it is believed, be regarded by its patrons with disapprobation, and would tend greatly to diminish their contributions to its funds. The Auxiliaries of the Society in the Eastern States, which now, agreeably to the terms of their relationship to the Parent Institution, are acting under this rule, would be warranted by its repeal in expending their funds in the large towns and cities within their bounds, and thus one principal source of the Society's revenue would be dried up.

It should be borne in mind, also, that this department of labor is very expensive; and after satisfying the privileged claims of the towns and cities in the East, which contribute most largely to the Society's Treasury, only a small amount would probably remain, to supply the wide-spread and growing destitu-tions of the West.

It frequently happens, moreover, in respect to this class of churches, that the necessity for their existence, and the claims to missionary support are matters of controversy between two rival denominations, both friendly to this Institution, yet both claiming the ground, and to grant or to refuse the aid sought, would render the Society a party to denominational strife.

In view of these considerations, and as the result of their experience, before and since the adoption in form of the rule in question, the Committee regard it inexpedient to undertake the work of Missions in large towns and cities, where the means of grace are already enjoyed in connection with the denominations that sustain this Society.

The Second Inquiry is: "Will they consent to make appropriations to a church or churches in places where there is already a church aided by the Society?"

Most of the considerations already stated, are equally applicable to the class of cases referred to in this inquiry. Those who have convenient access to the means of grace in connection with a church sustained by this Society, are not properly considered as destitute of the Gospel, in such a sense as renders them subjects of missionary aid. Their organization into a separate church under such circumstances, is in most cases premature, resulting, as it usually does and must, in the injury and dissatisfaction of the existing church, and in the long-continued dependence of both. By assisting two churches, on the same ground, the Society would not only in effect be divided against itself, but would in many cases be required to appropriate double the amount to each church, or four times the amount in all that would be requisite if all were united in one church. Experience has shown, moreover, that churches of this character are apt to originate in personal or denominational differences, which the aid of the Society would have the effect to perpetuate and to increase, while the Institution itself would of course incur the censure of one or both of the parties concerned. For these reasons, the Committee believe that it would be highly injurious to the Society, and to the cause of religion in our new settlements, to encourage the multiplication of such organizations by the general pledge of missionary aid, which would be involved in an affirmative answer to this inquiry.

In respect to cases which may arise, forming exceptions to these remarks, the Committee agree in the opinion expressed by the General Assembly's Committee on Church Extension, that rather than adapt to these exceptional cases, rules of the Society, "which are undoubtedly wise and beneficial in their general working," they should be provided for by such local arrangements as will not divert collections from the Treasury of the American Home Missionary Society.

The Third Inquiry is: "Will it be consistent with the Rules of the Society to assist a missionary laboring under the direction of a Presbytery or Synod?"

The Committee would state, in reply to this inquiry, that the Constitution of the Society (Art. 4) makes it their duty to "appoint missionaries, and instruct them in regard to the field and manner of their labors." While, therefore, they can not, without violating this provision, pledge assistance to missionaries in whose appointment and direction they have no voice, yet they desire in all cases to consult the views and wishes of the ecclesiastical bodies in regard to all matters pertaining to the missionary work within their bounds. Accordingly, the various Presbyteries, Associations, etc., are invited (See 27th Annual Report, p. 101) to appoint each a "Committee of Missions" from its own members, to receive applications from its churches, and suggest to the Society the proper action in each case.

These bodies are also expected to represent to the Society the condition of the destitute within their bounds, especially in places where no churches exist, and to recommend the appropriate action for their relief; and no obstacles exist to making appointments for these destitute fields, to such an extent as their necessities require and the funds of the Society allow, provided each missionary confine himself strictly to missionary labor, at definite points, within such territorial limits, not embraced in the field of another missionary, as are consistent with the greatest efficiency of his ministry.

These arrangements, adopted in accordance with the wishes of the ecclesiastical bodies themselves, have, with rare exceptions, proved entirely satisfactory, and have secured, in a remarkable degree, harmony of views and action between them and the Society; and it is the opinion of the Committee that, in accordance with these provisions, the Society will be enabled, as it will be disposed, to carry out the wishes of these bodies to an extent limited only by its principles of action and its pecuniary means.

The Assembly's Committee made their report to the Assembly, at Philadelphia, 1854. This was referred to the Standing Committee on Church Extension, whose Report, adopted by the Assembly, was as follows, viz.:

&quot;In reference to the Report of the Committee of Conference with the American Home Missionary Society, and the Philadelphia Home Missionary Society, your Committee would recommend as follows, viz.: That the Assembly design and desire that the Presbyteries should continue to coöperate with the American Home Missionary Society and the Philadelphia Home Missionary Society; that the difficulties apprehended being all happily adjusted, they see no occasion to create any other instrumentality."—Minutes of the Assembly, 1854, page 514.

SCOPE OF THE AMERICAN HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

As the American Home Missionary Society was instituted for the purpose of combining the resources, and entering into the labors, of the various local organizations previously existing, their several plans of action were, to some extent, comprehended in the principles adopted by the National Institution.

History of Principles.

The earliest missionary operations in the new settlements were little more than a series of missionary tours. This system did not contemplate the permanent supply of churches with the stated ministry. Many of the laborers employed were pastors of churches in the older settlements, and were commissioned for the whole or a part of a year, to "itinerate" over large districts, ascertaining their spiritual condition, visiting families and schools, distributing Bibles and tracts, organizing churches, administering the word and ordinances, and then passing on to other destitute regions.

Experience, however, soon proved that this system was inadequate and defective. So general and thorough was this conviction, that when, in 1822, the United Domestic Missionary Society was formed, by delegates from nine other Societies, this system was laid aside, and the Executive Committee, in their first Report, expressed the earnest hope "that the practice of employing missionaries to travel from place to place, preaching here and there a sermon, consuming a great portion of their time in journeying, and remaining at no point long enough to accomplish any thing likely to be permanent, will be universally abandoned."

In 1826, that Society was merged in the American Home Missionary Society; and in its plan of operations the two systems above referred to were combined. Accordingly, in the "Address to the Christian Public," issued one month after this Society was formed, the Committee announced their proposed mode of procedure as follows:

"In those territories which have been most recently settled, where religious societies are unformed, it may be necessary to allow to each missionary a considerable extent of country, as his circuit. Ultimately, however, it is believed that, in most cases, a single town or parish will afford ample scope for the labors of a faithful pastor."

In the First Report of the Society the Committee say:

"It has, accordingly, from the beginning been a prominent object with the Committee, to send out well-qualified ministers to our frontier settlements, with instructions to gather new congregations, and labor as they may find opportunity, until, with the choice and coöperation of the people, they may become permanently established in the pastoral office."

In the Fourth and Fifth Reports, the Committee state that the same policy is continued. In the latter Report they give special prominence to their efforts in exploring and occupying the frontier settlements. They say:

"This, indeed, is the only method by which the preaching of the Gospel can be permanently secured in those sections of the country which are most destitute. It must be sent to them, or they will remain destitute; and, in sending the Gospel to such fields, the Committee have found it necessary to commission their missionaries without regular applications from the people, and to assume their entire support, including such sums as they may derive from the fields on which they labor. No less than thirty four of the missionaries named in this Report have been thus appointed. These, in general, have been the most expensive missions of the Society."

This department of labor has been continued without interruption; and its necessity and importance have frequently been set forth in the recent Reports of the Society, and in the columns of the Home Missionary. In the Report for 1852, the views and usages of the Committee are stated in the following language:

"To give to every church the undivided labors of a pastor as soon as practicable, is the great object which the Society seeks to attain. As preparatory to this, however, the destitutions must be explored; where churches consist of but few members, or no churches are yet organized, and the country is sparsely settled, there must be occasional preaching—the feeble must be encouraged, the scattered elements combined, and the way opened for more frequent and regular ministrations. And where settlements do not increase in population and strength, so that each can hope to sustain a minister within itself, they must be united in a circuit, and visited at stated periods. Itinerant labor, therefore, if employed only where it is specially called for, and not relied on as an adequate supply where a more permanent one could be sustained, is regarded as a necessary and important part of a well-ordered system of missions in our new settle-This Society has employed it from the commencement of its operations, and the proportion of itinerant service to that of the settled ministry, has been stated in the Annual Reports."

By comparing the earlier with the later Reports, it will be seen that, as the new and sparsely populated settlements have multiplied, this department of service has assumed greater relative prominence. During the first five years, it gave employment to about one eighth, and, during the last five years, to about one sixth of all the missionaries in the field. The average number engaged in this preparatory labor, during the former period mentioned, was 39; during the latter period, 178. This proportion is determined by no fixed law of the Society, but by the circumstances of the missionary field.

Method of Exploring and Occupying New Fields.

In most of the Western States, this Society sustains Local Agents, whose special duty it is, "by correspondence and personal visitation, to ascertain the wants of the destitute, and assist them to obtain the preaching of the Gospel." Their particular attention is directed to new and frontier settlements, which they are expected frequently to traverse, and carefully to explore, thus keeping themselves and the Committee informed of all openings for missionary labor. In respect to frontier regions not within the field of an Agent, this information is obtained by direct correspondence between the officers of the Society and Christian laymen residing on the ground; or the Committee employ a temporary Agent, or neighboring missionary to examine and report in regard to the necessities and promise of a given field. As soon as the facts ascertained seem to warrant it, a laborer is sent forth, with a pledge, from the Society, of entire support. He surveys the ground, and fixes upon the most eligible points as centers of his operations. They may be four, six, eight, or more in number, comprising as many townships, or, perhaps, the destitutions of a county, or larger district. He gathers the scattered sheep of the wilderness into separate congregations, organizes churches at some or all of his posts of labor, and supplies them statedly, though perhaps infrequently, with the bread of life. As the population increases, and his labors multiply, another laborer is sent to occupy a portion of his field, and thus furnish to each congregation a more adequate supply of gospel ministrations.

Meanwhile the tide of emigration has flowed into the region beyond him. Thither he extends his observations and occasional labors, makes known its wants to the Committee, and, through them, to the christian public; and thus opens the way for other laborers in the remoter wilderness. It is not easy to see how, by any other method, the Society could better secure, at the same time, the thorough exploration, the early occupancy, and the permanent cultivation of the frontier districts of our country. This system of operations has been regarded with general approbation for nearly thirty years, and has been closely copied by the Boards, both ecclesiastical and voluntary, of other evangelical denominations.

Of late, however, it has been asserted that the American Home Missionary Society, by its rules and relations, is greatly embarrassed with

Limitations and Restrictions.

It has been stated that there are important departments of missionary service from which the Society is necessarily excluded. What are its limitations, and in what do they originate?

1. The want of laborers and funds.

Owing to these causes—especially to the scarcity of laborers—the Executive Committee have often been unable to occupy fields whose urgent necessities they have known and represented to the public; and, in many instances, these fields have been supplied by transferring laborers from important posts of usefulness at the East. This difficulty, however, does not arise from the structure or relations of the Society, and will not be obviated by any measure or organization that does not replenish the ranks of the ministry.

2. Considerations of expediency.

The Committee must exercise their best judgment, and, in so doing, may differ from others, in regard to the qualifications of laborers, the relative claims of different fields, the proper amount of appropriations, the expediency of employing non-resident ministers, or those engaged in secular pursuits; but these, and other like questions, are determined by considerations of propriety, not by any organic restrictions or relations of the Institution itself. If the Committee decline to designate, as the field of a single missionary, a whole State or Territory, or other district of like extent, their action turns upon the fact that they already have a General Agent within those limits; or they judge that, in occupying such a field, he must stretch himself beyond his measure; or he may interfere with others whom they have assigned, or may wish to assign, to some portion of the same district. If they fail to employ exploring agents, in such numbers, or in such fields, as may be suggested, it is because they have the necessary information from other sources; or it is not in accordance with their estimate of the relative claims of that particular field and mode of labor. If they do not multiply churches in any region, or of any order, as rapidly as may be desired, it is for lack of sufficient materials to constitute them, or of ministers to watch over them, and not through any organic defect or limitation. All these forms of missionary effort lie within their appropriate sphere, and no difficulty is experienced, in respect to them, which would not be felt equally by any other missionary organization.

3. The relations of the denominations for which the Society acts.

By agreeing to cooperate in the missionary work, those denominations consent to respect each other's rights in fields already occupied, and to consult the denominational preferences of those among whom churches are planted; and this Society, as the organ of these denominations, must do the same. Its restrictions result from, and are measured by theirs. Its missionaries, and the people to whom they minister, are as free, in the exercise of their denominational preferences, as if they were sustained by an Ecclesiastical Board, or by none. All the missionary work, not inconsistent with the relations of comity subsisting between the denominations for which it acts—all which they can undertake by another agency, while this cooperation continues—this Society is competent and ready to perform. Wherever the people have not access to the means of grace, in connection with either of these denominations—whether it be within the chartered limits of a town or city, or on the farthest frontier—wherever there is missionary ground—there it is the office of this Institution to plant and rear churches, organized and governed in accordance with the will of those who compose them. No case in which missionary aid can properly be claimed is beyond its reach.

Results of this System.

We can not better illustrate and commend to our readers the principles above stated, than by referring to the results they have achieved during the last thirty We will select our illustrations from those departments of labor where the principal defects are alleged to exist, viz.: the exploration of new fields, and the planting of churches. In the language of one who was associated with the Institution for more than a quarter of a century—

"A large share of all the statistical and other information which has been thrown before the public, and which constitutes the common fund of knowledge and interest respecting the West, has been developed by the research of the officers, agents, and missionaries of this Society. This information has been wrought into appeals both to the ministry and to the churches. And the success of these efforts is seen in the annually increasing list of missionaries and missionary congregations. By far the larger part of the permanent work accomplished in the newer sections, by planting churches, sending out and sustaining ministers, and thus establishing religious institutions on some stable basis, has been done by the agency of this Society, and in the natural and appropriate operation of its plan and policy.'

At its organization, it assumed the support of the only Presbyterian minister then laboring in Michigan, which contained at that time about 15,000 souls. Nearly every Presbyterian and Congregational minister who subsequently entered that Territory, was sent forth by this Society. By its agency the spiritual condition of the people was early ascertained, and published to the world; and more than 200 churches, comprising all but seven or eight connected with these denominations, are the trophies of its labors.

This Society commenced its operations in Illinois, when four men constituted the whole ministerial force of these denominations in that State. Though it contained 100,000 souls, its evangelization had hardly been attempted, and its moral condition was unknown. Its thorough exploration was early undertaken by this Institution. Under its direction Ellis, Hale, Baldwin, and Kent, traversed its wild forests and prairies, searching out the scattered sheep of the wilderness, and sending back, through the columns of the Home Missionary, thrilling appeals for help. Through the same medium, the Eastern public were first acquainted with the appalling condition of the mining population in the Northwest; and by the same agency, in 1829, the standard of the cross was erected at Galena, 200 miles beyond any other missionary station. The first congregation that assembled for worship, and the first church that was planted, on the western shore of Lake Michigan, were gathered by a missionary of this Society, in 1833, at Fort Dearborn, now Chicago; and seven eighths of the N. S. Presbyterian and Congregational churches in that State owe their origin and early training to the timely care of this Society. A similar statement might be made respecting the churches of Missouri.

In 1835, before Wisconsin had received a Territorial government, before a single church had been planted within its borders, the solitary voice of a missionary of this Society was heard crying in the wilderness, "Prepare ye the way of the Lord!" Other laborers, in rapid succession, were sent forth in the front rank of emigration, as it advanced westward and northward through the wilderness. The Rev. Stephen Peet was early commissioned to make a careful exploration of the Territory. The valuable results of his survey, accompanied by a map prepared for the purpose, were spread before the public on the pages of the Home Missionary. They awakened much attention, called forth liberal contributions, and the number of missionaries in that Territory was more than doubled in a single year. These vigorous efforts have continued to the present time; and of nearly 200 churches in that State, in sympathy with this Institution, about three fourths have been gathered, and the remainder, with scarcely an exception, have been sustained by its efforts.

The first evangelical labors performed in Iowa were undertaken by this Society in 1835. A map of the Territory, and the affecting story of its moral condition, were published in the periodical of the Society. As the result of its efforts and appeals, twelve young men were induced to enter that field in one year. By its missionaries the first congregations were gathered, and the first churches planted. They have followed the advancing frontier, from the banks of the Mississippi to those of the Missouri, and about 100 churches in that State already stand as monuments of their labors.

In Minnesota, the first, and, so far as we are informed, the only churches in sympathy with this Society were organized by its missionaries. The work, which was temporarily retarded by the rush of emigration to the Pacific coast, is now going vigorously forward; and the Committee are making arrangements for the thorough survey and early occupancy of those portions of the Territory which, within a few months, have received their first white inhabitants. The same process has already been commenced in Kansas, and before this page is seen by our readers will be commenced in Nebraska.

Nowhere have the adaptations of the Society for pioneer labor been more fully tested than on our Pacific borders. Before the first gold hunter had left our eastern coast, the missionaries were on their way to erect the Gospel standard on those shores; and to their labors, almost wholly, we must ascribe the foremost position and influence which have been attained by the denominations coöperating in this work. Their researches, reported to the public in the columns of the Home Missionary, embody an amount of information respecting the religious history and condition of that region, which exists nowhere else. During the present year, a more complete reconnoissance of the whole country—from the Mexican boundary to Puget's Sound—has been undertaken by the Society's agents, and the results, in part, are contained in the Home Missionary for November.

It must be conceded, therefore, not only that this Society is competent to engage in that department of missionary effort which is described above, but that it has demonstrated its peculiar adaptation to it, and has achieved its greatest triumphs in it. Its chief work, from the beginning until now, has consisted not in building the old wastes, in the Eastern States, but in following our emigrant millions with the means of grace, and transforming the vast moral wilderness they occupied into a fruitful field. By these labors, more than by any and all others, it has earned the place it holds in the affections and prayers of God's people; and, with gratitude to him, it points to the monuments it has reared, in the form of Christian churches all over the West. They stand as moral lighthouses along the shores of our Mediterranean waters—at Cleveland, Sandusky, Toledo, Chicago, Racine, Milwaukie, Green Bay. In the great commercial centers that line the banks of the Ohio and Mississippi-Cincinnati, New Albany, St. Louis, Alton, Quincy, Burlington, Dubuque, Galena, St. Paul-in the thriving villages of the interior—Ann Arbor, Marshall, Kalamazoo, Indianajois, Springfield, Jacksonville, Beloit, Janesville, Madison—in the rising cities of our Pacific empire—San Francisco, San Jose, Marysville, Oregon City, Portland—indeed, in nearly every city and village from the shores of Lake Erie to the Pacific Ocean, they stand, and will stand till the Millennial day, as witnesses to the efficiency of the system by which they were reared.

On such principles, and with such results, this Society has been conducting its operations for nearly thirty years. Though the prevalence of a more intense denominationalism renders the work of applying these principles more delicate and difficult than heretofore, it does not destroy their virtue, nor require their abandonment; and if the conductors of the Institution continue to enjoy, as heretofore, the favor of God and the confidence of his people, they can prosecute this work by the same methods, and with like success, in time to come. And this will they do if God permit.

MISSIONS IN CITIES.

The Home Missionary for November last, contains a statement of the principles of this Society in regard to missionary operations in cities and large towns. The occasion which originally elicited this statement from the Committee, led them to speak more particularly of what they were forbidden, than of what they were allowed, by these principles, to undertake. The idea seems to have been entertained, and has been formally and publicly expressed, that the Society declines all applications for missionary aid, "within the chartered limits of cities and large villages," except to congregations of colored persons and foreigners. We deem it important that this misapprehension should be corrected.

The Committee, it is true, stated, as a general principle, that "city missions" are "properly regarded as a distinct department of benevolent effort." This Society never undertook, and was never expected to gather contributions from the churches—the hard earnings of the poor, and the two mites of the widow—to multiply churches in cities where the people are already supplied with the means of grace in connection with one of the denominations for which it acts. Such communities ordinarily possess ample means for conducting this work; and to relieve them of this responsibility by the proffer of foreign aid, would, in most cases, be injurious both to the existing churches and the colonies to be established. There are cases, however, in which aid may properly be sought, and it is freely granted by this Society. We would call particular attention to the terms of the rule, adopted by the Committee, in regard to this matter:

"Resolved, That it is inexpedient for this Committee hereafter to make appropriations in aid of Congregations in this city and its vicinity, or in other similar situations, where the members may enjoy religious privileges in congregations connected with the Society, without greater inconvenience than those who live in smaller towns are subject to."

In explanation of this language, the Committee say, in the article referred to above:

"It will be observed that this rule applies to those towns and cities only, in which the means of grace already exist in connection with one or more of the denominations acting through this Society. In places, however populous, where it appears to this Committee that Gospel institutions can not be sustained by these denominations to an extent obviously needed, without missionary aid, this rule is not enforced."

In places where that portion of the community, sympathizing with these denominations, have not the ability to sustain the means of grace, unaided, they are entitled to the assistance of this Society. Jersey City, N. J., Watertown, Wis., Newport, Ky., and several other cities, now on the list of the Society's beneficiaries, are examples of this class of cases.

In some instances, a portion of the inhabitants of a large town or city, are so remote from existing churches of these kindred denominations, that they can not conveniently worship in connection with them, and, therefore, do not come under the operation of this rule. Two congregations in the city of New York—those of Manhattanville and Washington Heights—and another in Rochester, N. Y., situated thus, are now receiving aid from the Society.

There is, however, a class of applications which the Committee have been constrained, by their views of general expediency, as well as by the principles of the Society, to decline; and just here is the alleged deficiency of this Institution, in respect to its operations in cities. Nearly every church, planted by this Society in the Western States, has been composed of representatives of the two leading denominations associated in the missionary work. They have consented to worship together until the wants of the community should require, and its resources should become sufficient to sustain, a second church. Of late, however, those whose denominational preferences were not accommodated in such churches, have been encouraged to detach themselves, at an earlier period, and appeal to the Executive Committee to sustain them in a separate organization. Such a movement could not fail to result in the injury and dissatisfaction of the original church, and in the long-continued feebleness of both. ciety has been solicited to aid in pulling down the work of its own hands, in order to procure materials for another structure, to be reared at its own expense, and on the same ground. In some instances a second church has been organized, on denominational grounds solely, while the first was dependent upon missionary aid; and so two starvelings, biting and devouring one another, have stood at the door of the Society, asking for the means of subsistence. To encourage this procedure by the general proffer of missionary support, from any source, is to send division and distraction over the whole missionary field. Scores of efficient and peaceful churches will be rent in twain, and the feeble and hostile fragments will remain to be pensioners upon denominational bounty. Shall the wide wilderness remain uncultivated, that such work may be done? Shall the charities of the churches be dispensed for such purposes? Ought they to be? It is evident that cooperation between these two denominations, on such principles, is impossible.

We are, of course, familiar with all the cases, of the class now referred to,

We are, of course, familiar with all the cases, of the class now referred to, that have come before the Committee for their action; we are acquainted with those which have been cited to illustrate the defects and restrictions of this Institution; we have in mind many of those which it is proposed to reach by new instrumentalities; yet we confidently believe that this Society can perform all the missionary work, in large towns and cities, which properly belongs to any general charity, and which can be so prosecuted without working the dissolution of the alliance between the denominations associated in this enterprise.

WEAKNESS OF CHURCHES; ITS CAUSES AND EFFECTS.

There are more than forty religious denominations in the United States. Of these about a dozen are of considerable importance. More than a dozen would come under the general head of "Evangelical;" and of these no less than eight are prominent for their numbers, intelligence, and wealth. The Calvinistic churches include as many as five important denominations. Four of these—the N. S. Presbyterians, the O. S. Presbyterians, the Congregationalists and Baptists, together with the Methodists and Episcopalians—habitually esteem it a matter of obligation to be represented in every community where it is possible to gather a church of their name; and, in establishing these churches, deem it no part of their duty to consider, in the least, the welfare of any congregation of a different name that may have been previously gathered. The only exception—and it still continues an important exception—to this general remark, is that of the denominations allied in the American Home Missionary Society. Taking, therefore, the N. S. Presbyterians and Congregationalists as substantially one denomination-one from the close similarity of their polity, the identity of their doctrine, and their long and hearty cooperation in both foreign and domestic missions-and leaving out of the account all the minor sects, we have five great evangelical churches, each one of whom feels bound to push forward its own growth, with a disregard of the interests of all other churches, which is equivalent to an ignoring of their existence, and, in practical effect, identifies the kingdom of God with the denomination. It is very much as though each one had laid it down as the fundamental principle of its procedure-WE are the saints.

Waste of Resources.

Now it is obvious, upon first inspection, that this system must bring about an unfortunate distribution of labor, and a great waste of power; in some localities multiplying churches to excess, and leaving other regions destitute; making the town congregations weak, from their very multitude, and losing the happy moment in communities that are just forming, from the want of the right men to occupy them at the right moment—while many laborers abuse as much time and strength in working against each other, as they use in working for Christ. So, churches are born weak, and are compelled to worry through a long and fretful infancy, are kept on a diet irritatingly low, and compelled to struggle, with slow and uncertain growth, toward a maturity which must come late, and may come never.

A friend, whose attention has been drawn particularly to this subject, and who has spent a large portion of his life in the home missionary field, has communicated to us the following estimates and observations, based upon the records of the two Presbyterian and the Congregational churches, which furnish a striking exposition of these tendencies to a waste of resources and of labor.

"Connected with these three denominations there are now 7,187 churches. The following classification will show the numerical strength of 6.253 of these churches, whose membership is reported in the last Minutes of the General Assemblies and in the Congregational Year-Book. The average numbers of the 934 churches whose membership is not reported would probably be still lower."

More than one fifth, therefore, of all the churches connected with these denominations may be counted as rery weak, none of them having more than twenty five members, and the average falling considerably below that number. Nearly one fourth may be counted as weak, their membership ranging between twenty five and fifty; and these, taken together with those that are weaker yet, constitute nearly 43 per cent of the whole. More than two thirds of all the churches do not contain over one hundred members. Those that exceed one hundred are about 31 per cent, and those that exceed two hundred are not quite 11 per cent of the entire number.

Present Supply of Ministers Inadequate.

"The whole number of ministers is 6,150. The number of pastors and stated supplies (errors excepted) is 4,336—leaving 1,814 to be classed as without charge, as professors, teachers, editors, agents, secretaries, etc.

"The number of churches in the three denominations whose membership is reported as exceeding fifty, is some five hundred less than the number of pastors and stated supplies. If, therefore, each of these five hundred men were to occupy two churches, more than sixteen hundred churches would still be left destitute; and, if allowance be made for those not reporting, this number must be taken as exceeding two thousand. Probably none of these contain more than thirty five members.

Deficiency Due to Divisions.

"Now we need a thousand-fold increase of our effective force in the great harvest field of the world; but have we any reason to expect that the Lord of the harvest will hear our cry for laborers, and raise them up indefinitely in order to meet wants unnecessarily, nay wickedly, created by our divisions? Would a spendthrift son expect to prevail with an indulgent father to administer to his necessities, on the plea or the confession that he had squandered his former bounty, and, moreover, was intending to make a similar use of what he then solicited? The responsibility rests upon Christians of no one name, and it would seem that if the people of God everywhere could but have a full realization of the heart-rending inadequacy of all means yet employed for the conversion of the world, or of the utter hopelessness of ever meeting the vast want under such a waste of power, the work of economical adjustment would at once and earnestly commence, and also a new consecration—that the evangelization of the world might be carried forward upon a scale commensurate with the providential openings for missionary effort.

"That would be, indeed, a glorious revolution which should bring the true disciples of Christ everywhere to this position—to a consecration that should keep nothing back from the Lord, to a heaven-approved economy in the adjustment of forces, a condensation of churches in the same neighborhood, till the combined body could support a pastor, furnish him with all needed facilities for the prosecution of his work, and, at the same time, open to him an adequate field of labor. All supernumerary ministers in a given locality would thus be set loose for effort where men are perishing for lack of vision. Then Apollos would not interfere with Paul when he planted, nor Paul with Apollos when he watered, nor would both either plant or water at the same point or time, provided one could do the work."

But it is possible that some, calling to mind the large number of weak congregations at the East—where denominational rivalry is less active than at the West—may claim that this feebleness is but a part of the necessary imperfection of human arrangements—that we must always have the poor with us; and that it is not the sectarianism of the West which so reduces her churches. It were sufficient to suggest, in reply—that the weak churches in the older States are found where the communities are weak, in barren or uncultivated districts, or in regions depopulated by emigration; while a large proportion of the feeble churches of the West are in populous, vigorous, growing communities, where nothing but irreligion or division could keep the congregations from being numerous, and where nothing less than the combination of the two could keep them so small as they are. Yonder are three debilitated churches struggling for existence against each other: is it necessary to ask, whether, if they were joined in one, and were with one heart and voice contending for the kingdom of God, the christian strength of that community would not be greater!

Proportion of Weak Churches at the West.

But facts are at hand which show that the relative number of feeble churches is much larger at the West than at the East. Of the churches in Illinois and Iowa connected with three leading denominations, the proportion that must be accounted very weak—having not more than twenty-five communicants—is almost twice as great as in the same denominations taken entire, and amounts to nearly two fifths of the whole number reporting. These, again, taken with those whose membership ranges between twenty five and fifty, make up nearly 70 per cent of the whole!

No Further Division Needed.

With these facts before us, and in view also of the terrible prevalence of the greatest evils, and of the overwhelming preponderance which a spirit of worldliness has in affairs public and private; in view of the immensity of the work which must be accomplished before this can be considered a truly christian nation, is it not obvious that the cause of Christ does not call for any further subdivision.

No one will imagine, here, that we have been trying to enlist him in a crusade against the existing denominational distinctions. Much as these divisions are to be regretted, they can not by any attack be made to cease, and no artifice or urgency can remove them. God permits them; and will most certainly use them for his glory; and when the times are ripe, good men will know what they must do, to bring the separated members of Christ's visible body into visible union again. At present, they have something more important to do, than to make an outcry against the existence of denominations; but the increase of denominations is quite another matter. There are sects enough. There is sectarian feeling enough. Christ does not call for more. Any further division, equivalent in its practical workings to the creation of a new sect, would increase not only the number of weak churches, but their weakness and their time of dependence. More churches would need assistance, and each a greater amount per annum, and that for a greater number of years. It would increase the want of ministers. To the vacancy already existing in the evangelical pulpit, a new division could only add — a void. Nor is there reason to believe that it would highten the spirit of piety, either among the churches or among the ministers; that it would increase their love for each other, their faith in Christ, the singleness and simplicity of their devotion, the breadth of their charity, the largeness of their heart, or any other christian grace. It would obviously not be right to use missionary funds in a manner that might justly be expected to cherish among cooperative churches a divisive sectarian interest, to encourage its hopes, or stimulate its ambitions.

Duty.

The exigencies of the present day call us with solemn emphasis to fling aside all prejudices of party and to consolidate our forces upon the one great object of CHRISTIANIZING THIS AMERICAN PEOPLE. In comparison with this, it is of very little consequence whether one corner of the christian fold has more of the sheep than another; or whether we can feel that our particular position is attractive and commanding. Besides, if any part of the christian family shall be too much busied with looking out for itself, it may be found that the Master will not look out for them; and though they may have their reward in a great show of present numbers and influence, within two hundred years it will be evident to all, that they had clutched the shadow and lost the substance. There seems but one rule for us to follow; and that is—absolute devotion to the interests of Christ's Kingdom, those of any other kingdom or any part of itself to the contrary notwithstanding; and we may feel, that if we meet these we do the work to which God calls us. When the heart of our American Christendom has really grasped the grand object of this people's thorough christianization and is filled with it. really believes in its feasibility, yields to its inspiration, and is absorbed in the purpose of its attainments, then shall we hear less about parties within the Lord's household, and more about the family itself, then will it be discovered that there are but two parties, that of the world, and that of God—the lost, and those who labor to save the lost; then shall we see the good work making strange progress, and the Kingdom of Heaven coming with POWER.

THIRTY FIRST ANNIVERSARY.

THE AMERICAN HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY held its Thirty First Anniversary in the Church of the Puritans, on Union Square, New York, on Wednesday evening, May 13th, 1857.

Hon. Benjamin F. Butler, LL. D., one of the Vice-Presidents, occupied the chair, and the exercises were opened with prayer by Rev. Alvan Bond, D. D., of Norwich, Ct.

The Treasurer's Report was read by Mr. Christopher R. Robert, the Treasurer of the Society.

An Abstract of the Annual Report of the Executive Committee was presented by Rev. David B. Coe, one of the Secretaries.

On motion of Rev. Joseph S. Clark, D. D., of Boston, Mass., seconded by Rev. William S. Leavitt, of Hudson, N. Y.,

Resolved, That the Reports now presented be adopted, and published under the direction of the Executive Committee.

On motion of Rev. T. Dwight Hunt, of San Francisco, California, seconded by Rev. Rufus Anderson, D. D., of Boston, Mass.,

Resolved, That the great importance of California and the Pacific Territories, as a missionary field, presents a claim of special importance upon the sympathies and coöperation of the American churches.

On motion of Rev. James Drummond, of Lewiston Falls, Maine, seconded by Rev. G. W. Heacock, D. D., of Buffalo, N. Y.,

Resolved, That it is the imperious obligation of the strong of our country to seek out and succor the weak; and that the American Home Missionary Society deserves our hearty support, as opening one and an indispensable avenue of communication between the one class and the other.

On motion of Rev. William Hogarth, of Brooklyn, N. Y., seconded by Rev. Benjamin P. Stone, D. D., of Concord, N. H.,

Resolved, That the tendency of the Home Misssionary work to promote the unity of the people of this country, commends it to the sympathies and prayers of all good men.

A large and attentive audience were addressed with great ability and interest by Rev. Messrs. Hunt, Drummond, and Hogarh, in support of the resolutions which they severally presented; and the exercises were diversified and rendered impressive by appropriate music, under the direction of Mr. S. Lasar.

THIRTY FIRST REPORT.

Ir becomes us, as we commence the review of another year of associated missionary action, to praise the Lord for his goodness and for his wonderful works to the children of men. We have been laborers together with him, for the accomplishment of his great purposes of redemption. He has been upon our right hand and upon our left, strengthening our faith, guiding our counsels, and sending us help out of Zion. He has inclined the hearts of his servants to go whithersoever the Master had need of them to build up his kingdom. He has cheered them with his presence, and girded them with his power. They have comforted his peo-ple, and won sinners to the cross. The wilderness has rejoiced, and the solitary place has been made glad. Christian institutions have been established, the foundations of many generations have been laid; and to God be the glory.

Nor are we without admonition to double our diligence in this heavenly enterprise. Many of our associates, with whom we commenced the year, have ceased from their labors, while we have been permitted to continue to its close. Among the number, we record the names of one of the Vice-Presidents of the Society, Rev. Samuel Fisher, D.D.; and of two of its Directors, Rev. Samuel Merwin, and John Punchard, Esq., the early and steadfast friends of the Institution, zealous to extend the blessing of the Gospel while they lived, and enjoying eminently its consolations and hopes in a dying hour.

Eleven of the missionaries of the Society have also died during the year: Rev. George A. Buck, Rev. David Gerry, and Rev. W. R. Rhodes, in Maine; Rev. Joel Fisk, in Vermont; Rev. Amzi Benedict and Rev. Peter Neckert, in New York; Rev. John T. Hargrave, in Virginia; Rev. Samuel W. Rose, in Ohio; Rev. John Ballard, in Illinois; Rev. T. G. Cole, in Wisconsin; and Rev. Stillman Tucker, in Iowa.

"They that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament and they that turn many to righteousness us the stars forever and ever."

The various operations of the Society are noticed in the body of the Report, under their appropriate heads and in connection with their respective localities; such details as can be presented in a compact form are embraced in the following

SUMMARY OF RESULTS.

The number of ministers of the Gospel in the service of the Society the last year, whose names are found in the preceding General Table, together with those engaged in superintending the work, and whose names are mentioned in connection with the respective Auxiliaries and Agencies, is 974.

Of these, 771 were in commission at the date of the last Report, and 203 have been since appointed.

They have been distributed in 24 different States and Territories, as follows: in Maine, 91; New Hampshire, 41; Vermont, 53; Massachusetts, 38; Rhode Island, 6; Connecticut, 40; New York, 133; New Jersey, 12; Pennsylvania, 46; Virginia, 6; Tennessee, 1; Kentucky, 1; Ohio, 76; Indiana, 33; Illinois, 88; Missouri, 16; Michigan, 68; Wisconsin, 84; Iowa, 87; Minnesota, 24; Kansas, 3; Nebraska, 2; California, 15; Oregon, 8.

This distribution gives to the New England States, 271; Middle States, 191; Southern States, 6; Western States and Territories, 506, including 23 on the Pacific coast.

Of the whole number in commission, 522 have been pastors or stated supplies of single congregations; 315 have ministered to two or three congregations each; and 137 have extended their labors over still wider fields.

The aggregate of ministerial labor performed, is 780 years.

The number of congregations and missionary stations which have been fully supplied, or where the Gospel has been preached at stated intervals, is 1,985.

Nine missionaries have been in commission as pastors or stated supplies of churches of colored people; and 46 have preached in foreign languages—22 to Welsh, 21 to German congregations, and 3 to congregations of Norwegians, Swiss and Hollanders.

The number of Sabbath school scholars connected with the missionary churches and stations is not far from 62,500.

The contributions to benevolent objects, reported by 589 missionaries, amount to $25,049.87.

Sixty two missionaries make mention in their reports of revivals of religion in the congregations to which they have ministered; in connection with some of which there have been 40, 50, and 60 hopeful conversions. The whole number of hopeful conversions reported by 352 missionaries is 2,222.

The additions to the churches, as nearly as can be ascertained, have been 5,550—viz., 2,637 on profession of their faith, and 2,913 by letters from other churches.

Fifty four churches have been organized, in connection with the labors of the missionaries, during the year; and forty six have passed from a state of dependence to one of self support. Fifty three houses of worship have been completed; thirty five repaired or improved; and forty nine others are in process of erection. Twenty churches are reported as having provided their ministers with comfortable parsonages; and seventy five young men, connected with the missionary churches, as in preparation for the Gospel ministry.

THE TREASURY.

RESOURCES.—The balance in the Treasury, April 1, 1856, was $23,742.16. The receipts for the succeeding twelve months, have been $178,060.68; making the resources of the year $201,802.84.

Liabilities.—There was due to missionaries at the close of the last year, $9,551.66. There has since become due $178,182.50; making the total of liabilities $187,734.16.

Payments.—Of this sum, $180,550.44 have been paid; leaving $7,183.72 still due to missionaries for labor performed. Towards liquidating these claims and redeeming additional pledges on commissions daily becoming due—amounting in all to $79,085.07—there is a balance in the Treasury of $21,252.40; the greater part of it received in payment of legacies near the close of the year.

The receipts are $15,487.69 less than in the preceding year. The regular contributions of the churches, however, are but $2,157.69 less; the greater amount of legacies—$8,333—and a special donation of $5,000 in the previous year, making the balance of the difference. The number of missionaries is less by twelve; while there is an increase of five in the years of labor performed, and of twenty in the number of congregations regularly supplied. There is an increase also in the number of revivals and of hopeful conversions reported, in the number of additions to the churches on profession of faith, and of pupils connected with the Sabbath schools.

The decrease in the number of missionaries is just equal to the decrease in the number of those employed in the Eastern and Middle States, where dependence on missionary assistance is less, year by year; while in the Western States and Territories, as a whole, the number has been undiminished, and in some of them very considerably increased. In Iowa and Minnesota, there have been twenty four more in commission than in the preceding vear.

SLAVERY.

In the Slave States, the number of missionaries, the last year, has been twenty four-eight less than in the year preceding, and less than in any one year since 1842. In no year since the organization of the Society, has the number of missionaries in these States exceeded fifty seven. The causes of so little progress have their origin in the institution of slavery. The structure of society is here less favorable, than in the Free States, to the establishment of self-sustaining village congregations. The elements of society are also different. Eastern and Northern emigration has not peopled these States, as it has the Western; and but a small part of the population are in sympathy with the denominations which sustain this Society. The habits and customs of the people have not led them to appreciate, as in the Northern States, a settled permanent ministry, nor to make corresponding efforts to secure it. There has been less readiness here to cooperate with the Society, in any form, in its missionary work. Ministers born and educated at the North, have not been as cordially received and as fully confided in, nor have they felt that they could work as freely and with as good prospects of success, as in the Western States. It has been difficult, therefore, to find men who were willing to engage in missionary service at the South, when fields so much more inviting were opening elsewhere; and difficult to retain them there, when they have consented to go. After a full experience, not a few of them have become disheartened, and sought spheres of labor in other sections of the country. In many cases, also, those who have been raised up on the soil have felt constrained to leave the States of their nativity for fields of labor, and circumstances in which to educate their children, in the Free States. There have consequently been large expenditures of missionary funds in the Slave States, with but small permanent results—with but here and there a church that has come to a condition of self-support, under the culture of the Society, the last thirty years.

The hindrances to the missionary work arising from the same general cause have been increased, as the adhesion of the Southern churches to the institution of slavery has become more and more decided, and the conviction has been gathering strength, among christian men in other parts of the country, that the principles of the Gospel require its ultimate extinction. the language of ministers and laymen at the South was, "We look at slavery very much as our Northern brethren do-as a great moral wrong, to be removed before the progress of the Gospel, and we desire your forbearance and cooperation and fraternal aid, to effect this object." Recently, it has been earnestly defended, by the most prominent in the ministry at the South, as an institution of divine authority, on the same foundation as civil government and the family relation, benevolent and christianizing in its character, to be upheld and extended for the mutual benefit of the owner and the enslaved. Churches, missionary churches have sympathized in these views, and slaveholding, on the part of their members, has increased; the missionary has been made uncomfortable in his place; he may not declare the testimony of God against this sin, nor make the least reference to the enormities connected with it which he witnesses daily. Nay, his very silence awakens distrust, especially if he be of Northern origin; and he must give in his adhesion to the institution, and become an advocate in its defense; or his work, as a minister, is done, and his personal safety even is no longer guaranteed to him.

Churches of this description are applying to the Society for assistance, recommended by ministers whose teachings and influence are in favor of slavery, or who are themselves slaveholders from principle and choice; and it has become a question of serious import with the Committee, as they are called to consider these applications, what fidelity to the interests with which they are intrusted, and a conscientious regard to the known principles and wishes of their constituents, require at their hands. Ought they not to know, or care to know, what practices in connection with slaveholding are allowed in these churches?—whether there are not cases of an aggravated character, involving the holding and treating of men as property, the violation of family ties, and the selling of brethren and sisters in Christ as articles of merchandise? —or, whether there be no cases but such as are fairly sanctioned by the law of love—rendered "unavoidable by the laws of the State, the obligations of guardianship, or the demands of humanity?" Ought the Committee to ignore, in these circumstances, the whole subject of slavery, and make their appropriations irrespective of its existence?—or, should they seek the best information in their power, in regard to the character of the slaveholding tolerated in these churches, and give to it its appropriate importance in determining their disbursements? The sentiments of the great body of those who sustain this Society have been clearly expressed on this general subject, as well as an earnest desire for the recognition of some principle of appropriation to churches in slaveholding communities, which shall be a guarantee to donors that their contributions are wisely and judiciously expended. The Committee have given to this subject much anxious thought and careful consideration, and have adopted a Resolution, the application of which, they think, will be a sufficient protection against the expenditure of the Society's funds, in any such manner as to give countenance or support, in any form, to the institution of slavery, while it will provide for those cases which, by common consent, are regarded as exceptional. The Resolution is as follows:

"Resolved, That in the disbursement of the funds committed to their trust, the Committee will not grant aid to churches containing slaveholding members, unless evidence be furnished that the relation is such as, in the judgment of the Committee, is justifiable, for the time being, in the peculiar circumstances in which it exists.

The information contemplated will be sought in a kind and christian manner, and, we trust, will be freely and cheerfully communicated, as similar information has been in time past, and be of great value to the Committee, not only in determining the propriety of their appropriations, but in vindicating many of the churches aided, and the Society itself, from unjust and injurious aspersions.

Remarks.—1. The total of receipts, for thirty one years, is $3,280,109.45.

- 2. The total of years of labor is 18,076. These years are reckoned in each Report, by adding together the number of months of labor which the missionaries have actually performed.
  - 3. The whole number of additions to the churches is 143,491.
- 4. The average expenditure for a year of missionary labor includes the entire cost of the Society, of obtaining the missionary, defraying his expenses to his field, and sustaining him on it, as well as all the expenses of conducting the Institution. The increased average of recent years has been occasioned by the greater number of those who have held full commissions, and the expensiveness of more distant missions—particularly of those on the Pacific coast—and the larger appropriations that have become necessary, as the expenses of living have increased, to secure to the missionary a comfortable support.

- 5. The difference between the annual average expenditure to a missionary and the average of a year's labor, is occasioned by the fact that a missionary is named and counted in a Report, though in some cases he may have labored but a fraction of the year.
- 6. The fifth column—that of new appointments—shows how many have to be called in each year, to supply the places of those whose support is assumed by the people, the vacancies occasioned by death, sickness, removals, and other changes, and to make the increase, if there be any, over the number of the preceding year.

PRINCIPAL AUXILIARIES, AGENCIES, AND MISSION-ARY FIELDS.

MAINE MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

WILLIAM T. DWIGHT, D.D., President; John How, Esq., Treasurer; Benjamin Tappan, D.D., Secretary. Office at Portland.

The receipts of this Society, for the year ending March 1st, were $10,774.63. There were paid by individuals into the Treasury of the Parent Society, $46.51; making the total from the State, $10,821.14. The expenditures, in support of missionary operations within the State, were $11,934.85.

Ninety one missionaries have been in commission during some portion of the year. They have ministered to 108 churches, and in 30 towns where no church organizations exist. Three missionaries have been ordained; one church has been organized; three houses of worship have been completed; and three others are in process of erection. The number of members in the missionary churches, at the date of the last Annual Report of the Auxiliary, was 4,809. The number of hopeful conversions, during the year, had been 346—a number considerably greater than in any other year since 1842. The contributions of these churches to objects of benevolence, were equal to about 20 per cent of the amount they received from the Society.

For several years, help has not been withheld from any feeble church which has requested it for want of funds; but the men needed, it has been difficult to find. One missionary speaks of ten towns lying contiguous to each other, in which there is but one settled minister of any denomination; and other regions equally extensive and destitute are to be found in other sections of the State.

Yet, while a field so wide and urgent in its claims is spread out before our brethren in this State, their christian sympathy and large-hearted benevolence prompt them to say: "There are States and Territories of vast extent more needy than Maine, in which, also, by reason of the rapid increase of population and wealth, the encouragement for missionary labor is greater than in Maine; and if all which is contributed in this State should not, for the present, be needed by the men actually laboring within our own borders, let us rejoice that we may aid in the still mightier work of evangelizing the West. In Maine, let us do what we can to provide for our own. But to be wholly unmindful of the Macedonian cry, which comes to us from the great valley of the Mississippi, and from the shores of the Pacific, would be hiding ourselves from our own flesh; would be not only disregarding the claims of a common humanity, but withholding a helping hand from our own brothers and sisters, our own sons and daughters. Besides, does not this whole land, with its teeming millions and its immense resources, belong to Jesus Christ?"

NEW HAMPSHIRE MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

NATHANIEL BOUTON, D.D., President; BENJAMIN P. STONE, D.D., Secretary and Treasurer. Office at Concord.

The receipts, for the year ending March 1st, were $5,627.26; of which $888.45, were designated by the donors for the Treasury of the National Society. There were also received by the National Society from individuals and congregations, $1,093.24, and in payment of legacies, $1,638.77; making the whole amount for the cause, $7,470.82. The expenditures within the State, were $5,657.21, and the amount transmitted to the Parent Society, $2,732.01.

The number of missionaries in commission during some portion of the year, is forty three, and the aggregate of their labors is equal to thirty six years. The Rev. WILLIAM CLARK has been employed, since June last, as an Agent of the Society to visit the feeble churches, for the purpose of inquiring into their condition and prospects, and encouraging them in their efforts to secure the regular ministrations of the Gospel. His communications have been of great interest, and can not fail to stimulate the liberality of the churches in their missionary work.

"The general state and prospects of the feeble churches," says the Secretary, "have undergone no material change during the year, except that some of them have grown weaker by removals and deaths, while others have made some additions to their pecuniary strength. The increase of appropriations which the Trustees have made to some of them, are not so much the evidence of declining ability on their part to support the Gospel, as of the increased expenses of living. However dark may be the future, with respect to some of our churches, there never has been a time when the work of Home Missions in New Hampshire was more important than it is at this moment. Upon the maintenance and vigorous prosecution of this work depends, under God, the question whether more than one half of our territory shall be blessed with the influences of a pure Christianity, or be left to become a moral waste and send over the whole State and land the miasma of disease and death."

VERMONT DOMESTIC MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Hon. Erastus Fairbanks, President; C. W. Storrs, Esq., Treasurer; Rev. John F. Stone, Secretary. Office at Montpelier.

The receipts of this Society, for the year ending March 1st, were $4,645 92. There were also received into the Treasury of the Parent Society, from individuals and congregations in the State, $487.42, making the aggregate for the cause, $5,133.34. The expenditures for the year were $5,481.90.

The number of missionaries is fifty three: the greater portion of them have labored as pastors or stated supplies, others as itinerant missionaries to a group of feeble churches or destitute places, assigned them within a county or other convenient territorial limits. This latter mode of service it has been found very desirable to increase, to meet, in some measure, the wants of the large number of towns and the extensive districts in which there is no settled ministry or stated supplies; and which can not, at present, for want of men and the adequate means to sustain them, be provided for in a more permanent form. The interest which has been awakened to accomplish all that is practicable by missionary labor of this description, and the liberality which has been called out to sustain it, are bright omens of good for the desolate regions that cover so large a portion of the State. The great embarrassment to the missionary work in Vermont is the one to which reference has often been made in former reports—emigration to the new settlements of the West—a source of encouragement and strength to infant organizations there, but of weakness and despondency often to the churches thus deprived of their most valued supporters.

"As to the general aspect of our field," says the Secretary, "there has been but little if any advance. Some churches have improved materially, others have declined. I think our destitutions are increasing; and many of our churches have been further reduced by removals. Emigration to the West, it is thought, has not diminished. Ministers leave, and church members and other supporters leave. Many of our churches are reduced to the last extremity; and but for the Missionary Society, not a few of those now supplied, would yield at once to utter discouragement. The state of religion in the churches generally is low. Worldliness prevails to an alarming extent, and unless the Spirit of God shall be poured upon us from on high, our State will soon present one wide, dark, and dismal scene of moral desolation. In God is all our hope."

MASSACHUSETTS HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

RICHARD S. STORRS, D.D., President; BENJAMIN PERKINS, Esq., Treasurer; JOSEPH S. CLARK, D.D., Secretary. Office in Boston.

The receipts of this Society, for the year ending March 1st, were $29,182.40. The expenditures within the State were $5,284.08; and the amount forwarded from the Treasury of the Auxiliary to the Parent Society was $26,000. There were also received into the Treasury of the American Home Missionary Society, during its financial year—in payment of legacies, $3,218.32; from the Hampshire Missionary Society, $1,564.36; from congregations and individuals, $2,552.55—in all, $7,335.23; making the total to the cause in Massachusetts, $36,517.63; and the amount expended through the Parent Society, $33,335.23—less than the preceding year by $16,924. The contributions of the churches, however, were but $322.85 less than the year before; the balance of the difference arising from the greater amount of legacies the previous year to the Auxiliary and the Parent Society, and the special donation from an individual of $5,000.

There have been in commission thirty eight missionaries, ministering to an equal number of churches; two thirds of these missionaries, a greater number than in any former year, sustaining to their respective churches the pastoral relation. At the date of the last Annual Report of the Auxiliary, four new applicants had been added to the missionary list; three of them infant churches, gathered where no church of the same order before existed; and vet the number assisted was less by two than in the previous year. The number of members in the thirty six assisted churches was 1,534; the number of families in connection with them 1,150; the average aggregate attendance on public worship, 4,000; and the number of pupils and teachers in Sabbath schools, 2,260. Seasons of more than usual religious interest had been experienced at several of the missionary stations, and 120 hopeful conversions reported. Three houses of worship had been finished and dedicated, and three others and one parsonage were in the process of erection.

The Executive Committee of this Auxiliary, in reference to their relations to the American Home Missionary Society, say in their last Report: "The large share which a kind Providence permits Massachusetts to have in the operations of this Society, not indeed in controlling its action, but in augmenting its power to act, can hardly fail to keep alive among us a deep personal and proprietary interest in its great achievements. As successive years have completed their rounds, each leaving a record of new victories won, we have given to its Executive Board renewed expressions of our confidence and congratulation; but never have such expressions been more appropriate than now, whether we contemplate the results of the past or the prospects of the future. as portrayed in their thirtieth and last Annual Report." After reviewing the progress made, and the achievements won, and surveying the increasing demands for missionary labor, and the new harvest fields continually opening, they add: "That it is possible for the friends of this enterprise, with the means now at their disposal, to keep pace with these increasing demands, to enter and reap down all these opening fields as the respective harvests ripen, can not be denied; and from the clearest intimations of Providence, we may believe that nothing but the prompt and persistent use of these available means is now wanting to usher in the day which JEREMIAH EVARTS saw in vision while he was yet with us; when the sun, as he rises on a Sabbath morning and travels westward from New England to Oregon, shall behold countless millions assembling, as if by common impulse, in the temples with which every valley, mountain, and plain shall be adorned; when the morning psalm and evening anthem, commencing with the multitudes on the Atlantic coast, shall be sustained by the loud chorus of ten thousand times ten thousand in the valley of the Mississippi, and prolonged by the thousands of thousands on the shores of the Pacific."

RHODE ISLAND HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

THOMAS SHEPARD, D.D., President; GILBERT RICHMOND, Esq., Providence, Treasurer; Rev. A. Huntington Clapp, Providence, Secretary.

The receipts of this Society, for the year ending March 1st, were $1,325.33. There were also received into the Treasury of the Parent Society—in payment of legacies, $1,182; from individuals, $80—in all, $1,262; making the total for the cause, $2,585.33. The expenditures within the State were $1,375.

Six missionaries have been in commission during the year, at points of labor where the means of moral and spiritual culture are greatly needed, but where they could not be enjoyed without missionary assistance. At one of these stations, the debt on a house of worship has been extinguished, and at others there are pleasing evidences that faithful labors, amidst many discouragements, have not been bestowed in vain.

The Secretary of the Society, in speaking of the peculiarities of these stations, says: "The fluctuating character of the population within which most of our missionaries are laboring, makes the work a most unromantic, arduous, and self-denying one; affords few of the encouragements of marked and permanent success, or promise of early self-support. Yet we can not think of the cruel. suicidal policy of giving up these fields to the adversary of all good; leaving the children to grow up without the restraints, and the old to die without the consolations of evangelical religion. It is eminently a work of faith and not of sight, to which the Master here calls his laborers. May he raise up such laborers, give them grace to be faithful, and at last crown them with his eternal favor."

CONNECTICUT MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Rev. Horace Hooker, Secretary; E. W. Parsons, Esq., Treasurer. Office at Hartford.

The receipts of this Society, for the year ending March 1st, were $7,455. Of this amount, $4,134.78 were expended within the State, and $3,000 remitted to the Parent Society. There were also received by the American Home Missionary Society, during its financial year—in payment of legacies, $4,401.37; from congregations and individuals, $11,781.86—in all, $16,183.23;—making the total from the State $23,318.01; and the amount expended through the National Society $19,183.23—less than the preceding year, by $4.781.66—the amount of legacies being less by $3,735.18, and the contributions from the churches by $1,045.48.

Forty missionaries have been in commission during the year; three of whom have been installed pastors. Additions have been made to most of the churches, but in only one or two has religious interest been strikingly manifest. Three of the churches, it is expected, will need no further assistance.

The Secretary of the Society, in speaking of the hindrances to the rapid advance of many of the churches in the older settlements to a condition of self-support, says: "When the causes of weakness are of a temporary nature, liberal grants for a short period may raise a congregation above the need of aid. But where decay has been gradual—the result of permanent and deepseated causes—a late relief from asking and receiving aid is all that can be expected. Could we at pleasure renew a worn-out soil, or create streams for manufacturing purposes, or stop migration from the barren hills to the villages growing up around factories and railroad depots, or wall off the alluring prairies and golden placers of the West-we might hope, in a reasonable time, to report that the greater part of the work of Home Missions in New England is accomplished. But until clothed with such a power, although cheered by no brilliant tokens of success, we must not slacken our labors, if we would not see our early settlements, to no small extent, turning into moral wastes, repulsive as those which checkered most parts of this State when the old Domestic Missionary Society began its work. The temptations to migrate—the great cause of weakness in the Eastern churches—have been multiplied and strengthened, till they have become almost irresistible. Bent on removal to the land of promise, the young form feeble attachments to the old homestead. With slight emotion they break away from the ancient house where their fathers praised God, and to which, but for the rage of emigration, they would have clung as to an own mother. wonder, then, is not that so many Eastern churches are drooping, but that they have so long borne up against the constant and copious depletion of their vigor and piety. This tenacity marks the original strength of their vital principle, and we should be slow to discard them for recent organizations, until well assured that the latter possess equal powers of endurance."

PHILADELPHIA HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

JOHN A. Brown, Esq., President; Henry Perkins, Esq., Treasurer; Rev. Robert Adam, Secretary. Office at Philadelphia.

The receipts of this Auxiliary, for the year ending March 1st, were $9,012.21, exceeding those of the previous year by $1.186,19. There were also received from this field, into the Treasury of the Parent Society, during its financial year, $2,289.96; viz.: from New Jersey, $1,961.48; from Pennsylvania, $168.48; from Delaware, $10; and from the District of Columbia, $150. The aggregate of contributions, therefore, from the field of this Auxiliary, is $11,302.17; which is less by $2,454.47, than the amount raised the preceding year, when a legacy of $4,875 became available. The outlays for missionary purposes have been $7,833.08, leaving a balance in the Treasury of $1,061.74.

Fifty four missionaries have been sustained by the Auxiliary within the year. Three of them will henceforth receive their entire support from the churches to which they minister. The churches generally are reported as in a prosperous condition, and several of them have enjoyed, during the year, special outpourings of the Holy Spirit.

The field of missionary labor occupied by this Auxiliary is large and difficult. It covers four States, comprising an area of nearly 68,000 square miles. Owing to the circumstances of its original settlement, and its material products, it contains a large foreign population, among whom ignorance, infidelity, and vice of various forms, are fearfully prevalent. It is not only exceedingly difficult to reach them with gospel appliances, but their influence upon the surrounding community forms a mighty barrier to the progress of evangelical truth throughout the regions they occupy. Yet the results achieved by the labors of this Auxiliary, in the last sixteen years, furnish abundant grounds for gratitude and encouragement. "During this period," says the last Report, "forty churches have been organized, and as many Sunday schools. About one hundred missionary districts have annually been aided, where from six to seven thousand persons have been regularly brought under the influence of the preached word. Fifty five churches once under the fostering care of the Society, now occupy a position of independence, and several of these are strong and influential organizations, radiating centers of spiritual light and life, which will, we doubt not, prove blessings to many yet unborn. We are now permitted to enroll these once feeble churches among our cordial and liberal patrons. Sixty church edifices have been erected by the churches during their partial dependence on our Society, and a large number of the churches have at different times repaired and beautified their sanctuaries, and several have procured valuable parsonages. These missionary churches have contributed to the various objects of benevolence, since the organization of the Society, in the aggregate not less than $30,000. At least four thousand souls have been hopefully converted to Christ, and from four to five thousand Sunday school pupils have been, year by year, instructed in the way in which they should go. These, and similar facts show, that the Society has done good service for the Church and the country during its brief history; yet they fall far short of revealing all that has been effected through the instrumentality of the churches it has aided. The institutions of religion exert a silent though potent influence in staying the progress of immorality, error, and worldliness; and in promoting the moral, intellectual, and social welfare of the community."

CENTRAL AGENCY, NEW YORK.

Rev. Theodore Spencer, Secretary; J. E. Warner, Esq., Treasurer. Office at Utica.

Thirty four missionaries have labored under the commission of the Society, within the bounds of this Agency, since the last Report. They have preached to thirty seven churches, and have supplied about five thousand souls with the stated means of grace.

The receipts into the Treasury of the Agency, for the year ending March 1st, have been $5,621.51. In addition to this, contributions amounting to $3,163.68 have been forwarded directly from the churches of this field to the Treasury of the Society, making a total of $8,785.19. This is an advance of $586.75 upon the receipts of the preceding year. The amount appropriated for missionary labor on this field during the same period, is $3,572.53, or $512.37 less than the sum expended during the preceding year. Thus it appears that the missionary resources of this Agency exhibit a gratifying advance, and that an increasing proportion of them is placed at the disposal of the Society for its general work.

This diminution in the expenditures of the Agency, it must be confessed, is due in part to the fact that a portion of the feeble churches have been unable to procure ministerial service; but in some instances, the enlarged subscriptions of the people have relieved the Society of a portion of its outlays, at the same time that the ministers' support has been increased. In other cases, the Society has shared with the people the additional burden requisite to supply the wants of the missionary, and in a few instances, an increased outlay has been required on the part of the Society, without a corresponding advance on the part of the assisted congregations. On the whole, it is gratifying to be able to report even a small diminution of the number of churches requiring missionary aid, and the ability of the churches of this region to The missiondevote an increasing amount to the general cause. aries have, it is believed, prosecuted their work during the year with exemplary fidelity; and God has crowned their efforts with at least the ordinary measure of success. Destitute outposts have been visited, the scattered sheep gathered and fed, the children taught in Sabbath schools, and, on some portions of the field, the rain of heaven has fallen, and the good seed has sprung up, and brought forth fruit a hundred fold.

A large portion of the region covered by this Agency is yet a wilderness, but must soon be invaded by secular enterprise, and will furnish an inviting field for missionary culture. Surrounding this region is a belt of territory, very inadequately supplied with the means of grace, and presenting a strong claim to the sympathies of Christians in the older settlements. The valleys of Lake Champlain and the St. Lawrence are exceedingly destitute, and are constantly flooded by a torrent of infidelity, ignorance, and vice, which are flowing across the Canadian frontier. It has been found impossible to supply even the stronger churches of this border with ministers. Several houses of worship have consequently been closed, and the flock of Christ scattered as sheep having no shepherd. A prominent cause of this destitution, and of the continued feebleness of many of the churches, is thus alluded to by the Secretary: "The providence of God still continues to draw from our churches and populous neighborhoods, annually, hundreds of our church members to the West. In the inducements presented to emigration, we think we see the hand of God so evidently manifested, that we are encouraged rather than disheartened at the prospect for the future. The family of Christ is one, and while the various branches of the visible Church at the East are weakened by this depletion, the Church at large will be immensely benefited by this dispersion of the spiritual seed over the broad prairies of the West. The reign of Christ will thus be extended, and his rich grace more gloriously manifested in the fruits to be gathered there. Let us then strengthen the things that remain; let us sustain the churches among ourselves, in the use of such means as may be blessed to the conversion of sinners, content if God be glorified in them, even though the succeeding wave of emigration should bear them also away."

WESTERN AGENCY, NEW YORK.

Rev. John A. Murray, Secretary; W. T. Scott, Esq., Treasurer. Office at Geneva.

The receipts into the Treasury of this Agency, during the year ending March 1st, were $9,823.12; of which $4,975 have been expended for local missionary purposes, and $3,000 have been forwarded to the Treasury of the Society in New York. In addition to this, $14,618.94 have been sent directly to the office of the Society from this field. Of this sum, $12,000 were paid by the Executors of the will of the late Deacon Jabez Goodell of Buffalo, making the amount already realized to the cause of Home Missions from his estate, $45,000. The total of contributions from this portion of the State, during the year, is $24,442.06, of which sum $19,467.06 have been expended on the Western field. The receipts exceed those of the previous year by $1,418.31.

Fifty two missionaries have been sustained by the Society within this Agency, fourteen of whom have become connected with it since the last Report. One laborer has been transferred from his sphere of earthly toil to his everlasting rest. Fifty four churches have enjoyed the stated ministrations of the Gospel, through the instrumentality of the Society. Six which were aided the previous year are now independent; and it is understood that two at least, which have received assistance during the year now reported, will make no further application. Owing to the severe drought of the summer, a much smaller amount than usual has been expended in the erection and repair of houses of worship; but while the clouds have withheld their rain from the earth, in several instances copious spiritual showers have descended to gladden the parched and thirsty vineyard of the Lord. Ten missionaries report revivals of religion, in connection with their labors, and several others have been cheered by considerable accessions to the churches under their care.

The general aspect of this portion of the missionary field is, on the whole, encouraging. The number of churches dependent upon the bounty of the Society is less than at any former period in thirty years, and is less by twelve than in the year previous to that covered by this Report. Fourteen years ago, eighty four churches and seventy missionaries were sustained within the bounds of this Agency. Of these churches twenty six are now independent, eight have become extinct, five have gone into other ecclesiastical connections, and forty five are still dependent. In this period, thirty four new fields have been occupied, in which ten self-supporting churches have been reared, leaving twenty four on the list of the Society's beneficiaries, or destitute of the means of grace. Several congregations that in former years were raised by missionary effort to a position of comparative strength and efficiency, have been again reduced to great weakness by emigration, and some are nearly extinct. Several large and flourishing churches at the West have grown from plants transferred from this nursery. This is true of the churches of White Pigeon, Mich., and St. Charles and Aurora, Ill., and many others. The thousands of devoted and self-denying laborers in the vineyard of the Lord, who have been reared in the missionary churches of this region, and transferred to wider spheres of service on our Western borders, are the most valuable donation which the churches of Western New York have made to the cause of Home Missions.

Some of the communities, however, from which the largest of these drafts have been made, now present an urgent claim to the sympathy of the friends of this enterprise. An application has recently been received from a place where was once a flourishing church, but which has been destitute of the stated ministrations of the Gospel for nearly thirty years. The church asking aid, though it is the only religious organization in the town, contains but two members. "It is painful," says the minister who indorses this plea for help, "to stand where I do, in the heart of this fruitful and beautiful country, and look at the neighboring towns, where once were flourishing churches, and see them fast becoming missionary ground." The Agency and the Executive Committee deeply sympathize with their brethren in these communities in their efforts to repair their decaying altars, and tender them their hearty coöperation. In the great and increasing scarcity of ministers, these feeble churches can not be supplied with the ordinances of God's house, except by a union of two or more of them in sustaining the same pastor; and this expedient is commended to the more general adoption of the ecclesiastical bodies to which this work belongs. By this arrangement, with the consent and coöperation of the churches themselves, many old wastes may be recovered, and, in process of time, every community supplied with the stated ministrations of the Gospel.

WESTERN RESERVE AGENCY, OHIO.

Rev. James H. Newton, Secretary; T. P. Handy, Esq., Treasurer. Office at Cleveland.

Twenty nine missionaries have been in commission during the whole or a part of the year, within the bounds of this Agency, and have preached statedly to thirty seven congregations. The receipts of the Agency, for the year ending March 1st, have been $2,645.34, and its expenditures, $2,742.23. Other contributions, amounting to $395.16, have been received into the Treasury of the Society—making the whole sum devoted to this cause by the churches on the Western Reserve, $3,050.50.

The missionaries appear to have prosecuted their labors with fidelity and with the ordinary measure of success. One church has been organized within the year, another has assumed the support of its pastor, two others have greatly improved their sanctuaries, and several have been quickened and strengthened by gracious visitations of the Spirit. From most of the laborers in this region, however, the lamentation comes to our ears: "Who hath believed our report"?

In a region so long cultivated and so densely populated, as that covered by this Agency, it is not reasonable to anticipate such rapid and striking changes, as often appear under the labors of the spiritual husbandman, in the States of the farther West. But it must be acknowledged that in some instances, notwithstanding the most earnest effort to carry forward the ark, a retrograde movement is visible. The prevalence of fanaticism and error, in numerous forms, sectarian strifes and divisions, the constant drain of emigration, the frequency of pastoral changes, the inadequacy of ministerial support, and, above all, the absence of frequent and powerful revivals, are the chief causes to which this state of things must be ascribed. "There are in Northern Ohio," says the Secretary, "from twenty five to thirty vacant churches, not more than four or five of which are self-sustaining. Many of them, in consequence of removals and deaths, the dearth of revivals, and the influence of 'spiritualism,' and other forms of infidelity, have become exceedingly weak and discouraged, and some of them almost extinct. To resuscitate the latter and bring them all up to a self-supporting condition, will require large outlays and much time, patience, perseverance, and faith. It will require, also, an increased supply of ministers, of a high order of talent, as well as a heart for the work." Yet there are tokens for good. Some of the causes which have retarded the missionary work are operating with diminished force, and the conquests achieved on this field by Home Missionary effort in former years, should encourage the friends of Christ to persevere in their labors till their triumph is complete.

MARIETTA AGENCY, OHIO.

Rev. Thomas Wickes, Secretary. A. T. Nye, Esq., Treasurer. Office at Marietta.

The receipts of this Agency, during the year ending March 1st, were $509.80, and the amount expended for missionary labor, $506.23. The contributions from this field, which have been sent directly to the Treasury of the Society, amount to $202.67, making the aggregate for the general object, $712.47.

Eight missionaries have been sustained on this field since the last Report, three by the funds of the Agency, and five by direct appropriations from the Treasury of the Society. Fifteen churches have shared their labors. Though the number of laborers is less by two than during the preceding year, the number of churches supplied is greater by one. Each of the missionaries, with two exceptions, has ministered statedly to two or more congregations. This wide distribution of ministerial service, though in itself undesirable, becomes expedient and very important in consequence of the great and growing scarcity of laborers; and unless such arrangements can be extensively effected, many a feeble flock must be scattered as sheep having no shepherd.

The Secretary states the following facts as evidence that the labors of the missionaries the past year, have not been in vain: "The churches at Pomeroy, Belpre, and Warren, which have been assisted heretofore by the Society, have not renewed their applications the past year, and are now sustaining the means of grace by their own unaided efforts. We sincerely rejoice in this, and trust that it may prove the turning point in the history of our churches, giving promise of better days. One of the chief obstacles in the way of supplying the feeble churches of this region, has been the inadequacy of ministerial support. This difficulty is now in a measure obviated, by the liberality of an individual who has made a generous donation for this object. This provision has already secured one additional laborer to this field; and, it is hoped, will result in the supply of other vacancies which have recently occurred."

Yet a great work remains to be done for this portion of the State. The churches are few and feeble. A considerable portion of the population having originated in the neighboring States on the other side of the Ohio, have not been trained to contribute liberally for the support of Gospel institutions; and, as this region lies aside from the great channel of emigration from the Eastern States, it contains a much smaller representation from those States, and has not shared as largely in their sympathy and beneficence as the region bordering upon the Lake. By the construction of railroads, however, it is becoming more accessible; its vast mineral resources are being developed; its physical advantages and moral necessities are better understood; and we confidently look for the day when the sheep long scattered over these hills and valleys, shall all be supplied with shepherds who shall lead them into the green pastures and beside the still waters of eternal life.

WESTERN OHIO.

Rev. LYSANDER KELSEY, Columbus, Agent.

In this part of the State the Society has aided, the past year, in the support of fifty nine missionaries, and has received contribu- tions to the amount of $2,127.32.

The missionary work, on this field since the last Report, has encountered peculiar embarrassments. The missionaries themselves have prosecuted their labors in faith and hope, and God has not left himself without a witness in the spiritual results of their ministrations. But the Agent of the Society, Rev. Marcus Hicks, after a protracted illness, was compelled, late in the autumn, to resign his post, and seek a change of climate and employment, for the restoration of his health. The vacancy remained unsupplied till near the close of the year, when it was filled by the appointment to this office, of Rev. Lysander Kelsey, of Hanging Rock, Ohio. Having received his theological education, and spent his whole ministerial life on this field, he is already acquainted, to a considerable extent, with its condition and wants, and will receive, we doubt not, the cordial cooperation of the churches in the important work he has undertaken. Another serious hindrance to the prosperity of the missionary churches has been the financial embarrassment produced by the failure of the crops. The drought which occasioned it was almost unprecedented in its severity, crippling the feeble congregations, in the agricultural districts, where most of the missionaries are employed.

The whole number of missionaries employed in the State, within the year, is ninety six, and the amount collected for the Society, $5,890.29 In the last Report, the hope was expressed that the churches of Ohio, connected with the denominations that sustain this Society, would soon contribute to the cause of Home Missions enough to supply the wants of the feeble congregations in that State. Owing to the facts above stated, but little progress in this direction has been made during the past year. Indeed the amount devoted to this cause, is less by $612.29 than in the year previous. But we believe that, with the ordinary measure of temporal and spiritual prosperity, these churches will henceforth be able to meet all local demands upon their beneficence, and will help to swell the streams which gladden the remoter West.

INDIANA.

Rev. HENRY LITTLE, Madison, Agent.

Thirty three ministers in Indiana have been aided in their support, by funds of this Society, during the past year; and the amount of contributions, received from churches and individuals in the State, is $2,098.42.

In the early part of the year, several missionary churches were favored with powerful revivals of religion, by which their pecuniary, as well as spiritual strength, has been greatly augmented; but during the winter, visible fruits of ministerial labor have not been as abundant. The tornado of political excitement, which has swept over the whole country, seems to have wrought more disaster to the interests of religion in this than in most other States. A violent popular agitation, in regard to a prohibitory law, and a judicial decision rendering it inoperative, have, also, greatly embarrassed the labors of the missionaries. It is to be borne in mind, however, that the results of their ministrations are greater than might be inferred from the present aspect of the field. The tendencies to emigration are scarcely less powerful here than in the more Eastern States. One missionary church has, within the year, been transferred almost entire, to one of the States west of the Mississippi. Another has supplied nearly the whole membership of two thriving churches in Iowa. "You have often spoken," says the Agent, "of the importance of permanent ministers; but we need also permanent hearers. Western families are not held by any fond associations with their 'old home,' or any tender reminiscences connected with the 'graves of their fathers.' Such fastenings were all abandoned when they crossed the mountains. Our communicants are members in form, of our churches, but, in fact and in feeling, they are only sojourners, and do not labor to make a good permanent christian home for themselves and their posterity. Like a tenant, they desire a present crop, but have no personal interest in the permanent improvement of the

But while this migratory habit of the people creates a serious obstacle to the missionary work, and scatters its fruits, it adds to the responsibilities of this Society. The churches which are thus enfeebled need not, and should not be left to perish. For, though the churches themselves have diminished, the material for their growth has increased; and it is the office of this Society, with divine help, to gather the stones which are to compose the spiritual temple. Indeed this State, as a whole, presents a more attractive field for missionary effort, than at any former period. Having but a few miles of lake shore, and not a single good harbor on its northern border, it has been more inaccessible to emigrants from the East than any other State in the Northwest. But now, several lines of railroad traverse it in different directions, opening channels which are conducting a living tide over its fertile prairies, bringing all parts of its broad area into easy communication with the markets of the Atlantic coast. The resources of the country are developed, enterprise is stimulated, the stagnant mind of the people is stirred, thriving villages are springing up with great rapidity, along these great thoroughfares, and from all quarters the appeal is heard for laborers to reap the ripening harvest. But they are few. The number of missionaries, sustained in this State, has been diminishing for several years, and is now less by about one half than it was in 1852. Some of the churches then aided, have since become independent, but a larger number, by the death or removal of their ministers, have become destitute of gospel ministrations; and the fields urgently demanding immediate culture were probably never so numerous as at the present time. It is evident that, in order to supply the flocks whose shepherds have been removed, and to provide for those important stations which have never yet been occupied, a large reinforcement of laborers will be needed for the coming year.

ILLINOIS.

Rev. Aratus Kent, Galena, Agent for Northern Illinois; Rev. Samuel P. Lindley, Jacksonville, Agent for Central and Southern Illinois.

Eighty eight missionaries have been sustained in this State since the last Report, and $6,003.77 have been received into the Treasury of the Society. This amount exceeds, by $1,411.25, that contributed by the churches of Illinois in any former year.

The aspects of the missionary work on this field, from year to year, are peculiarly variable; but, on the whole, they have never, perhaps, been more encouraging than they are at the present time. The Agent for Northern Illinois says: "The past year, though not signalized by revivals, has yet been one of manifest progress in this district of the great missionary field. Our churches are gathering strength and acquiring stability, though they are liable to the same fluctuations, from removals, that are experienced by churches at the East. The congregations are increasing in numbers and improving in the proprieties befitting the place of public worship. They are also securing more of that pecuniary aid from those that are without, which warrants them in anticipating the speedy arrival of the day when they can assume their own support. Several of them have lately cut loose from their moorings and ventured upon the open sea, and others would have done so but for their efforts to build houses of worship. This, however, is one of the best evidences of progress. More than one fifth of the missionaries report that, during the year, their people have provided themselves with sanctuaries. Each of these becomes a bond of union, a pledge of permanence, and a magnet of attraction to the surrounding community."

In Central and Southern Illinois no Agent has been employed. Since the lamented death of Rev. William Kirby, in December, 1851, repeated unsuccessful attempts have been made to supply his place. Meanwhile the material progress and development of this region have been unprecedented, and its religious interests have greatly suffered from this lack of service. It is with pleasure, therefore, that the Committee are able to report, that this vacancy has at length been supplied by the appointment of the Rev. Samuel P. Lindley, as Agent for this portion of the State. He has been for several years engaged in the missionary work in this region—for the last two years in connection with the Presbyterian churches of Plainview and Summerville—and enjoys already the acquaintance and confidence of the churches he will serve in this wider sphere of labor.

The Southern portion of this State is undergoing changes which give new interest and importance to the missionary work. It is well known that the original inhabitants were chiefly from the slaveholding States, and, of course, the ignorance, irreligion, and vice which that system fosters, were taken with them to their new homes. Though other elements of a better character have been gradually introduced, yet there is little in the aspect of society to cheer the heart of the minister of the Gospel. One missionary says: "Among a population of thirteen hundred, I can find but ten who give evidence of vital piety. Not half of the adult population can write their own names, and not one in fifty can repeat the Ten Commandments." Of course, in such a community, Sabbath-breaking, intemperance, licentiousness, gambling, and kindred iniquities, are fearfully prevalent, and opposition to the Gospel bold and impudent. But the hearts of the missionaries are cheered by some signs of progress. "Some rays of light," says one, "are occasionally thrown across our dark Egyptian night, indicating a coming morning. Almost everywhere an educational movement has stirred into activity the common mind. Immigration is setting down, here and there, one who will ere long be a center of christian influence. and thriving villages are springing up along our great thoroughfare—the Central Railroad—giving promise of a new impetus, quite unlike the former stagnation of our inland towns; and those sluggish masses have themselves awoke to a more active life. believe that no portion of our country offers a more inviting field for testing the moral strength of the Christian Church than this.

If redeemed to Christ, it will be a moral power corresponding with its natural position as the center of the great valley."

These statements are equally applicable to the State as a whole. Its population during the last five years has been increased by about half a million, and now amounts to about 1,500,000 souls. In the same period about 2,700 miles of railroad have been constructed, along which scores of villages have sprung up, and are rapidly expanding into populous cities. The missionaries already in the field, by enlarging the circle of their labors, have occupied some of these new centers, and a few additional laborers have been sent to their assistance; but many stations of much importance and promise remain unoccupied, and others in rapid succession will send up their plea for gospel ministrations. The Committee are deeply impressed with the importance of keeping pace in their labors with the population and material growth of the region they are attempting to supply, and they inquire frequently and earnestly: "Whom shall we send, and who will go for us?" But the number is increasingly inadequate from whom the cheering response is heard: "Here am I-send me."

MISSOURI.

The Society has employed sixteen missionaries during the past year to labor in this State. Two of this number have entered upon their labors in connection with the Society since the last Report; six, however, of those whose names were included in that Report have not been in commission the past year. One of them was removed by death, and no application for the reappointment of the other five was received. The number now reported is, therefore, less by four than the number sustained the preceding year. The amount paid into the Treasury from this State, or expended there in cooperation with the Society, is %596.12.

The aspect of the missionary work in Missouri has not materially changed since the last Report. The missionaries have labored and have not fainted, notwithstanding the peculiar discouragements which have beset them. In two or three instances, tokens of the presence of the Spirit have cheered the heart of the missionary; but no extensive revivals have been reported. One congregation of Germans has within the year reached the condition of self-support. The popular excitement to which allusion was made in the last Report, has somewhat abated, and a powerful reactionary movement in favor of freedom has commenced. This movement, however, has had in turn its reaction, and has stimulated the friends of slavery to more determined efforts in its defense. Distrust and suspicion have been excited in reference to the missionaries, especially those who are natives of the Northern States. One, whose church, in consequence of these excitements, has become a second time dependent upon the Society, has maintained his position with great difficulty, but still remains at his post, hoping for better days. Another, after eight years of faithful service in this State, has, within a few months, been compelled, by the causes above referred to, to retire to another field. Others are apprehending a similar issue in regard to themselves, but are unwilling to abandon their work, unless the providence of God shall plainly bid them "depart."

But while the Committee are constrained, in justice to the missionaries and to themselves, to record these facts, they do not propose, on account of them, to remit their labors in this portion of the missionary field. The difficulties which have hindered and restricted their operations hitherto, must, ere long, yield, and give the Gospel free course over the broad prairies of this magnificent State. Then will it become one of the most inviting, as it certainly is one of the most important fields for missionary culture. Its physical advantages are unsurpassed. Situated in the very center of the great basin of our continent; washed on its eastern border by one, and traversed by another of the noblest rivers of the globe; unrivalled in the variety and fertility of its soil, and the richness of its mines of iron, lead, and coal; rapidly advancing in population, and wealth, and intelligence, and enterprise; earnestly struggling to throw off the incubus which has thus far retarded its progress, it may well attract the interest of every patriot and Christian. The Committee hope to share even more largely than hitherto in the work of supplying this State with the institutions of religion.

MICHIGAN.

Rev. HERBERT A. READ, Marshall, Agent.

The number of missionaries who have held commissions in this State during the past year, is sixty eight. The contributions to the Home Missionary cause have amounted to $3,140.09, of which $623.80 were in the form of legacies. This is an increase upon the previous year of $780.61. Eleven new houses of worship have been dedicated, and several others are in process of erection. The churches at Lansing, Chelsea, Howell, Birmingham, Dexter, Salem, Owasso, and Ionia—eight in number—have reached the point of self-support; while nearly all the others aided by the Society have advanced in most of the elements of strength and prosperity. A year of financial success will be likely to bring a considerable number of churches into a position of independence, and to witness a diminution in the amount of aid needed by the others. Revivals have not been as numerous as in some former years; yet a number of missionary communities have enjoyed seasons of refreshing from the presence of the Lord. The cause of

Home Missions is endearing itself more and more to the churches; and the people enjoying the benefits of missionary labors, appear to have a higher estimate of their efficiency in the promotion of the grand moral and educational movements, on which the progress and welfare of society depend.

The views and aims which, in the earliest New England Colonies, prompted the founding of schools for all the people, have been active in Michigan. A State University, an Agricultural and a Medical College, a Normal School, all amply endowed, and "free"—these, with flourishing union schools in almost every village, and a fund for common schools nearly unequalled in the older States, are so many gratifying evidences of the prevalence of that healthful benevolence of public sentiment, which the Gospel alone can create or keep alive. The fruits of the same life-giving moral power are seen, in the establishment of asylums for the Deaf and Dumb and for the Insane, and of an institution for the reformation of Juvenile Offenders, as well as in a popular majority of 20,000 votes, in favor of Temperance.

But while this State affords such gratifying illustrations of the present power of just principles with the people, we are reminded that, to keep these principles alive, and to extend them with the spreading population, is still a great work. There are now more than thirty missionary churches vacant, many of them occupying important positions, and having good houses of worship. Besides these, there are many places, growing centers of wealth and influence, where churches are needed, and could be immediately organized, if we but had the ministers to supply them. Moreover, new villages are continually springing up, both in the older and in the newer portions of the State. Railroads are in progress —their building secured by magnificent grants of land from the National Government. Two of these running through the State from north to south, and one along the shores of Lake Superior, will open to settlement, and connect with markets, the great pine forests and mining regions of the North. Much fertile soil, hitherto sealed up, will soon be tempting immigrants into these, as yet, unbroken wildernesses.

Churches need to be planted along these railways, in all these new counties, by the shores of these commerce burthened lakes. The voice of the living minister must mingle with the sound of the axe that hews down the primeval forests, or at least with the first hum of gathering trade, and the Gospel must be present at the laying of the social foundations, or shame, trouble, and disaster await its too tardy coming. The vast conceptions of business men, and their energetic fulfillment, ought to stimulate the churches to go and do likewise, in their nobler work.

WISCONSIN.

Rev. DEXTER CLARY, Beloit, Agent.

The number of missionaries sustained in this State during the past year, is eighty four, of whom eight are Welshmen, two are Germans, and one is a Norwegian. These have supplied, in whole or in part, one hundred and five churches, and preached the Gospel at sixty stations where no churches are yet organized.

Six churches have assumed their own support, and eleven new ones have been formed; eleven houses of worship have been completed, and fourteen commenced; four pastors have been installed, and four dismissed; two ministers have been ordained; one has died; and twenty young men are preparing for the ministry. Twenty churches have enjoyed an outpouring of the Divine Spirit, and quite a number of revivals were but recently in progress. About four hundred persons have been added to the missionary churches on profession of their faith, and six hundred by letter, making a total, for the State, of over seven thousand.

The amount of the contributions from this field, for the year ending March 1st, 1857, including bequests of $1,500, is $3,067.29. It is believed that the sums contributed to the various causes of benevolence, aside from payments and pledges to colleges and seminaries, amount to not less than $8,000. The Home Missionary contributions, just specified, exceed those of the previous year by twenty five per cent, or, including the legacies, by nearly one hundred per cent. The amount of missionary aid rendered has been about the same as last year; but the churches have raised more for the support of their ministers, besides being increasingly liberal in their donations to them. The greater cost of living has, in many cases, indeed, rendered larger salaries a matter of absolute necessity. Yet it has too often been found, that even among the professed disciples of the Savior, there is here, as elsewhere at the West, a great lack of christian liberality in the support of the Gospel. The past year has been a successful one in outward things; and Christians have shared the general pecuniary prosperity—too often, it would seem, to the detriment of their spiritual interests. But we are, nevertheless, encouraged to believe that the duty of maintaining their own religious institutions without aid from abroad, is more than ever engaging the serious attention of good men in the State; and although not yet ready to assume so heavy a load, we trust that the day is not very far distant, when Wisconsin will not only be supplying her own destitutions, but be pouring her benefactions into the common treasury, and passing on toward the ever-retreating "West" the blessings of the Gospel of salvation. The State is yet in early youth; but already gives promise of a noble manhood. The great number of the foreign emigrants who have chosen it for their abode, at present operates. in important respects, as a drawback. Although generally characterized by an exemplary industry and economy, their influence is very often unfavorable to religion and good morals. A few Evangelical churches are found among them, but the great majority of these foreign-born citizens adhere with obstinacy to European sentiments and usages, most hostile to the spread of true godliness. Every year adds to the necessity of exertions for their religious welfare. It is encouraging to learn, that in no previous year has so much good moral influence been brought to bear on public affairs within this State; and that in none other, have so many decidedly christian men been elected to stations of respon-

Hitherto, the sectarian spirit, so prevalent in some other portions of the West, has had but little vitality in Wisconsin, especially among those whose general views and sympathies have harmonized. What new force it may hereafter acquire, and how much evil it may work, has become, during the past year, a matter of doubt. This is no time for divisions. A vast work remains to be done in this great and growing commonwealth. In size, Wisconsin is among the foremost States of the Union-embracing nearly 54,000 square miles, or as many as Pennsylvania and Massachusetts together, while containing a much smaller proportion of waste land than either. Nearly its whole surface is moulded into those gentle undulations which are so favorable for agriculture, and possesses a rich and deep soil, well supplied with streams, and diversified with woodland and prairie. Even in its southern and most thickly settled portion, large tracts of land are still unimproved; and in the north, many thousands of square miles remain an unbroken wilderness. The increasing facilities for settlement seem to render it certain, that many new missionary fields will be opening yearly for cultivation, for a long time to come. The recent increase of population has been remarkable. For while, in 1840, Wisconsin numbered only 30,000 inhabitants, in 1850, the State contained 305,000, and in 1855, 552,000—thus gaining in five years 247,000, and in the ratio of her growth, outstripping all her rivals. When we consider that this broad and fertile area is bounded on three sides and intersected by navigable waters, is penetrable everywhere by railroads-many important lines already pushing fast towards completion-and that it has been settled by an enterprising population, no small proportion of whom belong to the class that knows how to value and to found the best educational and religious institutions, we realize with new clearness the magnificent material and spiritual possibilities open before its people, and the importance of sustaining the Wisconsin churches, during the season of their feebleness, and of multiplying them with her multiplying towns. This State imposes on us the responsibilities of a noble field, and holds out a glorious prize to our christian zeal.

IOWA.

Rev. Julius A. Reed, Davenport, Agent.

The number of missionaries in the service of the Society within the State, during the past year, is eighty seven; who have supplied one hundred and five churches, and eighty seven out stations. Of the fifty nine who were under commission on the 1st of March, 1856, seven have left the State, eight others have not asked a renewal of their commissions, and one has died. On the first of March, of the present year, sixty nine were in the Society's ser-The whole number of Congregational and Presbyterian (N. S.) churches within the State, is one hundred and sixty; and the whole number of ministers, one hundred and thirty two. There are only fourteen settled pastors, and of these seven have been installed during the year. Two missionary churches have become independent; five houses of worship have been built, one has been purchased, and six are in process of erection. When these have been completed, the total number in the State will be The contributions from Iowa to this Society, have seventy two. been $1,144.96.

A comparison of the pledges of thirty nine churches, for the last year, with those for the year preceding, including all the churches where such a comparison could readily be made, shows an advance of over $1,600, or about 29½ per cent. There is in this respect a steady progress, which will probably be maintained, but which, nevertheless, can not keep pace, for some time to come, with the increased demands of this rapidly extending field.

Various causes combined, during the past winter, and among them the unexampled severities of the weather, to cast a check temporarily, upon efforts for the conversion of souls. The cause of Temperance, also, has gone backward. The Prohibitory law, having been used as a make-weight by politicians, has become a dead letter in the cities, and has been growing less and less effective in the country places. It seems inevitable, that for a season, intemperance must increase, to the sorrow of many hearts, and the ruin of many souls; but we are assured that the struggle will not be given up, till the right has triumphed. The progress of education is more encouraging. School-houses are built by tax; and though in the cities, expensive buildings are erected, none but the Romanists complain. Facilities for instruction in the higher walks of knowledge are improving.

The destitutions of this noble and growing State, present and prospective, are of impressive magnitude. It would require twenty one missionaries to meet the wants of the churches which need an immediate supply. Many new fields, also, where churches have not yet been organized, are suffering by every day's delay. In the north-western portion of the State, there are thirty four contiguous counties, containing more than 20,000 square miles—a territory as large as the whole of Massachusetts, Connecticut, and Rhode Island, with one third of New Hampshire and Vermont-which do not enjoy the labors of a single Congregational or (N. S.) Presbyterian minister. Some of these counties have several thousand inhabitants. The ministers connected with the cooperating denominations are at present confined to fifty two counties. Four of these have each one half of the labors of a single minister; twenty four counties, the labors of one each; nine, of two; twelve—their several populations varying from 10,000 to 25,000 souls—have the labors of three each; three with an average population of 14,000—have four ministers a piece; one has five; and one—numbering 27,000 inhabitants—has six. The census for 1856 embraces returns from eighty one counties; of which twenty nine are rarely so much as visited by our ministers. Fourteen of the counties had, in June last, a population of less than 1,000 each; and twelve ranged from 6,000 to 11,000. These all are rapidly filling up; and before the close of this year will probably have 100,000 inhabitants. In these destitute counties, which contain some of the fields prospectively of the greatest importance, fourteen additional ministers are imperatively demanded, making, with the twenty one needed by the churches already organized, a total of thirty five, for whom fields are now ready and waiting. Could the present want be supplied, it would still be true that for years to come, a net annual increase of twenty five ministers will be needed to meet the demands of this growing State. Its population is already increasing at the rate of 90,000 a year; and within six years, Iowa must contain a million of inhabitants. Like her sister States farther East, she is destined to be covered, ere long, with a network of railroads which will inevitably be studded with towns and cities, and will spread a thronging population forth upon the remotest prairies, and bear the incalculable products of their industry to the markets of the world.

While we are overwhelmed with the crushing expectation of tasks of such transcendent magnitude, and which threaten to surpass all human endeavors, we have the sorrow of knowing that on this important field there is not that harmony between denominations which is desirable. In this respect, the past year has witnessed no improvement, but the reverse. No less than seven churches have been founded by the side of others of an allied denomination. Aggressions stir up defense. Rivalry begets opposing rivalry. What the end of this is to be, and what new duties new exigencies will ultimately create, it is not easy to predict, or

MINNESOTA.

Rev. RICHARD HALL, Prescott, Wis., Agent.

The Society has had in commission in this Territory, during the past year, twenty four missionaries, twelve of whom have been appointed since the last Report. Twenty six churches, and fourteen other congregations have regularly enjoyed the ministrations of the Gospel; two churches have assumed the entire support of their ministers; twelve new fields have been occupied; ten churches have been organized; three houses of worship have been built, and five more are in process of erection; one pastor has been installed; and several churches have been blessed with revivals of religion. Ten more missionaries have been employed than during the preceding year; and the increase is six greater than in any year previous. The contributions have amounted to $292.58. The population of this Territory, according to the estimate presented by the Governor in his last Annual Message, had advanced, within twelve months, from 75,000 to 180,000. Another calculation makes the present number 150,000. If we take into view the progress of all the various evangelical denominations, we find cheering occasion for gratitude to God, that the growth of christian institutions has, to so good a degree, corresponded with that of the population. And yet, when on the other hand, we contemplate the absolute destitution of gospel privileges, which prevails in large portions of the Territory already settled, and the indications that the ratio of its numerical increase is not to be diminished, we are made to feel that we have no time to tarry for congratulations, and scarcely for thanksgivings; but that, praising God as we go, we must keep our loins girded, and be continually striving with all our might to meet the ever-coming responsibilities. At least thirty eight counties are already organized, and of these, nineteen, containing a population of more than 40,000, do not enjoy the labors of a single missionary of this Society; and, so far as is known, have not an organized church connected with either of the cooperating denominations. Aside from a few Methodist "Classes," and itinerant preachers, and a few Baptist churches, they may be said to be without Gospel influences.

There is great danger that these destitutions will increase rather Railroads are fast pushing towards the boundthan diminish. aries of Minnesota, and munificent donations of land for other roads within her borders, have been made by the National Government. So soon as operations shall have commenced on these public improvements, a new swarm of foreigners will be precipitated upon the Territory. Indeed, it is understood that extensive arrangements are already perfected for introducing, during the coming season, an unusually large number, directly from abroad. But, disregarding all such special occasions of increase, the annual growth of its population can not be otherwise than very large. Reasoning from the history of the past three years, and from the experience of Wisconsin and Iowa since 1840, an immigration during the coming year of from 50,000 to 75,000, would not be surprising; and this would, of course, include a considerable number of foreigners.

But although this European element is an important one in the Territory, it is by no means predominant. The Eastern, and particularly the New England element, is much stronger, and unquestionably is destined to constitute the main staple of the population. It promises, indeed, to predominate here in a more marked and decisive manner than in any Western State yet formed. There was a prophecy of this in the position and features of the country, in its latitude, climate, productions, and general relations; and this prophecy has found an echo and fulfillment in the instincts of the popular heart, which have named the Territory, and are fast making it, the "New England of the West." It is claimed by friends of Minnesota—with how good reason we are able only partially to judge—"that never before in the history of the West has so much attention been so early paid to the subject of education; and that in no other region of the West has the early emigration contained so large a proportion of thoroughly educated men."

To this promise of a quick growth and a high character, Minnesota adds a capacity for the maintenance of a great and vigorous population. Her broad area of 166,000 square miles, embraces a vast amount of excellent prairie land, with extensive forests of timber; while its climate equals in salubrity, if it does not surpass, that of any State in the Union; and the northernmost portion of the Territory, contrary to the general expectation, is likely, in this respect, to bear away the palm. For the winters of this region, though cold, are so much drier than those of latitudes but little farther south, as to be less uncomfortable, and less trying to Their snows are ordinarily of but moderate depth, and owing to the prevalent calms of the season, are said to fall so level as not to interfere with travel, which, accordingly, is often prosecuted all winter long, not only where there are no roads, but where human feet have worn not even a path. There is no doubt, indeed, that all the northern frontier of our Republic, as far as the Rocky Mountains, and beyond, is habitable and salubrious, and destined, ere many decades have passed, to be the home of a numerous and vigorous race. Minnesota is already preparing for admission into the Union; and is to be the first of those great States of the farther North, which, one by one, shall knock at the gates of the Capitol, for a national recognition. We trust and believe, that these all shall be blest with permanent freedom and happiness; but if so, they must be blest with a permanent virtue, such as can only grow from a religious root, such as exists only in the souls who are temples of God's Spirit.

KANSAS.

Three missionaries are now under commission within this Territory, ministering to three churches, and preaching at nine outstations. Each of these churches has in hand the task of erecting a house of worship, and is prosecuting it with gratifying prospects of success. The want of such accommodations has, hitherto, been a serious hindrance to missionary efficiency, at all the points of labor.

The contributions to the Society from this Territory, during the past year, have only amounted to $41.50. The smallness of this sum will occasion surprise to none who are familiar with the embarrassments, under which all legitimate enterprises in Kansas have suffered, from the time that the first wave of emigration reached its borders. So great has been the derangement of private affairs, that the congregation at Lawrence were unable, when making their last application to this Society, to pledge any contributions whatsoever towards the support of their minister. Most of the other settlements have, indeed, suffered less than this, but some have suffered more, while none have wholly escaped. Pecuniary embarrassment, however, has been the least of the evils against which the churches and people of Kansas have had to contend. Numbers have suffered from an absolute want of the necessaries of life; and had it not been for the aid so promptly furnished by some of our Eastern communities, it is beyond question, that multitudes must have been reduced to great extremity, and that many must have perished. But these troubles have not only affected the material comfort of the people, and thus indirectly interfered with religious progress; their direct effects upon habits and morals have been quite as bad. They have necessitated a frequent disregard of the sanctity of the Sabbath, and thus promoted a careless and irreverent behavior; have led to an increase of intemperance, profanity, and general irreligion. Even Christians have felt an injurious influence from them; their religious feelings have, too often, been dissipated, and their pious habits, temporarily, broken up; and if a few were driven to cling more closely to the mercy-seat, others have been swept off on the wave of excitement.

In the month of October last, Rev. Lewis Bodwell entered the Territory, to resume the labors which ill health and bereavement had compelled his predecessor to resign, at Topeka. He finds much to encourage him in his important field. The character of society affords cheering ground of hope for the future. "Education and temperance are dear to the heart of the people," and receive a valuable support from their municipal regulations.—The same was true of Lawrence, previous to the invasions.

Since the opening of navigation, the present Spring, an immense immigration has been pouring into the Territory; and it seems probable that this central and commanding region is destined to a more speedy peopling and an earlier social maturity, than has fallen to the lot of any other portion of our country. For, in addition to its unsurpassed natural attractions, the emigration that sets thitherward is characterized by more than the average enterprise and intelligence, and by an unusual variety of occupations. So that Kansas will soon be the home, not only of a busy agriculture, but of manufactures and mechanic arts, a center of production, and the thoroughfare of an important trade.

One of the great lines of travel and commerce that are to connect the Mississippi valley with the Pacific must pass through this Territory. The National Government has already commenced a wagon road leading to Santa Fe, and thence, by way of Fort Defiance, to California.

It is for most substantial reasons, that we esteem the early planting of churches in Kansas of very great importance. A loss occasioned by delay is always a double loss; since obstacles increase, while the facilities diminish, and opportunities come but once. In Kansas, all losses by delay must be unusually great. No pains or cost should be spared, that we may be in season with the swarming population of this important frontier.

NEBRASKA.

Two missionaries are now sustained in this Territory, one at Cmaha City, and one at Fontanelle. Two churches have been organized during the year, and one house of worship has been nearly completed. The church at Omaha City has made most encouraging progress, and expects soon to maintain itself.

During the fall of 1856, a considerable emigration was entering this Territory, which has received still larger accessions to its population the present season. Settlements are forming in all directions. One year ago, the frontier was on the Missouri; and the entire population of the Territory was reckoned at 5,000. Now, settlements have extended more than ninety miles up the Platte river, and others are pushing along the valley of the Elkhorn; the population has already quadrupled; and at the end of the year, will probably amount to 50,000. Within a few years more, four railroads reaching across Iowa, will connect the Missouri with the Mississippi, and, through various other lines of travel and commerce, with the Atlantic seaboard-pouring their fourfold tide of emigration and of trade upon the now solitary prairies of this fertile wilderness. Nor is this flow likely to be checked. The valley of the Platte river has been prepared, by the hand of Providence, to become a part of one of the principal highways across the continent. For the river, taking its rise in the neighborhood of the famous "South Pass," marks out the course of the road which shall cross the Rocky Mountains by that important gate—leading thence, on the one hand, to the great Salt Lake and California, and on the other, to the South Branch of the Columbia and to Oregon. Already, Congress has laid out a military road from Omaha City to New Fort Kearney; and has appropriated $400,000 for continuing it beyond that point to the Salt Lake. Along the line of this road will press a ceaseless stream of human life; which must need as ceaseless a supply of gospel influences, as ceaseless an emigration of faithful missionaries. These great roads must be made a highway for our God.

CALIFORNIA.

Rev. T. DWIGHT HUNT, San Francisco, Agent.

Fifteen missionaries have been under commission within this State, during the past year. In the midst of great embarrassments, they have faithfully clung to their work; and although oftentimes compelled to walk by faith alone, they have not been wholly without the encouragement of visible and important results.

Several missionaries report a striking advance in public morals. Communities where it was once a social crime to say any thing against the theater, and which patronized bull fights, and were filled with drunken brawls on the Sabbath, now yield to the theater but a meager support, evince a general and hearty determination to enforce the "Sabbath law," and have become so quiet and orderly as to call forth the general remark: "It seems like home." Among the good signs are also specified—a more general interest in education, a better class of Sabbath school teachers, and a better attendance on their instructions, more good books and religious papers in circulation, larger Sabbath congregations—embracing an increased number of families—a more general interest in the weekly prayer-meetings, and a fraternal union among churches.

In general, it may be observed that wherever in California the population is gaining in numbers and stability, there christian institutions are growing in real strength and influence, and are bringing important results to view. But wherever towns are declining and the population is unsettled, missionary labors, the most faithful and self-denying, have been kept up in the face of the most disheartening absence of visible fruits. The business of mining for precious metals, it is well known, is always apt to be unfavorable to good morals. As hitherto conducted in California, it has been little better than gambling. Not individuals alone, but whole towns have been ruined by the sudden failure of the tunnels or the washings in their neighborhood. Droughts which have cut off the supplies of water necessary for the miners' use have spoiled the hopes of others; and often fires have swept away in a few hours, the accumulations of long toils. Nor have the labors of the husbandman been much more sure of a reward. Plentiful harvests have filled the too limited market to repletion; and again, prolonged droughts have left his garners empty and his cattle starving.

In proportion as the mining leaves the uncertain sand-flats and gulches, and pushes its way through the quartz veins—a business requiring machinery, capital, scientific and practical skill, and permanency—it promises to lose many of its worst characteristics, and to become a regular and wholesome business. In proportion, also, as the country fills up with inhabitants, rendering the irrigation of districts exposed to droughts possible, and in proportion as the number of those engaged in manufactures, trade, and the mechanic arts increases, so as to constitute a permanent and sure market for the productions of the soil,—in such proportion will the rural population of the State acquire that stability which is essential to the successful prosecution of the missionary work. No amount of zeal and fidelity on the part of the most able and devoted men, can be expected to forestall the results of these necessary changes. Until a great advance has been made in all these respects, the progress of the missionary churches must be slow. They must share the common experience. For the past year, the contributions from California have amounted to only $326.90. Hopes of independence have been deferred, pecuniary embarrassments have been prolonged, ministers' salaries have been reduced to the lowest living point; in some instances, congregations that had assumed their own support have returned, with painful reluctance, with a new request for aid; and in some cases, also, missionaries have found the population around them diminished to such a degree, as to compel the abandonment of their fields for others of better promise. Meanwhile the entire southern portion of the State is settled so sparsely, and by such a base and dissolute population of mingled Mexicans and Americans, that it has not been possible hitherto for christian institutions to gain a foothold among them. Los Angeles is the center of an appalling depravity, worse than even those mountain mining towns, where the theater and gambling saloon take the place of churches, and the Sabbath is the great day of trade and pleasure.

The existing condition of things in California is painful; but there is more of promise in it than in the wild prosperity that went before. Affairs will now gradually settle into natural and permanent channels; regular industry will resume its rights; legitimate production and trade will supplant the madness of gambling speculation; and, as emigration slowly comes in, and the population increases, society will afford a better field for the Gospel, will find itself growing stronger in all things good, and the "empire" that has so long been talked of will become a reality. This improvement, however, must be a work of time. It is dependent, as has been stated, on a very considerable increase of population, which, again, is dependent upon the completion of a cheaper route of emigration than that by the Isthmus-a safe and convenient road, connecting the valleys of the Mississippi with those of California. We are encouraged to hope that this grand necessity of our Pacific coast is likely to be supplied. Appropriations have already been made by the National Government for the construction of three wagon roads—one from Fort Kearney on the Platte river, by way of the South Pass, to the eastern boundary of California, near Honey Lake; a second from El Paso, in New Mexico, to the mouth of the Gila; and a third from Fort Defiance, west of Santa Fé, to a point on the Colorado, near the mouth of the Mohave.

That grace may be given to the brethren in California to endure this present hardness as good soldiers; and that, putting on the whole armor of God, they may be able to stand, in the evil day, and having done all, to stand, shall be our constant prayer. That their churches will come forth from these trials, purified and strengthened, we devoutly hope and believe. That their brethren, with whom it rests, during these days of their weakness, to sustain them by bountiful contributions, will joyfully accept this responsibility, we have the most unquestioning confidence. That, at the last, there shall be a noble Christman Empire on the shores of the Pacific, we have not the shadow of a doubt.

OREGON.

In this Territory, the Society has sustained, during the past year, eight missionaries, the same number as the year previous. One of these, Rev. William A. Tenney, of Eugene City, has entered upon his labors since the last Anniversary. The contribu-

Rev. T. Dwight Hunt, the Society's Agent, last year, for the Pacific coast, after completing his survey of the California destitutions, made a very thorough exploration of Oregon and Washington—full accounts of which have been published in the Home Missionary. After meeting the missionaries at their annual ecclesiastical assembly, he visited them all at their homes, and acquainted himself with the peculiar character and condition of

The circumstances in which they are placed are of extraordinary difficulty. A large proportion of the population are better used to other modes than those which the Society's missionaries adopt, and, owing to their peculiar training and prejudices, are difficult of access. Moreover, the land law, designed to allure emigration, and under which all settlements prior to December, 1855, were made, has operated very unfavorably for the moral and social interests of the Territory. This law offered bounties of land to actual settlers—amounting in many instances to a half mile or even a mile square-conditioned on the emigrant's taking up his residence on his claim. It was inevitable, that this course of policy should tend to scatter the population over a much larger extent of country than could, in any civilized sense, be occupied; and, not the farming population merely, but no small proportion, also, of the professional men, the merchants, and mechanics. One missionary reports, that of the twenty one members of his church, fifteen belong to this class of "non-residents;" their distance varying from two to seventy miles, and averaging twenty one miles. Such sparseness of population is a serious obstacle to the founding of schools and churches.

But, in addition to these embarrassments, the missionary churches have had to struggle against the manifold difficulties incident to a general Indian war. On both the northern and southern frontiers a bloody strife was kept up for many months; interfering with business, occasioning serious losses, drawing off many of the young men, and so preoccupying the public mind, as to crowd religious interests out of view. More recently, a profound anxiety has arisen upon the subject of the introduction of Slavery. The demand for labor, of all kinds, having become very pressing, many of the people whose principles are not fixed, are ready, it is feared, to take upon their own souls the responsibility of this great iniquity, and to burthen their posterity with its curse.

The missionaries are not left, however, without signs of promise. There are many clear heads and warm hearts joined with them in efforts for the welfare of the people. The friends of temperance are gaining ground in their advocacy of a Prohibitory law. Till recently, the petitions in its favor were treated by the Legislature with contempt; but this year they have been respectfully considered, and a bill submitting the question to the people of each precinct passed the House. The battle of temperance, however, must be fought through on the Atlantic coast, before it can be gained on the Pacific.

In other respects, this Legislature has afforded signs of encouragement. Until the last winter, every proposition to have its sessions opened with prayer had been spurned. "We come here to make laws, and not to pray," was the language of one who has, at last, voted with the majority, in favor of inviting the ministers of the several denominations in Salem, to officiate in turn. A like improvement is observable in the general moral and religious tone of society; of which, indeed, this change in the Legislature must be considered a result.

Oregon is a noble Territory, and must become very attractive to emigrants. It has the grandest rivers, the sublimest mountains, and the richest valleys on the Pacific coast. The portion already "claimed" is still very sparsely settled; while everywhere among the hilly regions, rich openings and broad table lands are awaiting the first touch of the plow. The forests are scarcely penetrated. Millions of acres of the most fertile land remain unclaimed, and unvisited by civilized foot. East of the Cascades, there is a wide rolling country, rich in pasturage, and destined one day to become "a land flowing with milk and honey." "If but an industrious and a free people continue in possession of the soil, there is no limit to the beauty and the wealth that will, in time, adorn and enrich" this uncultured wilderness. Meanwhile, it is a satisfaction to know, that a good foundation has been laid in these remote parts of the world, for institutions of religion and learning. Long may Oregon continue to be blessed with the labors of faithful men. Long may our churches be privileged to sustain such men in their holy work.

CONCLUSION.

As we pause, in conclusion, to survey the Society's work, its field opens before our eye, in breadth and solemnity ever new. The year which has just closed has witnessed a very large emigration to the newly opened regions of the West and North-west: and it is worthy of notice, that the frontier whose movement the operations of this Society must hereafter follow, is, in a practical view, considerably more extensive than ever before. The tide of vigorous and intelligent emigration has taken a wider flow; and the front of the main body of the Home Missionary army must now be considered, as stretching from the westernmost point of Lake Superior to the northern boundary of the Indian Territory. Meanwhile, the construction of numerous lines of railroads is virtually creating other frontiers within the frontier, and multiplying the places that must be supplied with the Gospel. Never was the field of the Society's operations growing faster than it is now; never has their actual sphere been more extensive; never have the alarming strides of error and wickedness more sternly warned us to be up and doing; never has there been so solemn a call for the most unflinching fidelity to the great principles of the Gospel.

It is a matter of thankfulness that the Gospel which the Society has helped to proclaim, throughout so large a portion of the land, has thus far been the true, the pure, and the whole Gospel; that its constituency and its executive have ever been so warmly agreed, in carrying out the pious aims of its founders—sending the word of life to all whom they could effectively reach; sustaining such churches only as seek the regeneration of man's corrupt nature, and as make this change—witnessed unto by a consistent Christian conversation—a condition of membership; being fully persuaded, that these principles lie at the basis of christian and of social progress, and are essential, not merely to the growth, but to the continued existence of a truly living Church. These are principles of expediency, as well as of duty. For if we are engaged in spreading the veritable kingdom of God—that kingdom whose coming is not "with observation," but whose home is in the heart —then every step is an advance, all apparent progress is real, we are walking in the line of God's decrees, we are instruments of his Spirit, and an almighty power follows up our feeble action, and pushes on to the achievement of divine results. There is no defeat to any who are truly yielding themselves to be God's instruments, and are doing his work. In this faith and confidence, have the many thousand friends and patrons of Home Missions been, from the first, sustained. They have undertaken to fill the continent with churches. They expect to do it, because they expect that every church which they help to found, shall be made up of persons who have not merely been baptized by priestly hands, and "confirmed," but who give good evidence that they believe in Christ and in his doctrine, and are not denying its principles, or ignoring its spirit, in their life; and they know, that such souls are temples of the Holy Ghost, and such churches are "the body of Christ," in which his power is present, and that hiding of his glory which is to be revealed. It is with devout thankfulness, therefore, that, in the Society's fidelity to fundamental Christian principles, we recognize its claim to the confidence of good men, and a guaranty of its future usefulness and permanence.

Retaining, moreover, the genuine, original American spirit and aim, possessed with the noblest aspiration and ambition of our people, to wit: that they may become, in God's hand, a minister of the truth, whose entrance maketh free, to all nations; flinging wide the arms of a christian fraternity and benevolence to the people of every township in the land; eager to send its missionaries to any congregation who will give them a welcome, and rejoicing to follow wherever God leads the way; already represented by its missionaries and supporters in twenty four States and Territories—covering the greater part of our national domain, and containing a large majority of its total population; scattering its bounties along the shores of both oceans and of the lakes, and most abundantly of all, in that great valley, the future seat of empire, it illustrates its national name—a name in which, as long as Christianity and freedom are national, the patriot Christian may gratefully rejoice.

The evangelization of this North American continent, and of the spreading race that may yet flow from it to all habitable parts of the earth, is a task that surpasses human power; and the scheme of it is too much for human forecast. The plan of God, revealed in successive parts by his providence, is the only plan that it is safe to trust. Whatever directions, limits, delays, or accelerations that imposes, must be welcomed as the ordinance of the only wisdom that seeth the end from the beginning. Holding fast, then, by God's hand, and following, as becometh his children, in his steps, we may hope to walk without stumbling or losing our way:

—knowing no other wisdom, than to fulfill, as near as may be, the duties of each day as it rises, to face every exigency, as it comes, adhering faithfully to all vital principles of God's word, manfully obeying and boldly proclaiming them, and then leaving events in the hand of the Almighty.

On such grounds we stand; and, having done all, here expect to stand; rejoicing to be permitted ourselves to bear testimony to the truth, as well as to aid in its proclamation, and in its triumphal progress round the world.

"The counsel of the Lord standeth forever." "Wait on the Lord, and keep his way, and he shall exalt thee to inherit the

RELATIONS OF AUXILIARIES, AGENCIES, &c.

State and other large Auxiliaries.

Most of the State Missionary Societies were in existence before the formation of the National Society, and some of them—as the Missionary Societies of Connecticut and Massachusetts—were among the earliest organized efforts in our country for sending the Gospel to the destitute. They have voluntarily connected themselves as Auxiliaries with the American Home Missionary Society, from a conviction that greater unity of plan and efficiency in action would thereby be promoted.

The terms by which such Auxiliaries—acting on the principles of the Parent Society, undertaking the supply of the destitute within their own bounds, and paying over their surplus funds to the Parent Institution—are connected with the Parent Society, are such as to secure the following objects, viz.:

First—The Auxiliary is not superseded or overshadowed by the National Institution, but, on the contrary, is invigorated and sustained by connection with it.

This is secured by the provision that the Auxiliary is the sole agency for this cause that operates on its field. It controls all appointments in the State to which it belongs. From it alone, so far as its means will allow, the feeble churches receive assistance. Thus a direct relation and strong attachment is cherished towards it, in the hearts of the ministers and churches.

Again—while the local operations of the Auxiliary are thus encouraged and sustained, its connection with the Parent Society is such as to awaken an interest in the destitute beyond its own limits, and afford facilities for reaching them. It is not only a Society for local purposes, but it is also a branch of the National Society, and, as such, has the control of all agencies for the collection of funds within its own field, and can direct the manner in which its surplus resources shall be expended beyond its own limits. Thus, the State and other large Auxiliaries are not merely organizations to help the Parent Society; they are integral parts of it, bound together in one whole by a common interest in and free access, though the Parent Society, to the great field to be occupied, and governed by the same general principles and rules in carrying on the work.

Agents and Agencies.

Besides preaching to the destitute and taking up contributions for Home Missions, the Agents of the American Home Missionary Society exercise a general superintendence of the operations of the Society within their respective fields. By correspondence and personal visitation, they ascertain the wants of the destitute; assist them to obtain the preaching of the Gospel; and instruct and encourage them to develop their own means for its support. They receive applications for aid, and make such preliminary examination as may be necessary before submitting them for the action of the Executive Committee; and in other ways labor to insure a judicious and economical application of the Society's funds. At present the Society has in its employ no merely collecting Agents, nor any whose services are not required for other purposes in the regions where they labor. The Secretaries of several of the larger Auxiliaries are also the Agents for this cause in their respective bounds.

In certain districts, where the duties of an Agent are likely to be peculiarly responsible, there is associated with him a board of counselors selected from the region of his labors, called an Agency. These Boards of Agency differ from Auxiliary Societies, in that they have no independent existence, but are appointed by the Executive Committee from year to year, and are governed by rules which the Committee prescribe. Their office is to counsel and direct the Agent in carrying out the principles of the Society, and to give advice in relation to such local matters as may be submitted to them by the Executive Committee. The persons composing the Board of Agency, are selected for their intelligence and interest in this cause, and their influence in promoting it; and are so distributed over the field as to secure a personal acquaintance with its condition. The Agent of the Society is also the Secretary of the Agency with which he is associated.

These boards of counsel might not have been necessary, had the ecclesiastical bodies on the ground been able and disposed to pay sufficient attention to the missionary work, and to act as its directors in their respective bounds. But the ministers composing them are usually scattered over a wide extent of territory, and meet but seldom, and only at seasons when they are not much occupied with other business; and accordingly it has been necessary in some cases to organize agencies for this specific work. But in other cases, Synods, Presbyteries, and Associations have chosen to act as Auxiliaries to the Society, examining into the condition of the destitute within their bounds, and recommending the appropriate action for their relief. Ecclesiastical bodies thus related to the

Committees of Missions.

The American Home Missionary Society has ever regarded the ecclesiastical bodies as the appropriate judges of the standing of their own ministers, and of the wants of the churches in their connection. Accordingly the commission issued to every missionary requires that his credentials be acceptable to the ministerial body of his denomination, within whose bounds he is appointed to labor. And the various Presbyteries, Associations, &c., are invited to appoint each, a Committee of Missions from its own members, to receive application from its churches, and suggest to the Society the action proper in each case. Such a Committee constitutes the official source to which reference can be had for information and advice, in all matters pertaining to missions in the connection to which it belongs. This mode of cooperation has been preferred by numerous ecclesiastical bodies, from the first formation of the Society. It guaranties to the churches of each denomination represented in the Society, that their respective claims shall be fairly considered, with all the advantage of having the indorsement of the body to which they belong. The advice of such a Committee, acting in the name and by the direction of the ecclesiastical body to which they belong, is regarded as the highest authority in matters pertaining to the standing of ministers and churches in their connection, and has the same influence with the Society, as that of the Board of Agency appointed by itself.

There is one limitation to this influence, however, which ought to be stated. Should any ecclesiastical body so far swerve from the principles of truth and gospel order, as not to retain the fellowship and confidence of the great body of the Presbyterian and Congregational churches in our land, that fact would cause its recommendations not to be respected, as a basis of action, by the Executive Committee.

As cases may occur in which the feeble churches may not be aware of the existence of any Board of Agency, or Committee of Missions, through whom to apply for aid, a general provision is made, that applications may be vouched by any two ministers of known and approved standing, who can certify to the facts of the case. If the information thus given is not sufficient, other facts are sought by the Executive Committee, with as little delay as practicable, from the most authentic sources from which they can be obtained.

Such, briefly, are the relations of the American Home Missionary Society to

Such, briefly, are the relations of the American Home Missionary Society to the various organs, through which the community seeks to act out its missionary feeling. It will be seen that this plan secures the united action, in the missionary work, of those whose views of doctrine and church order admit of cooperation, and whose interests in the great field are essentially the same. This combination insures a homogeneous policy as to the manner and amount of appropriations, and the qualifications of missionaries; it has discouraged sectional feelings, and diffused throughout each part an interest in all the rest; and thus has formed ties between the West and East, along which has passed from the latter to the former, a silent and invisible current of moral influences more valuable, if possible, than all pecuniary grants. At the same time the connection of the Parent Society with the various associations that act with it, is such as to secure to them entire freedom in the missionary work, in their respective spheres, and an influence beyond them, in cultivating the waste places of our common country.

Applications for Aid.

Feeble congregations, applying for aid in supporting the Gospel, are requested to embody in their application the following particulars, viz.:

The name of the church or congregation; the number of communicants, and the average number of attendants on public worship; the denomination and size of congregations immediately contiguous, with the distance to their places of worship; the total amount of salary which the applicants propose to make up, the portion of that salary which they pledge for the given time, and the arrangements that are made for securing it; whether aid is expected from any other source; and the least amount that will suffice from this Society; whether the minister for whom a commission is desired, is the pastor of the church, or if not, whether any arrangements are made or contemplated in the course of the year, with reference to his installment. These statements should be signed by the trustees and elders or deacons, or by a committee of the congregation, and confirmed by the certificates of two or more clergymen, acquainted with the facts. Also,

The name and post-office address of the minister whose services they desire to secure; whether he is a resident of the place in which he preaches, and is engaged in any other calling than that of the ministry; his credentials; and the certificate of two or more ministers of known standing, as to his general character for piety, zeal, and acceptableness, as a minister of the Gospel.

Where the ecclesiastical body with which a church is connected has a "Committee of Missions" to act in their behalf, this Committee are the proper persons to certify the statements of the church, the standing of the minister, and his prospects of usefulness in the place where his services are desired; and the application should be sent to them for their indorsement and recommendation.

Applications, after being properly indorsed and recommended, should be addressed to the care of the Agent (or Secretary of the Agency or Auxiliary) for the region where the applicants reside.

As a general rule, the appropriations of the American Home Missionary Society are for twelve months from the date of the application; at the end of which, if further aid be needed, a new application must be made, containing all the particulars above stated, and indorsed and recommended in like manner. And each congregation applying for renewed aid, should furnish, in addition to other testimonials, the certificate of the missionary, that they have fulfilled their previous pledges for his support.

The address of the Society's Agents and the Secretaries of its Auxiliaries will be found on the cover of its Reports and of the Home Missionary. Where no such medium of communication with the Society exists, applications may be sent directly to the Society's office in New York.

ADDRESSES

At the Thirty First Anniversary.

Address of Rev. T. Dwight Hunt, of San Francisco, California,

ON MOVING THE FOLLOWING RESOLUTION:

RESOLVED: That the great importance of California and the Pacific Territories, as a missionary field, presents a claim of special urgency upon the sympathy and coöperation of the American churches.

Mr. President: I have come from the frontier, and were I asked, "Watchman, what of the night?" I would at once reply: "The morning cometh." Though upon the borders of that great ocean whose waters wash so many pagan shores, and upon which and across which, falls the dark shadow of benighted Asia, yet our mountain tops are already glowing in the light of your sun that from this favored East is hastening West.

from this favored East is hastening West.

The progress of that morning it has long been my privilege to watch and to welcome. And though its sun is but risen, yet from our hill tops I have already seen its light gleaming and dancing still westward over the sea.

I come to you, then, the bearer of glad tidings. I come bringing to the churches of the Atlantic, the thanks of the Pacific. But, while I present their thanks, I must not neglect to present their claims also.

I have said, sir, in the resolution offered, that these claims are of special urgency. Not that they are in themselves superior to those of the great Northwest. Not that I would arrest that attention, or divert that flow of capital, or that tide of life, now directed to the great territories stretching on toward us, from the borders of Missouri and Iowa. No. The sooner and the better those vast lands are peopled, the sooner and the better the vast slope of the Pacific will be inhabited. The sooner this side of the Rocky Mountains awakes at the touch of the plow, and the sound of the hammer and the steamer, the sooner that side will yield up its forests and wave its grain, and set all the wheels of commerce and the arts in motion. Send forth, then, your thousands and hundreds of thousands this year, and every successive year, into Kansas and Nebraska, to gladden that great waste with cities and villages, and to break the silence of ages with the hum of industry, and the praises of God; the noise of your activity and the snows of the Sierras, to awaken a glad response down our slopes and along our shores. The homes, the farms, the workshops, the schools, asylums, and churches, and the facilities of locomotion that will mark your progress toward us, will but measure your influence over us, and by so much, hasten our likeness to you, and our union with you. Indeed, the proper development of that great central portion of the continent is vital to the whole. It is to be the very heart of the country, and, if diseased, will produce certain if not sudden dissolution. But the lungs must be sound as well as the heart, or the blood, unpurified, will circulate poison everywhere. Those lungs are the border States, both East and West, which inhale the air of both oceans, heaving the breast of the land and vitalizing every part.

In this view, the importance of the Pacific States and Territories can not be over estimated, either actually or relatively. Their area is, of itself, of commanding greatness. Their continental shore line-exclusive of its irregularities, bays, and islands—is 1,343 miles, equal to the entire distance from New Brunswick to South Carolina. California alone has a surface equal to 33 such States as Connecticut, or nearly equal to all New England, New York, and Pennsyl-Oregon is still larger, being equal to 39 States like Connecticut, or 4 States like New York. Washington, the smallest of the three, is nevertheless larger than all New England, New York, and New Jersey; while all three cover a territory equal to all the Eastern States, all the Middle, and all of the Southern that border upon the Atlantic. And this is exclusive of Utah, that great sink of the Continent, which is of itself nearly equal to 6 States like Pennsylvania. Such is the vast country opened upon the Pacific slope for our possession and development. Surely here is room enough for the expansion of our enterprise. And who, in the light of the history of all the West, can doubt but there is room also for the exercise of our benevolence?

But is not much of this surface valueless? Yes. Perhaps one half is unfit for habitation. The arable portions of Utah are but oases in its great desert. So also of that portion of California lying east of the Sierras, and bordering upon New Mexico and the Colorado. But the rest of California, and all of Oregon and Washington, is a vast country of mountains and valleys, resembling in soil, climate, and productions, Texas and Mexico on our own continent, and Asia Minor and Palestine on the eastern. But here is of itself a vast country, equal to all the Eastern and Middle States, and capable of sustaining as large a

For the resources of those territories, wholly unappreciated at first, have proved almost fabulous. In minerals, they are acknowledged to be unsurpassed. For stock raising and wool growing they are perhaps unequaled. In fruits they yield the palm to none. In those great garden staples that constitute so much of the substantial food of any people, they safely challenge the world: while in grains for man and beast they might easily become the Egypt of the Pacific. The drought that prevails in summer over a large portion of them does not materially interfere with their development, for in the everlasting snows, and mountain streams, and secret reservoirs for artesian wells, God has abundantly furnished the means of irrigation, which in Japan and in many parts of Asia and South America is made to answer so well the purposes of rain. A suitable market is alone wanted to stimulate this branch of industry, and astonish the whole country with the variety and abundance of the products of the soil.

Beside these resources, we have ample materials for manufactures and the arts. Our forests grow the timber for ship building, while our bays and harbors are renowned for their capacity and fitness for commerce, both coastwise and abroad. The Bay of San Francisco in its beauty and capacity, takes rank with Rio and Carthage. But it has a rival, in the future, in Puget Sound. On a recent visit to Washington, the magnificence of this inland sea at once impressed me. Its wide opening upon the Pacific, its broad, deep channels sweeping north and east and south, into the very heart of the Cascade slope, its numerous outlets opening so many avenues to trade, the islands of beauty and fertility upon its bosom, its giant forests and beautiful prairies enriching and diversifying its shores, all convinced me that its commercial greatness was only a question of time.

If to all these advantages we add a climate of great variety, mingling the productions of different zones in one, and yet of great salubrity and mildness, even in its northern latitudes, interposing no cold winters to interrupt the navigation of its streams, or to lock up its soil, we must be convinced that the attractions to that coast are of sufficient force to draw thither a large and prosperous people. ...

But properly to estimate the importance of that coast, reference must be had to its position. For to this its area and its resources owe their chief value. It is, however, a value in the future and not in the present. Hitherto that position has retarded its development. But, by and by, it will stimulate the land to its utmost activity. Those bays and harbors have been but awaiting the movements of great changes that are certain to take place. So to speak, they have been passing through their geological period, for the new creation which is at hand. Indeed a new life is already stirring the great ocean upon which they open. A new race is already dashing over it before its winds, and going up and down it by the energy of steam. And not only the Islands and Central and South America, but Asia also has already felt the impulse of its infant trade. But this is only the beginning of that change which is to make the Pacific as the Atlantic, of which San Francisco will be the New York, and the Gulf of California and Puget Sound the Delaware and the Chesapeake.

Just now that trade is checked, and the hope of this future is deferred. But it is only deferred. It can not be disappointed. Even now, revolutions are taking place that will speedily revive it. While I am speaking, walls are crumbling and gates are opening, and the whole world is expectant of great social and commercial changes as the result. Our Pacific harbors open directly in front of those great empires, and are in the best possible position to reap the advantages of such a change.

Doubtless, there has been much Utopian dreaming about the wealth of the East flowing in at our Golden Gate, and our great national road from San Francisco to New York being the highway of the Indies to Europe as well as America. But it is not all a dream. When that road shall have been built, (and its construction is only a question of time,) some of that splendid dream will be a splendid reality. Nor is it wholly a figure of speech to say, that the course of the star of trade, as well as of empire, is westward, and will be till trade and empire meet and sway on the Pacific as on the Atlantic. For as certain as the flight of time, there is to be a "proud hereafter" to the world's greatest ocean, of which our States upon that coast will be the reigning Queen. But what will be the character of this sovereign of the West, and what the influence of her sway over the wide domain, is the great question of the philanthropist and the Christian. Already, forces of great power, but most unequal, are gathered there, and the battle of the future is begun.

There is Utah, reeking in its corruption by its lake of salt, with nothing to save it. It is the pandemonium of tyranny, sensuality, and deviltry, where hell holds jubilee on earth in the name of God and the saints. But it is walled in like a pit, within its own mountains and deserts, with no natural outlet to the sea. Thank God for that, that he has shut that abomination within that great basin, where its impurities settle and stagnate, and where all its streams of death, like its rivers, fall back upon itself. Yet its accumulations have forced one passage southward and westward to the sea, and begun at San Bernardino to poison the shore. Its miasma, too, has sometimes crept up our mountain sides and settled down through our mountain passes upon the western slope, like the breath of the pestilence. But most of its evils are most powerful within itself.

Washington is yet in its solitude, awaiting in its beauty and grandeur the forming hand of man. Its 5,000 people have hardly broken the stillness of its forests and prairies, or numbered its mountains of coal and of gold. They have scarcely developed a character, or laid the foundations of the future. Even the elements of society that were taking shape have been thrown into chaos again by the late Indian wars. And the form they will resume out of that confusion will certainly not be an improvement on the original. Yet a few schools and churches are struggling there for existence and influence. But it is a fact at once significant of the infancy and feebleness of all things in the Territory, that this Society, usually so early in entering upon the wilderness, has not one missionary within its borders.

Oregon, however, is your oldest field on the Pacific. But, though much more populous, and with a character better developed and matured, it has, nevertheless, been greatly retarded by the same causes that have depreciated Washington. That mischievous land law that gave to every married settler a mile section of land, and to every unmarried one half that amount, wherever he might select it, and in whatever shape, scattered its 40,000 people almost beyond the possibility of neighborhoods. Out of the towns, which are small, this wide separation has naturally fostered ignorance, bigotry, and infidelity, by making so difficult the establishment and maintainance of schools and churches. But aside from this evil, and that "barbarism" to which all such emigration tends, the greatest curse upon the territory, as upon the whole coast, has been its politicians, men who, with few exceptions, have not scrupled at bribery or perjury for the sake of gain, and who are now pandering to slavery, and turning traitors

The alarm that was sounded from that shore last year may have subsided, but the danger is not over. Plotters from the South are still there, and the majority of the settlers in both Territories are from slave States. In these circumstances, and in these times of violent factions, where is the security for liberty? On the simple issue of "slavery, or no slavery," there is much to hope in the good sense of that people. But should any unfortunate issue arise to evoke sectional prejudices, there is no power, except that which turns the hearts of men as the rivers are turned, through channels torn open by the flood or rent by the earth-quake, that can save that land of sublime mountains and magnificent valleys from the blight of bondage. To appreciate this catastrophe to the purity and liberty of the press and the pulpit, I have only to refer you to the demolished printing-offices and the rafted and exiled preachers of Kansas and Missouri. But whatever be the result, I am glad to hear testimony here to-night, that the noble men you have sent thither have done, and will ever do, their possibilities to avert such a disaster.

Happily, as we hope, the contest now going on in Oregon has ceased in California. Since the successive defeats of the Convention scheme and the State Division scheme, the enemies of our liberties have at least suspended hostilities.

But these have been but a few of the enemies of the public good.

California has been a kind of Nod for the refuge of every Cain that could get to it. It has been the elysium of unscrupulous adventurers. It has, moreover, been the rendezvous of broken-down men, seeking there their last chance of wealth or of power. Exceptions, of course, there have been, many and noble. And the world may be safely challenged to produce, under similar circumstances, a self-denial more difficult, a liberality more generous, a public spirit more unselfish, or a piety more active and useful, than has so soon blessed and adorned that State with so many asylums, common schools, colleges, and churches.

Still, it must be acknowledged that the tendency of most things has been to excessive worldliness, to practical infidelity, to dangerous license, and even to social disorganization and ruin. More than once the State has trembled for itself. More than once it has been tossed to the very verge of shipwreck. And long since it would have gone down, had not He who quiets storms early walked our troubled waters, and bid them rest.

But California presents no new history, either in the excesses of its early life, or in the slow but decided improvement that has marked its progress. It is but the history of a score of States in all the West. The Gospel your Society so early, and at such expense, sent to that land, and which, with so liberal and wise a policy has been sustained there, has but given another proof of its vitalizing and re-creative power. The change that has been in progress has been but the breathing of the same Divine Spirit that has hovered over all our settlements, evolving order out of confusion, light out of darkness, and life and beauty out of death. The only difference, if any, is that this renewing Power has had upon the Pacific unusual odds to contend against. The evils to be overcome, though the same in kind, may have been intenser in degree.

For the emigration to that land was a peculiar one, not of families, but of men. The intention was a peculiar one, not to settle the land and improve it, but to impoverish it and leave it. And the law that governed it was peculiar in its intensity, though not in its nature: "Every man for himself." The result was as natural as it was deplorable. Avarice became the controlling and devouring passion of the masses. It was more than in haste; it run mad. It was more than unblushing; it put on the bold front of atheism, and ignored God. It regarded nothing sacred that interfered with it. Whatever of character still clung to it in rags, it tore from it. Whatever of conscience still troubled it, it stifled. The Sabbath, that weekly crossed its path, it trampled under foot. Even those ties of self-respect, or of honor, or contract, or even of consanguinity and friendship, which ordinarily bind men to truth, integrity, or humanity, were sundered by it as with the touch of fire. In short, avarice was in for the chances, and in pursuit of them went aloose and afar. And it was this haste to be rich which hurried us into all our crimes and perils. The tracing of this spirit to its results, in all departments of society, would discover the secret of our strange history.

But, what is more to our purpose on this occasion, it would solve that hitherto insolvable mystery, why our mountain churches have been so long dependent upon missionary societies for aid; why from among the very hills that pour their monthly millions to the sea, the cry should come along with the golden stream to send a portion of it back. Sir, the Christians of that land are few, especially in the hills; far less, in proportion, than even in the destitute parts of the West. And the gold of the land is not with these few. The very recklessness of the race for wealth has either kept conscientious men from it altogether, or soon obliged them either to throw away their character in order to keep up, or to fall in the rear and content themselves with what those more greedy may have left behind. Thus they have been compelled to be mere gleaners in the field where faster men were reapers. Moreover, of these few and comparatively poor Christians, only here and there one has intended to make that land his home. And it is not at all in human nature, and but little in gracious nature, as usually manifested, to do much for the institutions of a land where we are mere strangers and sojourners. Though this serious evil, perhaps the greatest drawback to our social and religious progress, is one that is yearly decreasing, yet the great want of California to-day is a fixed home population. Certainly, not till it becomes a land of homes, and not of tents and cabins, can the few Christians meet unaided the extraordinary expenses of church building and pastoral support. The few that are at home there have done nobly. you have aided them, it is but a tithe of what they have done for themselves. And though the aid you have rendered them has been large sometimes at the outset, no churches in all your wide field have so soon become independent of your help. But it has been, in some instances, by a struggle and a heroic devotion which have been seldom equaled.

But great as the struggle of all the churches has been in the past, it will, if possible, be greater in the future. Avarice may not be as reckless, but it still prevails in the more dangerous form of universal worldliness. Lust may not be as rampant, nor political corruption as dominant, nor infidelity as defiant, but in forms less visible and repugnant, and therefore more subtle, they are still there, universal and powerful. The sectarian spirit may not so weaken and divide our religious strength as in some parts of the West, but some antagonistic sects are more formidable. Mormonism has already invaded the coast, and begun to blight one of its gardens of beauty. Though it is a sect that can make but few proselytes among an intelligent people, yet it can do a vast amount of evil among a wicked people. We may cut the cancer from us, but its poison may first corrupt us beyond the possibility of a cure.

But, worst of all, Romanism is among us, active and wealthy, and growing in strength in all places of importance. Everywhere, where influence centers, it is building large churches, and laying foundations for all the future. Already it boasts the largest schools in the State. And such is its political influence, that it controls and perverts to sectarian purposes a large portion of the school fund. It may not be remembered by Protestants that California was once, and but recently, an old province of the Pope. But the Jesuits remember it well, and their purpose is fixed, and their expectation high, some day to redeem that land to Rome. And though they have for a season withdrawn some of their force from Oregon and Washington, to concentrate power in California, yet it is only till they can return stronger than before. Their plans of conquest cover the whole coast. But formidable as their power is, it would not be as portentous as it is, were our Protestant Zion half aware of the danger.

This then, is no time to leave those few struggling churches to themselves. The child you have nursed through infancy must not be left in its youth. If precocious, and subject to convulsions, and too early developing a giant's proportions, all the more needful is the mother's care, lest deformity or monstrosity ensue. What you do, then, for that coast, do largely, as heretofore, and whatever be the debt, it will be repaid. Who that looks upon the mass can doubt it? If its area does not impress you, nor yet its resources, nor the forces that are gathering there for, perhaps, the first of the final battles with Mammon, Mormon, and Rome, let, I beseech you, the great Pacific speak to you, in tones loud as its ceaseless surf, of the islands of darkness upon its bosom, and of the great continent of night beyond. Perhaps never before was such a wide field opened to christian philanthropy. Over against California, civilization has to raise up whole nations from the dust. Freedom has to liberate half the race of man from despotism. Religion has to break the fetters of superstition from the whole of the ancient world. But we must first take possession of the Pacific coast in the name of the Lord, and train up our forces there in churches and colleges, before we can go forth from it to this great conquest.

What, sir, if in the coming fullness of the Gentiles, the interests of our Protestant Church should require a great University for the education of all languages and nations, where upon the shores of a great Christian people, is there a place so well fitted for such a purpose, by its position, as that very bay where is now centering the commerce of the West? This may sound like a dream, but it may prove to be a prophecy. Rome has a dream of that kind for itself, and intends to make it fact. It is for the Church of Christ to say whether He or antichrist shall enter in and reign. Oh! while it is yours to do it, and to speak it, send thither all needful forces, and say to the portals of our great harbors: "Lift up, ye gates, and be ye lifted up, ye everlasting doors, and the King

ON MOVING THE FOLLOWING RESOLUTION:

RESOLVED: That it is the imperious obligation of the strong of our country to seek out and succor the weak, and that the American Home Missionary Society deserves our hearty support, as opening one and an indispensable arenue of communication between the one class and the other.

Strength of all kinds in our world has its duties as well as its privileges. It is not here on exhibition to attract attention or win applause. It is here to find its work and do it. Peculiar gifts involve peculiar responsibilities. All that any man has, his mental endowments, his material possessions, his very hopes of heaven, he holds in trust for his race. Over against all his powers and opportunities, and rising as high as they, are set his obligations. The cries of the weak are ever sounding in the ears of the strong, "Come over and help us!" The law of earth is one of interdependence. The weak claim kindred with the strong, and it is because the strong have measurably heeded their claim, that the world has come thus far on its way—that infants have grown up to manhood, and that tottering age has descended comfortably to its grave. Evermore while time shall last, the strong must shelter the weak.

Neither does this law of dependence bless the weak alone, but the strong as much. Strength needs weakness to temper and mellow it, else is it likely to swell into imperious arrogance. The granitic basis of the earth needs the mould and verdure that cover it; the trellis needs the vine that drapes its nakedness; and so strength, however sinewy, needs pliant weakness to give it beauty. One of the most attractive sights of earth is helpless infancy, or as helpless age, clinging to firm manhood for support. The most happy domestic alliances are those between the strong and the weak. The man of burly strength who could toss the frail partner of his life clear over the horizon, is yet drawn by the deep instincts of his nature, by the very passion of his strength for something to succor, to cull her out from all her sex, and give her a nestling place under his brawny arm. If weakness looks to power, power no less covets weakness, and in no aspect of it does the eternal power of Jehovah appear so attractive, as when a crowded universe of weak, dependent creatures hang upon it, and run into it as a refuge.

These principles have an immediate, and in some respects pressing application to our own country and our own time. Here as elsewhere the poor and rich, the learned and ignorant, those with christian aspirations, and those whose hopes are limited to time, are set down side by side to live and die together. No institutions can, even if it were desirable, bring society to a common level. Nature, Providence, and grace even, obstinately refuse to be democratized. Free governments leave men like drops in the ocean, to find their own level. Native inequalities they can not and ought not to iron down. They put nothing into men, but give scope only to what God has put into them. They give every man a chance. They open to him glorious opportunities. They remove all barriers. They give every man an open stadium in which to run for the prizes of life. Under our free institutions, more than elsewhere, what a man is and has, indicates what nature designed that he should be and have. His position declares measurably his deserts. If a man lives upon Fifth Avenue, with all the appliances of luxury, the fact that he has reached such a goal is evincive that nature has given him the power to reach it. This is a poor, dishevelled world at best, and in every part of it some men find fortunes, who ought to find halters; but here more than in other sections of the earth, a man's real possesssions demonstrate his inherent energies. The highest prizes of this world ever will and should belong to the strong men of the world. No advances in society will ever change this settled order of things. It is desirable to see faculty and effort winning their due rewards, to see men wealthy to whom God has given the power to get wealth; and yet, the very scope which is given to superior powers under our free institutions, the very precedence which would be given to the men of mind and might, would present one of the saddest aspects of life, rampant and selfish passion prevails, the men of strong limb always conquer in the rush, and the men of feeble frame fall beneath their tread. Nowhere more than under institutions where strong men lead the van, and mount to wealth, office, and honor-nowhere more than here do we need that soft pity, which looks out and shelters weakness. A despotism that by arbitrary laws or decrees, raised and kept some feebler men encircled with wealth, or in conspicuous and responsible political positions, would be, I verily believe, far better than institutions where the strong only would be raised aloft, and where no law of christian kindness would constrain them to share their blessings with those of feebler endowments. It is desirable to have the upper air all unobstructed for the bird of strongest pinion, but nature prompts the mother to hover over her offspring—to strengthen their feebler wing, and coax them on to try a higher It may be said by some, that where competition is open, and faculty has room, that men should be left to win what they can, but this can not and ought not to be so. Despotism with companionship and help is better than freedom with isolation and abandonment. The very fact that all have an open field under our institutions, imposes higher obligations upon those that have, to help those that have not. If there be a man, a church, or a community that is strong, in this country, then in no country under the cope of the heavens, comes there so loud a call to such, from God himself, to help the weak man, the weak church, the weak community. The wealthy here, the intelligent, the cultured, the good, are doubly stewards of all that they have. If here the more highly gifted win the richest prizes, they are doubly bound to share them with those who have less strength for the race, and less power to win the crowns. If churches in one locality are rich and prosperous from more favorable position and more open opportunities, they are under a more pressing obligation to

And what the strong ought to do, they can do. There are enough of those that have, to give to such as have not; there are enough that know, to teach them that do not know; there are enough within the precincts of the kingdom of God, to save those that are without those precincts. There is conservative and reformatory power, sufficient to arrest and turn back the destructive agencies and influences that are abroad and active among us. need not stop to number those who are and those who are not of Israel, those whose mission it is to conserve and redeem, and those whose apparent mission it seems only to corrupt and destroy. We need not array them and set them over against each other in separate hosts. We are aware, in part, at least, of the vast powers and numbers of those who are seeking to destroy. Evil is mighty and active among us. It often occupies the seat of influence; it is loudvoiced and many-handed. It exalts itself, and is imperious. If this land becomes the heritage of Christ, it will not be from any lack or any leniency of hos-The kingdom of Christ, in this land, as in every land, must stand and advance because it has the power to do so. In some respects the portents are threatening—a dark and troubled night is upon us; the winds are out in their wrath, and the ocean heaves under their rage, but we are not to forget the conservative and redemptive power of the piety of our time. A little goodness in alliance with Christ, is mighty. "One under his banner can chase a thousand, and two put ten thousand to flight." A little seed-corn can sow the world; it may be but a handful, but the fruit thereof shall shake like Lebanon. A few with stout hearts, and God to help them, can keep this land from ruin; can throw strong cords around it and bind it in allegiance to the eternal throne. We should not despise the enemies of Christ and his cross. We should not underrate their power or exertions; it is no part of wisdom to do so. We should exercise the broadest and most wakeful intelligence as to the evils already here, and those that are still coming upon us. We are like a broad basin into which the turbid waters of all continents are pouring themselves. No barriers inclose us to keep out errorists in politics or religion. We are open for all the world, and the world with all it has is coming to us. We would Divine aid, and "bating not a jot of heart or hope," we would advance to our toils and our conflicts. Discarding all presumption, we would yet sympathize with Paul, when he declared that he could do all things through Christ who strengthened him. Those that are for Christ in this land, owe it to their Master to conquer it for him. Weak in themselves, their possibilities of accomplishment are great through Christ. Goodness left untrammeled to cope with evil on a fair field, should know no despondency. The Master expects those who are strong in his strength to take possession of this broad territory for him. It is a great work, but we can do it.

Self preservation requires that those who are strong in the strength of Christ should help their weaker fellow-countrymen. We must save this land, or perish with it. If the masses are given up to practical atheism, if an iron despotism under republican forms silences the cry of the poor and helpless, we must share the common fortune. The strong and weak, those for Christ and those against him, share a common life here, and a common destiny. We are all embarked in one ship, and if she go down, the more and the less favored may alike go down with her. We can not be safely heedless of any part of this land. We are one people, and far distant be the day when we shall be more than one—far distant the day when one star shall be dimmed or rent from our flag. Our patriotism, our generous hopes and loves embrace all the land from sea to sea, from lakes to gulf, and we would go up in the length and the breadth of it, and compass it all for Christ. This is our charge, and this charge we would keep. If the East be strong in men and means, it must impart its greater resources and richer experiences to the West, and the young life of the West must project its vigor into the more torpid veins of the East.

The American Home Missionary Society offers itself as a favored medium through which the differing sections of the land, the more favored and the less favored can come into fellowship. Through it, as a channel, those who have may supply the lack of those who have not. The two classes need to be brought into closer proximity, and to look each other in the face. It will not do for Christians and worldlings, believers and infidels, to live wholly asunder. Segregation is good for neither. The world has had one experiment of the kind. Men of all beliefs and of no belief, black spirits and white, men circling all the great sphere of thought, need to know each other's wants and feelings, and this Society aids in bringing them together.

It has not left the ignorant and the godless in any portion of the country to themselves. It has gone to spy out their weakness and their nakedness, to sound the depths of their wants and their woes. Into many a dark nook where ignorance and impiety have burrowed, this Society has cast illumination. It has meant that no accessible portions should be unvisited, that no remote corner should be unpenetrated. From few works, probably, could a more vivid and complete portraiture of the moral condition of the newer sections of our territory be gained, than from the monthly periodical of this Society. With none of the spirit of a Ham, but with the spirit of a tender compassion it has summoned the friends of Christ to gaze upon the moral wastes of their country.

And as this Society has revealed the weakness, so also has it evolved the resources and the piety of our people. It has brought the ignorant and the unbelieving before us only to stir our patriotism and our piety. It has opened the doors of our common home, and summoned those who dwelt in its more finished apartments to look upon those who dwelt in its more remote and dingy ones. It has taken those who fared luxuriously, and led them to gaze upon those who were covered with rags. It has taken the worshippers in splendid churches, where the pealing organ swelled the note of praise, and carried them into the wilderness where no temple is reared, and where no pastor leads his flock into green pastures. This Society has come to us in our ceiled houses and our pleasant surroundings, and stirred our pity and our consciences. It has opened many hearts and many purses, that but for its appeals would have been closed. At its trumpet call, parents have given up their sons and daughters, and sent them out with their prayers and contributions to take possession of new States for Christ. It has stirred benevolence, that but for it would have been dormant. The older East has been blessed in giving to the younger West. Not a dollar which it has drawn from our pockets, not a sympathy or affection for the great West which it has stirred in our hearts, not a man or woman that it has solicited us to give up, would we withdraw. Our New England homes have precious investments in loving hearts all over the West. Our sons and daughters are upon the shores of the Pacific sea, and there is not a thoughtful man that has given aught to save any portion of this land, that does not to-day bless God for the opportunity of doing it. Had we withheld under the calls of this Society, our doing so would only have tended to poverty. Our only regret is, or should be, that we have not given more to the weak and to the destitute.

But while this Society designs to help the weak, it also designs at the carliest moment to make them self-sustaining, and the supporters of others. This is its settled policy, and its method of doing this is the most simple and feasible possible. Finding no fault with, but commending fully other societies that have other objects which they prosecute in their own ways, I may say that this Society's method of raising feeble churches and communities to moral strength, is the best of all ways. It finds a man with a living soul and the kingdom of God in him, a patient, industrious, educated man, and sets him down in a community there to abide, to study its peculiarities, to share its weal or woe. He is not to be a man ever fronting the wilderness, running christian civilization out of sight, a religious scout on the outskirts of society, with his foot ever in the stirrup, having no center and no home. He is to settle down—be a husband, a father, and a citizen, to link himself to men with friendly ties, to imbed himself in their hearts, and have their affections grow up and wrap him around.

In all enterprises, the chief thing is to find a man who can embrace them in their comprehensiveness and execute them with vigor. In military operations and in civil affairs, the right man is "victory organized." Napoleon carried the entire Italian campaign in his head, and won his splendid victories before the battles were fought. Map out a railroad in some men's heads, and ere long the iron track will pierce mountains, and span chasms and rivers. Most things are daguerreotyped in brains before they are worked out in solid materials. Let a man of pith and power project a thing, and granite rocks and solid iron become fluid to him. All needful things troop to do his bidding. He lays out his purpose like (lideon's fleece, and blessed dews from all the heavens fall to fill it with moisture. The first and the main thing in all undertakings is to find your man. A man with the love of Christ and the hope of heaven in his soul, is a vitalizing and an organizing force. His soul is a rich soil, out of which all good things grow. Blessed institutions and laws, schools, colleges, social order, churches, emanate from him. Virtue of all sorts goes out of him. Society becomes equipped throughout, through his own and the efforts of others that he rallies around him. Such a man, under God, originates and sustains all blessed things. Such a man this Society seeks, and often finds. It is surprising to observe how soon, after some of the vigorous and devout missionaries of this Society have entered a town or a village on the Western frontier, where all material things were rough, and all spiritual things rougher still, order has been brought out of confusion. When they entered, the Sabbath was disregarded, the crack of the rifle was heard in the very streets on the holy day, there were few and poor schools and no church. They have planted themselves down in some such outposts, and prayed and worked, and the process of rectification and purification has begun and speedily advanced. We have watched the operations of these men, and have wondered at their success in developing with a free Gospel, freely proclaimed, an attractive christian civilization. In favorable localities through the enterprise and vigor of these men, churches grow up to a sinewy strength, and instead of being nourished at the breast of their mother, they speedily become contributors to her support. The weak become as David. The eaglet becomes an eagle, and soars into the empyrean.

I have said that the strong should support the weak, and I would now add that, other things being equal, the weakest in the land should be helped first and most. If there is one portion of this broad country that is sunk lower than another, there, with equal prospects of success, this Society should direct its efforts. It should, it will know no North, no South, no East, no West. A continent is its field, and all our countrymen it seeks to save. But wherever it goes, wherever it sends its missionaries, they must go with a free gospel, with untrammeled souls, and unfettered lips. This Society seeks to elevate and advance to a sinewy strength the churches and the communities where it operates. It fosters no effect civilization by a partial Gospel. It must have free scope for an entire Gospel. Allowed thus to go, this Society will dot the land with its stations, in proportion as the strong shall give it strength, and as those that have shall contribute of their means. This Society is competent to supply a preached Gospel to all the destitute of our country. No section should limit it, and none will if it be allowed to cherish and execute its noble designs.

Address of Rev. William Hogarth, of Brooklyn, N. Y.,

ON MOVING THE FOLLOWING RESOLUTION:

RESOLVED, That the tendency of the Home Missionary work to promote the unity of the people of this country, commends it to the sympathies and the prayers of all good men.

Mr. Hogarth spoke substantially as follows:

There is a great want in this country of some element to unify and cement the masses. They live beneath the same o'erbending heavens, under the same constitution, are members of the same confederacy, and are endowed with the same credentials and immunities of our common citizenship. This at least is the theory. We complain somewhat that it is not also a fact; or, if a fact at all, it is so in the least degree. Beneath the semblances of unity which such facts indicate, we see, however, the materials of discord; materials which are restless and vigorous, and in their activity and energy unfold stupendous results.

When he spoke of a power capable of unifying the people, he had no reference to a unity which is the synonym of monotony. He had as much horror of a petrified society as of one undergoing a disintegrating process. He asked for no unity that lacks thrift, enterprise, invention, individuality.

The inhabitants of this country occupy a vast territory, rich in resources of every kind that can enhance national wealth. No other land so cordially invites labor; no other promises such ample rewards to virtuous free industry. In the nature of the case, it will be largely populated, for it can sustain a large population. Its capability in this respect has not yet been tested in a single State. Our institutions also invite to our shores the citizens of the over-crowded Eastern world, where wealth has been concentrated in the hands of the few, and the many are unable to rise above a condition of actual serfdom. The freedom of our government, the open avenues to education, to wealth, to identity with national interests, are all attractions to men on whose horizon no ray of light uprises amid their universal gloom.

There is a necessity of some element that shall make the people a unit; for the sources of division are as many and various as the influences that meet on this stirring theater of enterprise. There is no charm in the nation's name, none in her well-earned glory, that can avert the peril of divisive tendencies.

In the radical selfishness of the human heart is a strong incentive to isolation except in so far as intercourse with man may promote the aims of selfishness.

It must not be forgotten that men of many nationalities are settling this country, and settling, too, in colonies, where they preserve their language. "Nationality follows the line of language." They are found here with old prejudices which they imbibed at home, which descended to them as an heir-loom. With them these hatreds are almost sacred. With many of them, religious education has been narrow, and of course, bigoted. They know nothing of a large "freedom to worship God." Taught that only one creed, one mode of worship, one church, can be the avenue to a divine life and to God's favor, they resent any free discussion. They are outraged with any manful, christian attempt to evangelize the nation, to give the Gospel to them as to others. That religious education is hostile to the views which came with the Pilgrims to New England, views which were early inwrought into our systems of public education, and are represented in our State constitutions.

These causes, and others like them, indicate the necessity of some common tie between the people of this country; a people so various in origin, language, religion, and general interests. The necessity grows earnest, and thoughtful men, who once saw only the impetus of youth and the vigor of health in the diversity of our opinions and unconstrained energies, now see the rush of forces that are reckless and destructive, and are casting about them to discover some mode of avoiding the collision which seems to be impending.

And what can be relied upon for the attainment of an end so desirable? Are the ordinary agencies which are now at work in society competent to the result? Those which are merely human, do not seem to be invested with a capacity equal to it; trade fails from its twofold tendencies to centralize in the large marts of commerce, beget sectional jealousies, and establish separate communities, and to create local rivalries, which are hostile to the highest union of a people whose interests are really one. Partisan politics distract the unities which a common nationality invokes. The very maxim of success for such politics recognizes this motto—"Divide and conquer;" and victory, with its spoils, is the watchword and aim of mere partisanship.

Our systems of public education are valuable auxiliaries in this work, but they are yet imperfect, and withal do not strike deeply enough into human nature to be thoroughly efficient.

There is only one mode of unity that seems possible—that which embraces all diversity as by a "higher law," and which shall be regnant amid all inferior and clashing interests. Such union as will preserve our national identity, is possible only upon the condition that some central element in man's spiritual nature rules all his secondary purposes. That such a result will be wrought out under the economy of Christ's love and Gospel, is both matter of prophecy and rational expectation. True, the Gospel was to be a sword, but a sword for peace in the end. It may be long ere this time comes. The religion of men must be imbued more deeply with the spirit of heaven before so grand a period arrives.

Only that which takes hold of the moral nature, and works upward and out ward from that source, as a plant from the germ, can truly and well govern man and society. The word which reveals the true God—His government, His character, His scheme of mercy—which brings into the heart of a man a common object of worship, a common supreme aim in life, a common law of love; this word is the grand and simple unifying force that is needed. On that basis, and on that alone, a true brotherhood is created, a self-sacrificing regard for the benefit of others—a tie stronger than any nationalities or envenomed prejudices—a force which can overgo all common distinctions, and embrace in genial fellowship a ransomed sinner, and bow with him at the same altar of prayer, whatsoever his tongue, or color, or social position.

This is the work of this Society—to give the Gospel to the needy of this land; not for sectarian aims, not for ecclesiastical aggrandizement, but in obedience to the command to "preach the Gospel to every creature." The first object, and the most important, beyond all comparison, is the salvation of the soul. But the collateral aim or effect of this Gospel in reducing to harmony the discord of human society, a discord which is the legitimate outgrowth of sin,

On considerations purely national and human, this Society therefore challenges

On considerations purely national and human, this Society therefore challenges the sympathy and confidence of every lover of his country. On grounds that are Christian, it deserves the support of men who love Christ.

MISCELLANEOUS SELECTIONS.

OBSTACLES TO HOME MISSIONS.

WE propose to call attention to some of the obstacles with which the Home Missionary cause has to contend. In doing this, we shall not be understood as aiming to give a just and balanced picture of society, but only of certain unfavorable aspects of it in reference to this work.

It is obvious that, if all the people of our country were of the same language and descent, and had been brought up under similar, and under wholesome influences; if the proportion of real Christians among emigrants were large; if the ruling spirit of this emigration were in accord with the spirit of genuine piety; if this flow of population were regular and not too vehement; if settlements were made with deliberate, conscientious regard to religious interests; if the new communities were intelligent, orderly, and stable—free from gross stupidities, sectarianisms, fanaticisms, unbeliefs; and if the infinite value of the Gospel were duly appreciated, then the work of rooting out the elements of the old heathenism which still remain, were comparatively easy. But unhappily, these things are not so.

Materials of the Population.

1. Look first at the heterogeneous nature of the materials entering into the composition of society on the missionary field.

It is brought together from various continents; and Europe, Africa, and America, each claim a considerable proportion of our population. It is aggregated from diverse nations; Irish, Germans, French, English, Scandinavians, Hollanders, with a sifting from almost every other European realm, and numerous representatives of many an African tribe, mingle with the sons of the Old Thirteen, and of every younger State and Territory that has come into existence. The German democrat and the French socialist find themselves side by side with the staid republicans and Puritans of New England, and with the slaveholders and "sand-hillers" from the South. Protestant and Romanist, Rationalist and Presbyterian, Lutheran, Baptist, Churchman, Come-outer, the Jesuit and the Hardshell, the Mormon and the Soul-sleeper, find themselves brought into necessary intercourse, and mingling on terms of equality. Here are souls burning with the love of freedom; and here, also, those whose being is eaten up with hatred of "abolition." Here are the most humble servants of "his lordship" the bishop, and "his holiness" the pope; and here, too, the souls that have scorned all allegiance, and abjured all reverence. Here is the acute speculative thinker and reformer, full of his ideas of progress, his enthusiasms, and projects; and here, that unfortunate victim of another's oppression, the "poor white" from the South, whose aspirations have died beneath the malign shade of slavery.

If similarity of origin, education, ideas, habits, and sympathies is calculated to promote a cordial union in religious affairs, and to facilitate the building up of vigorous churches, then so great a diversity of origin, sentiment, principle, and sympathy must be a grievous obstacle to this work. It would be easy to multiply facts illustrative of this state of things; and to show how, in communities populous and rich enough to maintain several strong churches, these divisions and jealousies are a source of prolonged weakness. But it is needless to bring these details before the readers of the Home Missionary.

We may be permitted, however, to call to mind, briefly, some of the statistics of emigration which were brought to view in the census reports of 1850, and which illustrate the heterogeneous character of the population of our new States. It is stated, that while 93 per cent. of the population of Scotland, 96 per cent. of the population of England, and over 99 per cent. of the population of Ireland, were born within those countries, respectively; in Illinois only 39 per cent. were born within the State, in Iowa less than 22 per cent., and in Wisconsin less than 18 per cent. But in the British dominions the greater proportion even of those born out of the country, were yet children of natives; and those of foreign parentage form in Scotland only one tenth of one per cent.; in Ireland, one twentieth; and in England, one fiftieth of one per cent. How different in our Western States, where we find the children of foreign birth forming—in Iowa and Ohio, 11 per cent.; in Illinois and Missouri, 13 per cent.; in Michigan, 14 per cent.; in Minnesota, nearly 33 per cent.; and in Wisconsin, over 36 per cent., of the entire population; and the average of the whole North West estimated at 18 per cent.

Discordant Elements.

2. But the elements of our Western population are not simply heterogeneous;

they are discordant.

There are the Irish; who have come hither, not by myriads, but by tens of myriads; most of them ignorant, bigoted, full of suspicions, jealousies, and hostilities; under subjection to priests whose aim it is to cherish these jealousies, and to keep their flocks forever separate from the mass of the people, so that they should remain a realm within the Republic, owning allegiance to "Babylon." In many large towns, and in many young villages springing to life along canals and railroads, these Irish Romanists form a large and important part of the population—none the less important from the fact that now they are poor; for the laboring man of to-day is the rich man of to-morrow; and while the sons of wealth descend, the children of poverty are rising.

Then there are the Germans, in many places far more numerous than foreigners of any other nation, and in some respects more formidable opposers of evangelical religion, from their greater intelligence, and from the compactness of their communities. The majority of them are either Romanists or unbelievers. They make the Sabbath a day of revelry, and are everywhere the most ardent advocates of strong drink. Industrious, sagacious, often well educated, they yet hold with the greatest tenacity the prejudices against the religion of the Bible, imbibed in a country where the friends of the Bible had sided with faithless and oppressive rulers; and they cling here to the abuses and the laxities which they learned to relish in "the fatherland." On the whole, they constitute one of the most impracticable, as well as powerful, elements with which Christianity has to contend. Often do the missionaries have occasion to lament the sad preponderance of their evil usages, their gross assaults upon the Sabbath, and against the Temperance cause, and the Bible.

But even the native emigration westward is not such as we could wish. Multitudes of emigrants from Southern States, themselves victims of Slavery, and fugitives from its indirect oppressions, have yet learned to be suspicious of the freemen of the North, and "Yankee" schools and preachers have been the special objects of their jealousy. It has seemed to many of them that "heart religion" is well nigh impossible to an educated minister; and they have preferred the exhortations of "Hez." and "Old Jones," delivered in the midst of ecstatic groans and convulsions, to any "speaking of the truth in love" from lips of wisdom and gentleness.

At the opposite extreme from these, are radicals and come-outers from the East—men who have learned many things, but nothing rightly; full of curious intelligence, but "knowing nothing as they ought to know;" full also of strife and debate, heady, high-minded, fierce, ever learning, never coming to the knowledge of the truth; men of diverse and changeable creeds, of disbeliefs and nobeliefs, whose hand is lifted to destroy, but not to build.

Between these two classes is to be found every grade of ignorance and of irreligion, of mental stupidity and fanaticism; and in addition to them must be reckoned that vast multitude who care little for the things of religion, but are wholly given up to the pursuit of wealth.

Throw these discordant elements together, mingled so that in one place one kind shall be in the ascendency, and in another place another kind, and who does not see that this confusion is of itself a serious obstacle to the growth of religious institutions?

Mode of Settlement.

3. But consider, in the third place, the manner in which these materials are brought together.

Settlements are made with vast rapidity. In twelve months the population of Minnesota increased from thirty five to seventy five thousand. In the ten years between 1840 and 1850, the thirty thousand inhabitants of Wisconsin became three hundred thousand. The annual growth of Iowa is now estimated at one hundred thousand. This tremendous tide of mingled elements pours in with such rapidity as to make it exceedingly difficult to provide the necessary religious teachers, and difficult for these teachers to gather and organize congregations. This obstacle to religious progress is still further enhanced by the irregularity which characterizes the movements of the population, and the suddenness of the changes.

But worse in its influence than either this suddenness or magnitude of change, is the spirit which animates this migration. This vast crowd are incited by a thirst for wealth. It is not freedom of conscience which they seek, through so many privations; it is not pure homes for their children, where they shall be safe from the temptations of a gross world, and shall enjoy facilities for a high and perfect training; it is not for any thing sacred or noble that the majority of these restless tribes are so eager; it is—money. With this for the ruling spirit of the movement, it necessarily happens that many things that are noble and sacred give place to those which are not; and that every interest will stand a better chance to be provided for than the greatest good. The religious welfare of the community is, with the majority, the object least regarded, and cared for last. This eagerness for gain absorbs the mind and heart of the people, exhausts their energies and their enthusiasm, and gives to the whole movement of society an irreligious bias.

Unfavorable Traits of Communities.

4. The communities formed in such a manner, under the influence of such a spirit, from such promiscuous and discordant materials, acquire many characteristics which are serious obstacles to Home Missions.

There is a want of stability. A village will attain a sudden prosperity, and seem to have the promise of permanent growth, when, all at once, some new railroad or manufactory will build up a rival at its expense. Rich farms are deserted in the hope of finding richer ones; or, the multiplication of foreigners makes the neighborhood unattractive to those of English lineage, and they seek more congenial homes. It is not New England alone that suffers from this drain of population, but numerous places in Ohio and Indiana experience the same evil.

The extent of this internal migration may surprise those who are strangers to the facts. While in England only 16 per cent. of the population reside out of their native counties, no less than 46 per cent. of the population of Wisconsin were born in other States; in Illinois, 47 per cent.; in Michigan, 51 per cent.; and in Iowa 67 per cent. The migration is not merely from the old States to the new, but also from one new State to another. This changeableness of the population renders it difficult to lay plans for the future, and often disappoints the most prudent enterprises.

Another serious obstacle in a large proportion of Western communities, is the absence of any settled, distinctly religious public opinion. People have come together under the pressure of such motives, from so many parts of the world, their training has been so diverse, their opinions are so discordant, their acquaintance has been so short, and the permanency of all relations so very uncertain, that any thing like a well-grounded and pronounced accord on matters of religion or morals is hardly to be expected. Very different is this state of society from that of old New England towns, where the original settlers were compacted into closest unity of belief and sympathy, and where the motives that originated the settlement were largely religious, and whose growth, moreover, was so slow as to give time for the natural assimilation of all foreign elements.

Furthermore, Christianity, in her efforts to bring the heart of the West beneath her control, is compelled to contend with the baleful example of those who have once taken the vows of disciples, and whose names yet stand on the records of Eastern churches. Most grievous of all obstacles to the growth of the churches at the West, is this—for which their sister churches of the East are in no small measure responsible. It is vain to flatter ourselves that we are doing our whole duty towards those of our church members who emigrate. It is vain to profess that all these backsliding brethren, these "dead Christians," as they are significantly called, are alone in their guilt. They share the blame of unfaithfulness with the pastors and members of the churches on whose rolls their names remain, but who have ceased to exercise over them that watch and ward which they have solemnly vowed to maintain. There is no more serious question for our churches than that which, in the providence of God, is thus coming back to them from the West: "Where is thy brother?" The answer of Cain is no more appropriate for us than for him.

Still again: Western communities experience the evils of a liberty which is license. There, restless and over confident spirits are free from the restraints of a long established order; and those who are careless and mercenary no longer feel it necessary to pay an outward deference to principles which they secretly dislike or contemn. The various forms of unbelief and of fanaticism make easy conquests; and in some districts even the religion that is honored by the multitude is more fruitful of infidelity than of piety; regions where these usages have long prevailed are become moral deserts, as though fire had wasted them; and, in the expressive language of the West, are said to have been "burnt over." The religion of some of the Western sects is the worst kind of license.

Another obstacle to the progress of the Gospel in the missionary field, is found in the sparseness of the population. On the frontier this is one of the necessities of the case. There must ever be a fringe upon the borders of a nation like this. In these instances, however, the evil diminishes every year, and, from the necessity of the case again, is but temporary. It will continue to be felt in some measure, indeed, for a long time; all progress is here favorable to the interests of religion, and the mass of the population is not destined to suffer from this hindrance long.

In another part of our country, however, the case is widely and sadly different. There the sparseness of population is occasioned, not by the newness of the country, but by the character of its institutions; and Slavery, which dishonors labor, repels a free emigration, impoverishes the soil, and discourages enterprise—requiring large plantations, driving the towns far asunder, and keeping the roads poor, must ever make it difficult to concentrate the people into large and prosperous churches. Churches are communions; and where communion is made difficult, churches must be weak in numbers and in energy. A permanent sparseness of population is one of the greatest possible obstacles to the establishment of self-supporting churches.

Slavery.

5. But Stanery, in its own proper, moral, intellectual, and social tendencies, is a far greater obstacle. Crowding down half of the people—almost the entire laboring class—into the condition of "chattels personal," in which they are deprived of the motives that man always needs for his progress in any thing good, and of the opportunities which are his right; casting a shadow of ignominy upon all those whose poverty compels them to work with their hands; depriving them, too, of the proper stimulus to improvement, and of necessary facilities for mental and for spiritual culture; exalting the few into a place of temptation, that it may degrade the many into a state of ignorance and dependence, which is the fruitful occasion of gross immoralities, and of vulgar and obstinate religious fanaticisms; trampling on first principles of the divine law, the dictates of man's natural conscience, and the essential spirit of the Gospel of Christand so, lowering the standard, and confusing the principles of rectitude, infusing a subtile demoralization throughout the community, and making all rights and duties of doubtful validity; diminishing even the sacredness of life, the authority of the law that guards it, and the sanctity of courts whose duty it is to judge transgressors; exercising an arbritrary censorship over the press, and often prescribing expositions and ethics for the pulpit; limiting the just liberty of every member of society, overawing opposition, and touching every consenting conscience with a stain—this mournful system of American Slavery is a curse to all concerned in it, and an enemy to God and man. Its essential spirit, and its "net purport and result" constitute, as all Home Missionary experience most sorrowfully shows, a fearful hindrance to the spread of the principles, and to the renovating power of the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

Sectarianism.

6. Lastly, some of the churches and Christians of the West themselves create obstacles of the most serious nature to their own proper work. Sectarian rivalry is, in many places, carried to a pitch of narrowness and spite, but feebly appreciated by Eastern Christians, such as is impossible in an educated community, and is incomprehensible to hearts enlarged by obedience to the law of Christ.

But the signs of the times seem to indicate that some drops of this miserable sectarian poison have fallen upon souls familiar with better things, and have affected churches that are prominent for their intelligence, and denominations of section of the missionary field, accounts begin to arrive of evil results, the shadows of whose coming were visible a year ago. It is to be hoped that there is wisdom and charity enough in the churches to prevent a repetition of those distractions which, in past days, brought shame upon our American Christendom, and whose consequences are distinctly read to-day in that sorrowful list of feeble churches—containing only twenty five members, or less—which now make up nearly there per cent. of those belonging to the denomination that seemed to come off best in that unfraternal strife of brethren.

What is our Duty?

Such are some of the obstacles with which the Home Missionary cause has to contend.

What shall be done? It is very clear that there are some things which we must not omit doing; but our limits forbid any thing more than a mere enumeration of two or three of these.

And first: We must not neglect to send men to the West, who shall be pastors of churches there—pastors, not preachers, merely; shepherds of the flock, who shall not flee before any wolves, and who shall know how to lead the sheep where they will find wholesome pasture.

Secondly: Christian families who emigrate should esteem it their first duty to rally round the pastor whom they may find, or whom they may obtain, and should feel, that if they succeed in establishing a pure and vigorous church, they have done more for their children than if they had accumulated a fortune, and better for the community than if they had built a railroad.

Thirdly: Churches and Christians at the South should feel that they owe it to God, and to their whole country, to the present, and to all future generations, and to all nations upon whom the influence of our example or labor shall ever fall, to do all that God permits, for the removal of the unspeakable evil and iniquity that are essentially involved in our American system of Slavery; and all others, be they of the North or of the South, are in duty bound to assist to the utmost of their ability, those upon whom the chief weight of this dread responsibility rests.

Lastly: All the churches of our land are bound to do more for the spiritual growth of their members; so that we may not be obliged to record such lamentable defections from the army of the Lord—such lukewarmness, such worldliness, such unfaithfulness among professed believers; or so many forms of fanaticisms, and such intoxication in the pursuit of gain, among those who have been brought up in the center of Christian communities, and under the combination of all best religious influences. We need a new Puritanism—not narrow and intense, but broad, and strong, and generous, and full of faith, and tenderness, and fidelity, possessed with that charity which "never faileth." We need a new baptism of fire.—"This kind goeth not out but by prayer and fasting."

HOME MISSIONS AMONG THE GERMANS.

In prosecuting our schemes of Home Evangelization, we are required to remember the strangers within our gates. Of these, the largest and most important class, which must be reached through a foreign language, are the Germans. The Dutch settlers of New York, the Swedes in Delaware, the Spaniards in Florida, and the French in Louisiana, have surrendered their nationality and their language, and have become constituent elements of the American people. Small colonies exist in various parts of the country, in which a foreign tongue is in common use; but the Germans alone have so far succeeded in transplanting their language and institutions to these shores, that we are compelled to recognize and provide for them, as another people.

German Immigration.

The first considerable emigration from Germany to this country, occurred about the year 1675, in consequence of the devastation of the Palatinate by the French army under Turenne. During some portion of the following century it was very large; but no reliable statistics of it were preserved previous to 1820. From that time to the close of 1855, the number of native Germans (including Prussians) who arrived in this country was 1,242,082. When the census of 1850 was taken, there were residing in the United States 583,774 native Germans. Adding 800,000 as the number of arrivals since that time, and making the requisite deduction for deaths, we find that there are now in the country not far from 1,200,000 persons who were born in Germany. If we add those persons of German descent, who were born in this country, but use the German language, we swell the number to whom the Gospel must be preached in that tongue, to nearly 2,000,000. About four fifths of them are found in the Middle and North-Western States. Of the population of Missouri, in 1850, nearly eight per cent. and of Wisconsin more than twelve per cent. were Germans by birth.

Character of German Immigrants.

Most of the early German immigrants were Protestants, and were strongly attached to the Lutheran and Reformed Churches, in their better days; but during the last few years, and especially since the Revolution of 1848-9, there has been a large influx of Catholics and Rationalists. Having fled from the oppressions of their fatherland, they are impatient of all restraints. Many of them are avowed enemies of the Church, the Bible, the Sabbath, the marriage relation, and all our institutions of benevolence and reform. "They are, for the most part," says Dr. Schaff, "not only estranged, in a painful degree, from all Christianity and the Church, but even from all higher morality; and deserve rather to be called the pioneers of heathenism, and a new barbarism, than of civilization." Most of the periodicals published in this country in the German language, are under the control of this class of men, and breathe a spirit of the bitterest hostility to Christianity.

Americanization of the Germans.

Although, for the present, the mass of the German population can be reached by the truth, only in their own language, and in connection with their own institutions, yet all our efforts for their spiritual good should be made to favor their early assimilation to our American character. Their national characteristics are indeed stubborn; and they cling with great tenacity to their own language, customs, and institutions: yet we are persuaded that their own good as well as that of the country they have adopted requires that they shall become thoroughly Americanized. Such indeed are the convictions of the most enlightened and evangelical of their own countrymen. An intelligent German missionary of this Society in Missouri, says: "An experience of ten years has led me to the strong conviction, that in this country the German churches, in general, would do a great deal better if they were more Americanized; and I have, for my own part, always done as much as I could to further such a change. To pray for it is our duty, that we may see, from every corner of this wide world, the people coming in and being baptized with the spirit of Christ, and forming but one great christian American nation."

Of the desirableness of this result, and the resistless tendencies towards it,

Dr. Schaff speaks as follows:

"That the German language, unless constantly reinforced by emigration, must gradually become extinct as a medium of popular intercourse in the United States is inevitable not on account of any outward prohibition of its use, but through the irresistible, silent influence of the English tongue, which seems destined, and better fitted than any other, to become the universal language for the Western Hemisphere, and through the working of that mysterious energy by which all the nationalities of the old world are fusing into a peculiar American national character. * * * In most cases the transition to the English language and customs is at the same time an advance in cultivation and piety. * * * Characteristic of the two nationalities is this yielding of the German language to the English, while in the midst of German settlements, the English has appropriated only two German expressions, sauerkraut and schmierkäs!"

Dependence upon the American Churches.

The dependence of the Germans upon the charities of the American churches, does not arise from the poverty of their brethren in this country. Their average pecuniary ability is probably equal that of any other class of our rural population. Their churches also are numerous, and many of them wealthy. The Lutheran Church in the United States contains about 1,900 congregations, and 225,000 communicants; the German Reformed Church about 1,000 congregations, and 110,000 communicants. Yet both of these denominations, nearly equaling in their membership those which sustain this Institution, expend annually, through their Home Missionary Societies, only about $5,000.

The principal missionary operations among the Germans, conducted by the American churches, are those of the Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and the American Home Missionary Society. During more than twenty years, the Executive Committee of this Society have made such efforts as their means would allow, to promote evangelical religion among this class of our population. In 1855 an attempt was made to enlist the coöperation of the Lutheran and Reformed Synods in this work, and a formal arrangement was made by which they were to act as Auxiliaries of this Society. This measure, however, they failed to carry into effect, and the Society has received searcely any contributions from those denominations. Its appropriations, in aid of German churches, gradually increased till 1853, when forty six missionaries were reported as preaching in the German language. Since that time the number has somewhat diminished.

Difficulties of the Work.

This department of the Society's operations is embarrassed by peculiar diffi-

1. While we would obey the injunction, "Bear ye one another's burdens;" we would not encourage our German brethren to forget that "every man shall bear his own burden." In their fatherland they were pensioners of state bounty, and were unaccustomed to make voluntary contributions, either for the support of their own ministry, or to supply the wants of their destitute brethren. The paralyzing and pauperizing effects of this system are visible in the German churches of this country. It is indispensable to their external efficiency and their spiritual life, that their pecuniary resources should be developed, and the habit of self-reliance and liberality formed. It is difficult to determine to what extent missionary aid can be extended to feeble congregations among the Germans without positive injury to those churches which are thus eased of their proper burden.

2. Great difficulty is experienced in procuring the services of evangelical ministers who can preach in the German language. In the Lutheran Church the ratio of ministers and licentiates to the congregations is nearly as one to two, and in the German Reformed Church, as one to three. The additions to the ranks of the ministry from the Theological Seminaries in this country are very few; and of those who were educated in Germany, only a very small proportion are entitled to be considered evangelical, either in respect to their theological views, or their personal experience.

3. Most of the churches seeking missionary aid, are exceedingly lax, both in doctrine and discipline. This fact is a source of constant perplexity and grief to the conductors of this Institution.

Spiritual Condition of the German Churches.

In the Protestant Churches of Germany, Formalism and Rationalism have become widely prevalent; and the alliance of the Church with the State renders discipline for these or any other causes, nearly impossible. "The German churches," says Pierson in his Prize Essay on Infidelity, "with some illustrious exceptions, present on a large scale, the spectacle of men sheltered under an evangelical creed, but throwing out doctrines that give the lie to it; men holding the Bible in their hand, as their text-book, who exalt their fallible reason above its true sayings; men who rob Christ of his glory and his word of its supreme authority; men who cat the Church's bread, and lift up the heel against her." A prominent German minister in this country, says: "In Germany, all, all are made members of the Church, in accordance with the order of civil law. I never knew a person, over the age of, at the very farthest, eighteen years, male or female, coming from any part of Germany, who was not a member of the Church. I doubt whether any such can be found in Germany, unless he became a criminal in the eyes of the civil law, before that age which is fixed by law for his or her confirmation. Is it a wonder that the Church is filled with ungodly members?" A distinguished German statesman recently asserted, that if a scriptural discipline were enforced in the Protestant churches of Germany, three fourths of their members would be cut off from their communion. The German Evangelical Church Diet, which represents the four leading Protestant denominations in Germany, held its annual session at Lubeck in September last. "The revival of evangelical church discipline," was among the topics discussed. The facts there elicited are reported by Rev. Mr. Bausman, one of the delegates from the German Reformed Church in this country, in the following language:

"Church discipline has almost entirely fallen into disuse in the evangelical churches of Germany. The State has taken it out of their hands. The civil power punishes criminals. But there are many crimes in the Church which the State can not reach. The pastor can admonish his members, but has no power to arraign a member before a church council, or suspend him from church communion for gross sins. In some States it is made a penal offense to attempt this. Church membership is made a civil duty. Every one must be baptized and confirmed, and attend the Lord's Supper once, before he can enjoy the rights of citizenship. Every body, pantheist, atheist, infidel, and skeptic, is drilled into the Church by the State; afterwards they can believe what they please, say what they please, do what they please-I mean with regard to the Church—with perfect impunity. It is a hard saying, hard because it is true, but in spite of the orthodox instructions of the pastors, the masses look upon the holy sacrament of baptism and the solemn rite of confirmation merely in the light of civil acts. They entitle them to all the prerogatives and privileges of citizens of an earthly kingdom."

As the German churches in this country conform to the same standard of doctrine and discipline as those in Germany, they are expected to admit to their communion all who have enjoyed these privileges in their native land. treat them otherwise," says a German minister, "would excite a tremendous spirit of opposition, or drive them beyond the reach of religious influence, as it would be contrary to all their views and notions acquired through the entire course of their national education, and from their forefathers." The right of such persons to come to the Lord's table being asserted and conceded, the pastor is obliged to content himself with exhorting them not to avail themselves of the privilege, "unless they desire to lead a Christian life." The consequence is that a large proportion of those admitted to church fellowship from the churches of Germany are apparently strangers to the renewing grace of God. Some pastors have attempted to remedy this evil by declining to enroll as members of their churches, those who furnish no evidence of piety, while they have welcomed them to the Lord's table, and administered baptism to their children; thus granting them all the privileges of the Church, while withholding the recognition of their membership in it.

Much laxness exists, also, in the admission of members by confirmation. The parent presents his child at the prescribed age, to receive this rite; and if he have the requisite acquaintance with the Catechisms, and formulas of the Church, and be not openly immoral, his confirmation is demanded as a right. If it be denied, then follows opposition and persecution. The experience which a German minister describes in the following paragraph is not uncommon among the missionaries of this Society:

"Parents frequently come to me addressing me in something like this language: 'My boy is fourteen years of age, he must now be confirmed before I can put him to learn a trade.' When I inquire into his boy's qualification for such an important step, I am told by the parent, who in a similar manner was made a member of the church: 'He knows his catechism, and he is a good boy.' When I examine the youth, and find no particle of experience of the truth, and tell his parent so, in nine cases out of ten, he does not know what I mean by this thing 'experience.' In one single year, I had to see twenty or more young persons, influenced by their parents, to go to neighboring churches and get confirmed, when on examination we could not in good conscience receive them."

The prevalence of such views, and the extensive concessions that are made to them, are sources of grief to many truly devoted and pious ministers in the German churches. Some of them earnestly endeavor so to administer this system, as effectually to guard the ordinances of Christ's house from the approach of the ungodly; and a few have taken and maintained the same position substantially, which is occupied by the churches sustaining this Society.

Conditions of Missionary Aid.

The state of things described above, occasions much embarrassment in rendering missionary aid to German churches. What degree of strictness in discipline should be required as the condition of such assistance? On the one hand, it is contended that the great mass of German Christians in this country, are so attached to the system in which they have been educated, and with which all their national associations are connected, that to require a strict conformity to our American notions is to drive them beyond our influence; whereas, if the churches adopting that system be intrusted to the care of faithful men, the evils which have grown out of it will gradually disappear, and the churches be lifted up to a truly evangelical standard. On the other hand, it is claimed that the countenance thus given to this unscriptural system, tends to confirm men in their impenitence, and to perpetuate churches that will be bulwarks of formalism, and mighty obstacles to the progress of a spiritual Christianity in our Experience proves, what is plain without proof, that a church which opens its doors to unregenerate men, will not be purified by a ministry that proclaims one doctrine on this subject from the pulpit, and applies another in the administration of the sacraments. But considerations of expediency have no place here. The Church is Christ's: he has defined the terms of access to its privileges; and we have no right to change them. The symbols of his body and blood are not proffered to his enemies as the means of their reconciliation to him, but to his friends as the memorials and pledges of his love.

The Executive Committee of this Society, concurring in the view just expressed, uniformly restrict their grants of aid to those churches which make a credible evidence of piety, a condition of membership. It is no part of their work to proselyte the Germans to the denominations for which the Society acts; but they can not consent to employ its funds in building up churches which welcome unregenerate men to the ordinances of Christ's house. All applications for aid, from churches of this character, they therefore feel constrained to decline. In so doing they suppose they have the approbation of the churches as well as of the Master whose servants they are. We are happy to add also, that many of the leading ministers among the Germans have signified their cordial acquiescence in this rule of action, as essential to the welfare of the assisted churches. In some instances the Committee have been misled by an assent, on the part of the missionary, to the terms of this condition, without a full apprehension of its import. In other instances they have been disappointed by the formal adoption of right principles of discipline, without the firmness requisite to their rigid enforcement. The successful prosecution of this department of the missionary work, on the principles above stated, requires great watchfulness and caution, aided by the cooperation of the ecclesiastical bodies and friends of the Society on the fields of these missions. Some experiments will doubtless fail, and the number of German churches, on the list of the Society's beneficiaries, may be still farther reduced. Nevertheless, these principles will remain sound and scriptural, and should not be abandoned. We would, therefore, in the language of the Report for 1854, "call the attention of auxiliaries, agencies, committees of missions, and individuals who recommend applications for aid to German congregations, to the importance of a thorough examination, not only into the character and qualifications of their ministers, but also into the principles and practices of the churches, that the Society may be certified in all cases, that they are building upon the foundation of the Apostles and Prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner stone."

AMERICAN HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY AND SLAVERY.

The readers of the Home Missionary have doubtless seen allusions in the public prints to a resolution adopted by the Executive Committee, in December last, respecting the appropriation of funds in aid of churches which contain slaveholding members. As a difference of opinion has been expressed respecting this action, it seems due to the friends of the Society that we should make a brief explanatory statement.

It will be seen, by referring to the Constitution, that this Society consists of those persons who have been constituted members by the payment of a specified sum, and those who are annual contributors to its funds. The administration of its affairs is intrusted to an Executive Committee of fourteen, (including the exofficio members,) appointed by the Board of Directors. The fourth Article, among other provisions, declares that the Executive Committee "shall appoint missionaries, and instruct them as to the field and manner of their labors; shall have the disposal of the funds;" "and shall make an Annual Report of their proceedings to the Society." In the execution of their trust, the Committee endeavor to be guided by the known intentions of those whose agents they are. It is their duty to understand the precise objects for which the funds of the Society are placed at their disposal, and distribute them to those only who are regarded by the donors as worthy of their patronage. They are, therefore, compelled to make careful inquiry and discrimination, both in regard to the ministers whom they are asked to sustain, and the churches which apply to them for aid; and they have ever deemed it their duty to take cognizance of all considerations, moral as well as prudential, which have a bearing upon this point. they done otherwise, they would have abused the confidence, and in many instances outraged the moral sense, and perverted the bounty of those whose almoners they are. For example, they would have counted among the mission-aries of the Society, men who, though in good ecclesiastical standing, were nevertheless known to be guilty of such sins as bigamy, drunkenness, and licentiousness, and those teaching the most dangerous heresies; they would have sustained churches which, though in regular connection with the denominations coöperating in this Society, were yet avowing doctrines, and tolerating practices which were generally repudiated and abhorred. Had the Committee disbursed the funds of the Society on such principles, and to such recipients, they would soon have been without funds to disburse. The action of the Committee, in regard to all such matters, has been uniform from the origin of the Society, is in entire accordance with the principles on which it is based, and is believed to have been satisfactory to the great body of its members.

One practice, however, which exists on a portion of the missionary field, has occasioned greater difficulty. It is slaveholding. This has ever been one of the greatest obstacles to the success of the missionary work, and has rendered the labors of the Society comparatively fruitless in most of the States where it ex-The Committee have ever been cordial in rendering assistance to the feeble churches of those States; but they have aimed to do it in such a way as not to sustain, nor give countenance to this system. Accordingly, they have not judged it proper to sustain ministers who were themselves slaveholders. They have endeavored to appoint those only who would not shun to declare the whole counsel of God, in reference to this as well as other sins. They have made themselves acquainted with the position of both missionaries and churches in regard to this subject. They have deemed it the right of the minister to exercise, and the duty of the church to tolerate an unrestrained autterance of all God's testimony concerning it; and when this freedom has not been allowed, or the usefulness of the missionary, from any cause, has come to an end, he has been encouraged in seeking another field of labor. By this policy, the Society has been enabled, not only to publish the Gospel in many destitute communities of the Southern States, but to exert an important influence in favor of freedom. Several churches organized there under its auspices, have never contained slaveholding members, and others, in various stages of progress, have been advancing towards this condition.

May,

But of late, the attitude of slavery towards the Society has changed. Auxiliaries and most of the ecclesiastical bodies in the slaveholding States have withdrawn their cooperation. The contributions from these States have fallen to less than $2,000 a year, and the principal part of this amount is paid by missionary churches as a condition of receiving aid. Leading ministers and newspapers in that part of the country, declare the appropriations of the Society to be an injury rather than a benefit, and seek to conceal from the churches the source from which they have been derived. The ministers for whom commisions are sought, as well as those who indorse the applications, are not infrequently found to be owners of slaves, and to regard the system as being in the same category with civil government, and the family relation-a divinely-appointed, beneficent, missionary institution. Slaveholding, in some of the assisted churches, is increasing. The liberty of speech on this subject, which was formealy enjoyed is in many places no longer allowed. Missionaries are not even permitted to keep silence, but must became champions of slavery and advocates for its extension. They are compelled to witness, without protest, every species of cruelty and atrocity incident to the system. In some instances, the northern origin of a minister has been found to unfit him for a field which he had been successfully cultivating for years. Two missionaries have, within a few months, commended themselves to the communities where they labor by becoming owners of slaves, and have thus separated themselves from the Society. Others, finding their usefulness at an end, and themselves in peril of physical violence, have abandoned their fields of labor. Others still, in consequence of the prejudice and opposition which have been raised against them, have been compelled to resume their dependence upon the Society, while others are sustained for the present at an increased expense, but declare that they have little hope of being able long to maintain their ground. Thus the number of missionaries in the slaveholding States, notwithstanding the best efforts of the Committee to increase it, has been constantly diminishing for several years.

In the mean time, also, the current of anti-slavery sentiment among the supporters of this Society, has been gaining volume and strength. It is strongest in those portions of the country which contribute most largely to this enterprise. This is especially true of New England, New York, and the North-Western States, from which more than nine tenths of the revenue of the Institution are received. This sentiment has been declared with great distinctness and unanimity, in the pulpit, in ecclesiastical bodies, in the religious press, in the action of institutions of benevolence, in the correspondence of the Society, and in various other forms. At different times, and in many ways, its supporters have made known to the Executive Committee their views and wishes in regard to this subject, and have called for the adoption of a definite rule which should afford them a guaranty that the funds devoted to this cause would be expended in accordance with the views of those who give them. Action has been taken to this effect in various public bodies. In the autumn of 1856, a memorial on the subject was received from the General Association of Iowa. In framing a reply to this Memorial, only three lines of policy presented themselves to the Committee as possible in the premises.

1. To withhold missionary appropriations from all churches containing slave-

This was the course recommended in the Memorial.

2. To make appropriations without regard to the existence of slaveholding in the churches, or the allowance by them of those cruelties and enormities which are alleged to exist in some Southern churches.

3. To ascertain the position in regard to this subject, of each church seeking aid, and grant or withhold assistance, as the facts furnished might suggest.

The principle last stated, seemed to the Committee to be correct. It was therefore embodied in the following Resolution, which, after careful deliberation, was adopted without a dissenting vote:

Resolved, That in the disbursement of the funds committed to their trust, the Committee will not grant aid to churches containing slaveholding members, unless evidence be furnished that the relation is such as, in the judgment of the Committee, is justifiable, for the time being, in the peculiar circumstances in which it exists.

The opinion has been expressed that the Committee should have adopted the first of the three courses indicated above. Others would have restricted them to the second. A very large majority, however, of the contributors to the funds of the Society, we have good reason to believe, approve of the action which has been taken. The Secretaries of nearly all the Auxiliaries, in behalf of themselves and of those associated with them, the Agents, and a large number of the missionaries, and of the most liberal supporters of the Society, and many leading ministers and laymen in both of the denominations associated in this work, have already expressed their approbation of it. We presume it will not have the effect, to deprive of missionary aid, a single church which, in the estimation of those who furnish it, has a claim to receive it.

The information, which, under this Resolution, it is proposed to obtain, has been cheerfully furnished, in many instances, before and since the Resolution was adopted; and it has been of great value in many ways. It has enabled the Committee to vindicate themselves from the charge of abusing the trust and wasting the funds committed to them. It has enabled them, also, to defend the churches assisted from injurious aspersions. It has awakened a stronger sympathy in behalf of those who are struggling in face of the gigantic obstacles which slavery creates, to build up a pure Christianity and extend the kingdom of the Redeemer throughout the country.

Whether the discrimination contemplated by this Resolution, shall be wisely made, depends, of course, upon the character of the Committee upon whom this responsibility is devolved; but that such a discrimination should, and will be made, through this or some other agency, we can not doubt. The Christians who have undertaken to propagate the Gospel, in its purity, over all this Continent, claim, and will exercise the right to know what are the teachings of the ministers they sustain, and what is the character of the churches they plant. They prefer not to patronize and propagate the system of American Slavery! They wish to be assured that the institutions which they help to sustain, are not the bulwarks of this system. They, therefore, take the liberty to inquire, in a kind and christian manner, what is the attitude in regard to this subject of those whom they are asked to assist. For example, they wish to know, as heretofore, and perhaps, rather more definitely then heretofore, whether their missionary agents, and the churches to which they minister, regard that system as a divine and benevolent institution, to be perpetuated and extended throughout the land, -whether "they hold slaves from principle and choice," and to an extent limited only by their means of purchase, -whether they regard and practice the rearing and exportation of slaves as a legitimate branch of industry,—whether the family relation among slaves is inviolable, or is subject to the convenience and profit of the master,—whether members of the church buy and sell their brethren and sisters in Christ, as articles of merchandise,—whether the slaves are kept in ignorance of God's word, and of that only way of salvation which it reveals. In short, they desire to know all the facts which are essential to an intelligent disposal of the funds they devote to the evangelization of their country, and for the right disposal of which they are to give account unto God. If the relation of these ministers and churches to slavery is such as, in the opinion of candid, impartial, christian men, entitles them to sympathy and assistance, we believe that the facts which indicate this will be communicated, as they will be received, with pleasure, and the aid they need will be liberally bestowed. If the facts furnished do not indicate this, may not the friends of this Society decide for themselves, whether they will dispense their charities to these, or other objects? It is the firm belief of the Committee that the funds committed to their trust are designed to be distributed in accordance with the principles stated above. If they misinterpret and misrepresent their constituents in this matter. they will, doubtless, welcome further light, and in that light they will gladly walk.

EXTRACTS.

California and the Sandwich Islands.

But to us, in the midst of the field, it seems very evident that the addition of so large and so important a region to the sphere of labor of the American Home Missionary Society ought to be the signal for a large increase of its revenue. The churches have the opportunity of erecting, through your agency, a Christian State on the shore of the Pacific, It has cost nearly 900,000 dollars, in more than thirty years, to make a christian nation of the Sandwich Islanders. The money and the time are not to be mentioned in comparison with the achievement. But we will venture the prediction, altogether fearlessly, that if the christian public will act energetically, and pray earnestly for California, they will have a christian nation here, for a fourth that sum, in a fourth that time, which will exert ten times the influence for Christianity which those Islands now do.

We institute the comparison, not for the sake of disparaging the achievement which has lately been announced; far from it. None hailed the announcement with more joy than we; and if it had cost nine hundred millions, instead of thousands, it would still have been infinitely more than worth its price. would have the work which is going on in this land viewed in its true light. is really, even if not nominally, the founding and rearing of a new christian State, and one whose influence will tell for truth the world over. This did not become a christian State when the arms of a Protestant nation conquered it, or the money of that nation bought it; it did not become such when crowds of men, claiming the name of Christian, came to dig God's gold, and profane his day, his book, his name, in all these hills and valleys. It will become a christian State when sufficient christian teachers come here to gather christian churches, and to bring up to sacred and believing recollection the doctrines and the cross of Christ. And it is with the churches of the East to bring this to pass or not. It does seem to us, in the midst of our toils-joyous beyond expression, save in the view, continually thrust before us, of priceless opportunities gliding by with none to grasp them—it does seems to us that the churches at home, with a privilege before them like that which this country is presenting, must rouse themselves to grasp it, and fill your treasury, and bid you thrust the laborers upon the field.

What have Home Missions done?

At the lowest calculation, two thousand of the churches in this country, owe their existence and continuance, one or both, to the cause of Home Missions. Blot from our map these two thousand churches of our Lord Jesus Christ, put out the fires that burn upon their altars, seal up the innumerable streams of christian influence, and how disastrous and blighting would be the effect upon all the interests of the Church and the nation!

But, if we would have any adequate conception of the effects wrought by these missions, we must do something more than sit down and count up churches and ministers, and Sabbath school scholars and communicants, whether by thousands or tens of thousands. We can not reckon here by the head, as patriarchs used to do in the case of their sheep and oxen and camels. There are unseen influences streaming out in every direction from this agency, innumerable as the stars of heaven, and more potent than they are numerous. Every church it plants is a city set on a hill, a beacon-light on the perilous coast of life, pouring its celestial rays upon all the surrounding midnight, warning off the tempest-tossed from inevitable ruin, and guiding them into the port of safety. Nothing short of the effulgence of the judgment day can discover the legion of secret, silent, and yet all-powerful influences of even a single one of these churches.

Barbarism the First Danger.

There was never uttered a more manifest truism than Dr. Bushnell's "Barbarism the First Danger." It is now about thirty years since this region began to be settled. A large proportion of the youthful population were born here, and the contrast between parent and child is striking, even to a very superficial observer, morally, socially, and intellectually. Of course, there are many exceptions, but the general result could not be otherwise, when we consider the scanty educational advantages enjoyed by our youth, and more than all, the habits of parents, especially of fathers, in regard to the Sabbath. Mounted on horseback, they will go alone to the distant meeting, perhaps chiefly attracted by the social gathering, and leaving their families not to idleness, but to the barbarizing Sabbath employments of frontier life, until the Sabbath has become a French infidel's "Sunday." The consequence is a sad deterioration, a coarseness of manners, a lack of general intelligence, ignorance on religious subjects, and insensibility of conscience. I do not forget that the Gospel is adapted to every phase of character and condition; but the seed does not fall here upon a newly broken, virgin soil, but where every noxious weed has preoccupied the ground, and bound all the surface with roots.

Influence of Eastern Example.

When New York shall have finished her conflicts with the courts, and engineered the question through all the issues which selfish and party interests shall raise there, and shall have settled down firmly, to forbid, at all hazards, the traffic in those liquors which impoverish and demoralize her people, then may we expect that Oregon will have so learned the lesson, that she will adopt, without much further delay, the same principles and policy. In a word, all your toils and all your success are for us, as well as for yourselves. By every mail, your papers and pamphlets come to us in cart-loads, to be distributed all over our Territory. Our people read, and our political men are carefully watching the development of this reform, in its discussion and adoption of the prohibitory principle.

Red-Republican Liberty.

The infidel Germans are assuming a lawless attitude here. Our village authorities require all saloons to be closed on the Sabbath. They reply, "We sold ardent spirits under an arbitrary government, when we pleased, and this is a free country, and we will not be controlled in the matter." They have hoisted their red-republican flag, and constructed a bower near the village, where, with their barrel of beer, they spend their Sabbaths.

A Quick Cure,

A few of them were prosecuted, last Monday, for keeping open saloons on Sunday. They at first refused to pay their fines. One of them went to bed, feigning sickness, in hope to avoid being taken to jail. The sheriff sent for a physician. When the invalid found that a certificate from the physician was necessary, to make his plea of sickness valid, he concluded to get up and dress himself, paid the doctor and his fine, and went about his business again.

Oh! if we could have had the Maine Law!

Our saloons are enticing some of our most promising youth to ruin. Intemperance and gambling are increasing. Last week, I had to attend the funeral of a man who died of delirium tremens. A few years ago he was a man of distinguished abilities, and a promising member of this church; but rum proved too strong for him. On his dying bed, he tried to cast himself upon Christ for mercy, and wished me to pray him.

Some of his associates wept profusely at his funeral; but they returned to their saloons, to follow him to the drunkard's grave. Oh! if we could have obtained to the saloons of the saloo tained the Maine Law last winter, these men might have been saved.

Dead Christians.

I had intended to say something about the trials that missionaries in this new country are subjected to, on account of the character exhibited by professing Christians coming from the East. In many instances those who were prominent members there, will not identify themselves with Christians here. We are cursed all over this western country, with those who, in the older States, were prominent church-members, but who stand aloof, or even in opposition here, because things "are not according to the pattern shown in the Green or White Mountains," in New York, Boston, Troy, or elsewhere.

"Wandering Stars."

There are many church members here who are living in connection with no church at the West. I have the names of some thirty within the range of this church; and undoubtedly there are many of whom I have no knowledge. Our church numbers but seventy. I fear there are nearly as many church members out of this church, as in it. The time of the removal of a christian family from the East to the West, is a critical time for the religion of that family, and the transfer of such persons can not be too well cared for. In such cases Eastern pastors ought not only to urge Christians to take their letters with them, but also to dispatch private letters to the minister preaching in the locality to which they are destined; so that these Christians may be sought out and brought into the church, before they become contented to remain—as vast numbers now remain, in all parts of the West—useless members of Eastern churches, and hindrances to the advancement of the cause of Christ in the places where they reside.

The Covenant Honored.

Of the ten received into the church, only one needed to be baptized; and of those whom we expect to receive, most were devoted to the Lord in infancy or childhood, by pious parents. This is as we should expect, and as is known to be the fact, in nearly all revivals. Very often was it said here, as one after another arose in our meetings to speak of the goodness of God—indeed, so often, that we came to expect it almost as a matter of course: "I had pious parents, who devoted me to God, and now I feel that their prayers are answered." "I had a praying mother, and God has heard her prayers for me." Precious testimony! To my mind it demonstrates the duty of infant dedication; the blessings of family religion; the validity and perpetuity of the covenant.

Romish Intolerance.

In a neighboring French village, entirely Catholic, lived a poor family, that belong to our church. As they resisted all solicitations from the priest and bigoted neighbors they were exposed to persecution. One day the father called on me, being in great trouble. His child was lying dead in his house, and would not be permitted to be interred in the village cemetery. We succeeded in getting a burying-place in a private cemetery of the neighboring village. But no one would assist this unhappy family. The father must go away to dig the grave. I followed with the carriage. When I arrived at the burying-ground I found the grave half digged; the poor father, overwhelmed by sorrow and fatigue, had fainted and was lying on the ground. I must myself finish what he had begun. So was the child at last interred.

THIRTY SECOND ANNIVERSARY.

THE AMERICAN HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY held its Thirty Second Anniversary in the Church of the Puritans, on Union Square, New York, on Wednesday evening, May 12th, 1858.

Hon. William Jessup, LL. D., one of the Vice-Presidents, occupied the chair, and the exercises were opened with prayer by Rev. Harvey F. Leavitt, of Vergennes, Vt.

The Treasurer's Report was read by Mr. Christopher R. Robert, the Treasurer of the Society.

An Abstract of the Annual Report of the Executive Committee was presented by Rev. Daniel P. Noves, one of the Secretaries.

On motion of William A. Booth, Esq., of New York, seconded by Rev. Henry B. Hooker, D. D., of Boston, Mass.,

Resolved, That the Reports now presented be adopted, and published under the direction of the Executive Committee.

On motion of Rev. William S. Leavitt, of Hudson, N. Y., seconded by Rev. James Anderson, of Manchester, Vt.,

Resolved, That we cherish the work of Home Missions as one of the great constant forces, by which is to be formed, in this land, a christian nation, not in name, but in fact.

On motion of Rev. Samuel T. Seelye, of Albany, N. Y., seconded by Rev. George W. Wood, of New York,

Resolved, That while we may properly appeal to philanthropy and patriotism, in behalf of Home Missions, we must rely chiefly upon christian principle.

The foregoing Resolutions were sustained by the gentlemen who offered them, in addresses of great effectiveness and force, which were heard with deep attention by a large and intelligent audience. The concluding address was delivered by Rev. Leonard Bacon, D. D., of New Haven, Conn., who eloquently enforced the appeal of Home Missions to Christian Patriotism. The services were enlivened by several appropriate hymns, which were sung by the accomplished choir of the Church of the Puritans, under the direction of John Jameson, Esq., organist.

The exercises were closed with the benediction, pronounced by Rev. Asa D. Smrii, D. D., of New York, after which the Society proceeded to the election of officers for the ensuing year.

THIRTY SECOND REPORT.

It has pleased God, since last we met, to visit this Institution with a peculiarly afflictive dispensation of his providence. Henry Dwight, Esq., one of its founders, its devoted and steadfast friend, its able counselor, its liberal benefactor, and for more than twenty years its honored President, departed this life on the 6th of September last, at the age of seventy four. A man eminently just, intelligent, and wise, conscientious and firm in the discharge of duty, commanding the highest respect and confidence of the extended circles in which he moved, a pillar in the Church of God, a patron of every philanthropic and christian enterprise, a pattern of excellence in his social and domestic relations, a humble, prayerful, and consistent Christian—we can not but mourn that we are to see his face no more. Help, Lord; for the godly man ceaseth; for the faithful fail from among the children of men.

A distinguished Vice-President—Rev. NATHANIEL W. TAYLOR, D. D.—has also been removed, within the last few weeks, from the sphere of his usefulness on earth to his reward on high. He was appointed a Vice-President of the Society at its organization. His counsels had been largely concerned in projecting its policy, and in preparing the way for uniting the various Domestic Missionary Societies of the country in one National Institution. He marked its progress and expansion with rejoicing. He awakened an enthusiasm in those who came under his instructions, which has turned many a desert region in our western country into the garden of God. As he was revered by many of the missionaries and patrons of the Society, for his teachings and his example in preaching Christ and him crucified, so has he taught a lesson of the deepest interest to all, in his coming to the last great conflict in the full exercise of the most simple, childlike faith, and committing his departing spirit, like Stephen, to the arms of his Saviour. He rests from his labors, and his works do follow him.

Four of the missionaries of the Society—Rev. Joseph Bloomer, in Iowa; Rev. Joseph Fowler, in Illinois; Rev. C. C. Crossfield, in New York; and Rev. Benjamin F. Templeton, in Pennsylvania—have also been called from the fields of their earnest and successful labor and from the families of their affection and care into the presence of their Lord.

Sketches of the operations of the Society, in the States and Territories where it has labored, will be found under their appropriate heads in the body of the Report; such details as can be presented in a compact form are embraced in the following

GENERAL TABLE,

SUMMARY OF RESULTS.

The number of ministers of the Gospel in the service of the Society the last year, whose names are found in the preceding General Table, together with those engaged in superintending the work, and whose names are mentioned in connection with the respective Auxiliaries and Agencies, is 1,012.

Of these, 770 were in commission at the date of the last Report, and 242 have been since appointed.

They have been distributed in 24 different States and Territories, as follows: in Maine, 91; New Hampshire, 45; Vermont, 77; Massachusetts, 34; Rhode Island, 8; Connecticut, 36; New York, 133; New Jersey, 14; Pennsylvania, 49; Delaware, 1; Virginia, 3; Kentucky, 1; Ohio, 76; Indiana, 38; Illinois, 82; Missouri, 5; Michigan, 65; Wisconsin, 93; Iowa, 96; Minnesota, 33; Kansas, 12; Nebraska, 2; California, 10; Oregon, 8.

This distribution gives to the New England States, 291; Middle States, 197; Southern States, 3; Western States and Territories, 521, including 18 on the Pacific coast.

Of the whole number in commission, 524 have been pastors or stated supplies of single congregations; 341 have ministered to two or three congregations each; and 147 have extended their labors over still wider fields.

The aggregate of ministerial labor performed is 795 years.

The number of congregations and missionary stations which have been fully supplied, or where the Gospel has been preached at stated intervals, is 2,034.

Eleven missionaries have been in commission as pastors or stated supplies of churches of colored people; and 41 have preached in foreign languages—20 to Welsh, 19 to German congregations, and

2 to congregations of Norwegians and Frenchmen.

Special care has been taken that those who preach to our foreign population should themselves be men of thorough evangelical sentiments and experimental piety, and that the churches to which they minister should be building upon the cardinal doctrines of the Gospel held by the patrons of this Institution.

The number of Sabbath school scholars, connected with the missionary churches and stations, is not far from 65,500.

In new settlements, the missionary, not unfrequently, has several Sabbath schools, and sometimes a circuit of them, under his care. He preaches statedly in the week time, and occasionally on the Sabbath, in the neighborhoods where they are located; he supplies them with teachers from his congregations, and libraries from the contributions of the benevolent, and thus prepares the way for the organization of churches, and the permanent establishment of the ordinances of the Gospel.

The contributions to benevolent objects, reported by 528 missionaries, amount to $24,272.28.

If the churches, whose donations are not this year reported, have contributed in like proportion—an inference fairly deducible from the returns of a series of years—those who, in their need, have been encouraged and assisted by their more favored brethren, have paid back, through various channels, into the treasury of the Lord, during the year, $46,523—nearly a quarter as much as they have received.

Gratifying evidences of the good accomplished by the Society's labors are seen in churches gathered, in funds expended on houses of worship, and in provision made for the support of the ministry without further assistance. Sixty six churches have been organized, in connection with the labors of the missionaries during the year; and forty seven have become self-sustaining. Fifty five houses of worship have been completed; thirty seven repaired or improved; and the building of forty others commenced. Seventy eight young men, in connection with the missionary churches, are reported as in preparation for the gospel ministry.

3,104 by letters from other churches.

In but three other years, since the organization of the Society, has there been so large an accession to the churches aided. This is of the fruit, as yet but partially gathered in, of the remarkable revivals with which these churches have been visited within the last half of the year, in common with so many others in the cities and villages of the land. One hundred and fifty two missionaries make special mention of these works of grace in the churches to which they minister, many of which are described as of great interest and power, bringing persons of every age and profession and condition in life to the feet of Jesus. Sixty, seventy five, ninety, and one hundred conversions have taken place in small congregations, until whole families and neighborhoods were rejoicing together in the love of Christ, with scarce an individual remaining in impenitence and unbelief among them. The number of hopeful conversions, reported by 441 missionaries, is 4,450. In many places, these revivals still continue; in others, they are just commencing; in all, they are characterized by a remarkable spirit of prayer, and by an overpowering demonstration of the divine presence. Could we look within the sanctuaries where God is thus manifesting his glory, or could that great company of new-born souls be gathered in one assembly before us, and we be permitted to lift up one note of praise and supplication in unison with theirs, should we not feel, if nothing else were accomplished by our instrumentality, that we had received a hundred fold, in this present time, for all that we have ever consecrated to the missionary work? The relation of these revivals to the well-being of society, the education of the young, the promotion of whatsoever is lovely and of good report in the communities where they are enjoyed, as well as their influence on interests beyond the grave, can be but faintly comprehended till we shall no longer see through a glass darkly. Are not the wilderness and the solitary place glad for them? Does not the desert rejoice and blossom as the rose?

THE TREASURY.

RESOURCES.—The balance in the Treasury, April 1, 1857, was $21,252.40. The receipts of the succeeding twelve months have been $175,971.37; making the resources of the year $197,223.77.

PAYMENTS.—Of this sum, $190,735.70 have been paid; leaving $11,046.47 still due to missionaries for labor performed. Towards canceling these claims and redeeming additional pledges on commissions daily becoming due—amounting in all to $80,080.59—there is a balance in the Treasury of $6,488.07.

The year now closed opened with indications of unusual pecuniary prosperity. During the first five months, the receipts increased to nearly $8,000 beyond those of the like period in the year preceding; and the Committee felt justified in giving corresponding enlargement to the operations of the Society. The next three months, however—from September 1st to December 1st—covering the severest period of the financial embarrassments of the country, the receipts decreased to an extent unprecedented, coming short by nearly $13,000 of the amount realized in the corresponding months of the previous year. So embarrassing was this deficiency, that the Committee were unable to make prompt remittances to the missionaries for labor performed, or to pledge the needed assistance for the future to those who looked to them for aid.

In these circumstances, an appeal was made to the patrons of the Society, setting forth its condition and the immediate necessities of those who depended upon their regular dues for the comforts of life, calling upon the missionary churches, also, to do what they could to lessen the drafts upon the Treasury. This statement met with a generous response, both from those who give and those who receive. Relief soon began to be experienced, and has been coming in so steadily and liberally, that we are able to report, at the close of the year, an aggregate of receipts, falling short but $2,089.31 of that of the previous year; and for this we are indebted to the regular contributions of churches and individuals;

the amount of legacies, $32,404.74, being less by $487.27 than the year before.

The large balance in the Treasury at the beginning of the year occasioned by the payment of legacies near the close of the year preceding, in connection with the increased receipts of the last few months, has enabled the Committee to sustain their enlarged operations with less embarrassment, and they trust with less suffering to their missionary brethren, than they had reason to fear. The expenditures of the year—$190,735.70—exceed those of the previous year by $10,185.26; and those of any other year of the Society's labors by $4,124.68. The number of missionaries shows an increase over the preceding year of thirty eight. Fifteen more years of missionary service have been performed; fifty nine more congregations have enjoyed the ministrations of the Gospel; three thousand more children and youth have been instructed in Sabbath schools; and one thousand two hundred and thirty four more have been added to the churches.

Thus, he who bringeth the blind by a way that they knew not and leadeth them in paths that they have not known, has made this year of difficulty and apprehension a year of prosperity, even in the outward arrangements we have been permitted to make for the advancement of his kingdom. And when we add to all this the rich spiritual blessings he has bestowed upon the fields of our culture, and which are still descending as the dew of Hermon and as the dew that descended upon the mountains of Zion, shall we not trust him, in the darkest hour, and go forward, in his name, to gather in his chosen? God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble; therefore will we not fear, though the earth be removed, though the mountains be carried into the midst

Encouraged thus by God's gracious interposition, the patrons of the Society will surely feel it to be their privilege to sympathize with the churches and missionaries, who are still suffering under the pressure from which they themselves have in some measure been relieved; and in view of the dependence of the Society upon their bounty for all it has to bestow, and of the increasing and imperative calls from the destitute and needy, will bring more freely than ever their tithes into the store house, and plead more importunately than ever the exceeding great and precious promises, giving and praying and waiting, rejoicing and giving thanks, till this land shall become the glory of all lands, because the Lord hath chosen it for his habitation forever!

GENERAL COMPARATIVE RESULTS.

The following Table gives a comparative view of the amount of receipts, expenditures, number of missionaries, new appointments, congregations and missionary districts, years of labor performed, additions to the churches, and pupils in Sabbath schools, for each year since the organization of the Society.

It also exhibits, in the tenth column, the average expenditure, each year, for a year of missionary labor, obtained by dividing the sum total of the expenditures for the year, by the number of years of labor performed. And in the eleventh column, by dividing the sum total of the expenditures of each year, by the number of missionaries employed, is shown what the average to a missionary would be, if the expenditures were equally apportioned among them.

Remarks.—1. The total of receipts, for thirty two years, is $3,456,080.82.

- 2. The total of years of labor is 18,871. These years are reckoned in each Report, by adding together the number of months of labor which the missionaries have actually performed.
  - 3. The whole number of additions to the churches is 150,275.
- 4. The average expenditure for a year of missionary labor includes the entire cost to the Society, of obtaining the missionary, defraying his expenses to his field, and sustaining him on it, as well as all the expenses of conducting the Institution. The increased average of recent years has been occasioned by the greater number of those who have held full commissions, the expensiveness of more distant missions, and the larger appropriations that have become necessary, as the expenses of living have increased, to secure to the missionary a comfortable support.

- 5. The difference between the annual average expenditure to a missionary and the average of a year's labor, is occasioned by the fact that a missionary is named and counted in a Report, though in some cases he may have labored but a fraction of the year.
- 6. The fifth column—that of new appointments—shows how many have to be called in each year, to supply the places of those whose support is assumed by the people, the vacancies occasioned by death, sickness, removals, and other changes, and to make the increase, if there be any, over the number of the preceding year.

PRINCIPAL AUXILIARIES, AGENCIES, AND MISSION-ARY FIELDS.

MAINE MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Rev. WILLIAM T. DWIGHT, D.D., President; John How, Esq., Treasurer; Rev. Ben-Tappan, D.D., Secretary. Office at Portland.

The receipts of this Society, for the year ending March 1st, were $13,142.08. There were paid from the State into the Treasury of the Parent Society, during its financial year, $35.08; making a total of $13,177.16. The expenditures within the State were

Ninety one missionaries have been in commission during some portion of the year, the fields of whose labors comprised one hundred and eleven churches, and thirty towns and plantations where no churches exist. Eight new missionary stations have been occupied; two missionaries have been ordained; four houses of worship have been completed; and three churches have assumed the support of their own pastors. Seasons of refreshing, more or less extensive, have been experienced by many of the churches; and two hundred and twenty nine, at the date of the last Report of the Auxiliary, had been added to their membership; the whole number of members being four thousand six hundred and eighty nine.

This Society, in June last, celebrated its Fiftieth Anniversary. It was a season of great interest, fitted to call forth thanksgiving for the past, and to inspire hope and confidence for the future. At the organization of the Society, the population of the State was about 205,000; less than one third of what it is at the present time. The number of Congregational churches in the State, in 1807, was 87; at the close of fifty years, it was 237. The number of Congregational ministers, in 1807, was 65; in 1857, it was 166. Five hundred and fifty missionaries had been in the service of the Society, for a longer or shorter time, during the period of its labors, and all but forty of the Congregational churches in the State had been aided by its funds. Its annual receipts had increased from fifty six dollars to more than twelve thousand; and the number of its missionaries from one to one hundred. Fifty churches, assisted more or less by the Society, had become self-sustaining; and more than ten thousand souls were still receiving the bread of life from the hands of its missionaries. The Trustees, in their Semi-Centennial Report say: "Very generally, our missionaries have approved themselves to those among whom they have labored, as good men holding fast and teaching with all plainness and fidelity the truth as it is in Jesus. Amidst evil report and good report, in weariness and painfulness, they have cultivated many a hard field; and the Master has been with them to assist, sustain, and prosper them.

Many a solitary place has been made glad for them; the soul of many a weary pilgrim has been refreshed; the spirit of the fainting soldier of the cross has been inspired with fresh courage and strength; many churches have been planted, built up and enlarged. The spiritual, eternal good, which our Society has been the honored instrument of effecting, eye hath not seen nor ear heard, nor can it be comprehended by any finite understanding."

NEW HAMPSHIRE MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Rev. NATHANIEL BOUTON, D. D., President; Rev. BENJAMIN P. STONE, D.D., Secretary and Treasurer. Office at Concord.

The receipts for the year ending March 1st, were $6,133.33; of which $528.66 were designated by the donors for the American Home Missionary Society. There were also received into the Treasury of the National Society, during its financial year, from individuals in the State, $127.40, and in payment of legacies, $380; making the whole amount for the cause $6,640.73. The expenditures within the State were $6,547.41; and the amount paid into the Treasury of the National Society $1,036.06.

Forty five missionaries have been in commission during some portion of the year. The Rev. William Clark has continued his labors as Missionary Agent, and has spread before the christian community much valuable information, respecting the condition and prospects of the feeble churches and destitute places which he has visited.

At the date of the last Report of the Auxiliary, appropriations had been made to five churches not on the list of the previous year; two churches had been organized; three pastors had been settled; one hundred and ten had been added to the missionary churches; and a larger number of them, than for several years previous, had enjoyed the reviving influences of the Holy Spirit.

In addition to the missionary churches, "There are at least thirty five churches in the State," says the last annual Report, "mostly situated in agricultural towns, which find it a burden they are scarcely able to bear, to raise a competent support for the ministry. From this class of churches the Missionary Society may expect annually new calls for aid. At least one hundred churches in the State, find it either impossible or very difficult to maintain the institutions of the Gospel from their own resources. Not half of the whole number of churches connected with our order are what is denominated able churches. This is not a fact brought to view by the recent dealings of Divine Providence with our Zion. It has been true during the whole period of the Society's existence, and it will continue to be true for a long time to come. The friends of New Hampshire Home Missions may be assured that they will always have the poor with them, and that if they make not this Society the almoner of their supplies, these poor must perish in a famine of the hearing of the word; there being no others on earth to care for their souls. * * * But as great as are the discouragements with which we have to contend in prosecuting the missionary work in New Hampshire, the encouragements which urge us onward in it are still greater. We find them in the growing favor of the popular mind in destitute places towards our forms and principles, in the instances of the saving efficacy of a preached Gospel which here and there occur, and in the blessed capital of the divine promises, both to the churches and the ministry of the word."

VERMONT DOMESTIC MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Hon. Erastus Fairbanks, President; C. W. Storrs, Esq., Treasurer; Rev. John F. Stone, Secretary. Office at Montpelier.

The receipts of this Society for the year ending March 1st, were $8,489.18. There were also received into the Treasury of the Parent Society, from individuals and congregations in the State, $320.41, and in payment of legacies, $1,687.14; making the whole amount for the cause $10,496.73; exceeding the amount of the previous year by $5,363.39. The expenditures within the State were $7,755.23, and the amount paid into the Treasury of the Parent Society $2,007.55.

The number of missionaries who have been in the employment of the Society is seventy seven, including thirty six who have fulfilled short commissions of two or three months, previous to completing their theological studies. The labors of these missionaries, during their brief terms of service, have been attended with gratifying results; and many congregations have thus enjoyed, for a little season, the preaching of the word that would otherwise have

During the last missionary year of the Auxiliary, the amount of labor performed equaled thirty eight years; and the number of churches and districts supplied was seventy—exceeding, by twenty, the number of the previous year; four churches had assumed the support of their own ministry; two new houses of worship had been completed, and several others repaired; churches, which had been destitute for years and extremely disheartened, had been revived and encouraged, and had resolved to arise and build; and fields that had long been neglected wastes were wearing an encouraging aspect.

The Directors in their Report say: "It is also encouraging to know that young men in our Theological Schools, especially those who are sons of Vermont, have come to feel something like a due concern for our old wastes, and no longer forget that the destitute portions of the East have claims upon them as well as the new West and the distant heathen; that in one of those schools a company of the sons of Vermont assemble weekly for prayer and deliberation in relation to the religious destitutions and wants of their native State. The increase in the Society's receipts too is encouraging. The standard of giving is becoming more elevated. Members of the churches seem to entertain more just views as to the obligation of sustaining the cause of Christ at large, as well as in their own particular community. The number of rich men who help rather largely in this enterprise has increased, and, we trust, will still increase. In view of these and other favorable indications, we may justly take encouragement. Yet we would never, for one moment, forget that the success of our enterprise depends upon the influence of the Spirit of God—that if that be withheld, we labor in vain, and all these encouraging appearances will end in disappointment and failure." The Spirit of God is now especially present in many of the missionary fields, and in some of them there are extensive and powerful revivals.

MASSACHUSETTS HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Rev. RICHARD S. STORRS, D.D., President; BENJAMIN PERKINS, Esq., Treasurer; Rev. Henry B. Hooker, D.D., Secretary. Office in Boston.

The receipts of this Society, for the year ending March 1st, were $30,117.58. The expenditures, within the State, were $5,556.25; and the amount forwarded from the Treasury to the American Home Missionary Society, during its financial year, was $26,000. There were also received into the Treasury of the Parent Society—in payment of legacies, $9,907.60; from the Hampshire Missionary Society, $1,460.62; from congregations and individuals, $3,688.03—in all, $15,056.25; making the total to the cause from Massachusetts $45,173.83; which exceeds the amount of the year preceding by $8,656.20. The whole amount expended through the Parent Society is $41,056.25, exceeding the amount of the previous year by $7,721.02.

Thirty four missionaries have been in commission during the year; and many of the churches to which they have ministered have enjoyed the special visitations of the Divine Spirit. At the date of the last Report of the Auxiliary, the missionary churches contained a membership of 1,339; about two thirds of the missionaries held the pastoral office, the others were stated supplies residing among their people; four houses of worship had been built during the year; and five churches had taken upon themselves the entire support of their ministry. The benevolent contributions of the churches were equal to 46 per cent of what they had received from the Missionary Society.

The Executive Committee, in their Report, say: "It would be a most unwise policy for this Society to neglect the wants of Massachusetts in their zeal to supply similar wants in other parts of the land—to leave the poor of Christ's flock to perish in sight of our own door, for want of that care which we give to those who are perishing farther off. Such a line of policy would defeat its own aim, for it would diminish our power to save the perishing, either here or there.* * * * Yet, in relieving the necessities of our own little State, the Executive Committee find a class of facts painfullly suggestive of greater necessities in other parts of the land. One of the most frequently observed causes of the protracted weakness of our mission churches throughout New England, is the removal of their members-not from one church to another, but from the church to the wilderness-from the fed and folded flock and the familiar voice of the shepherd, to the extreme verge of civilization beyond the hearing of him that publisheth salvation. The church which they left in renewing their application for continued or increased aid in supporting the Gospel, can make a forcible plea, grounded on the fact of diminished numbers and reduced means. And is there no force in that other plea which comes from those other members of the same church in their far off wilderness home. utterly destitute and hopelessly destitute of church privileges, till the friends of Home Missions somewhere shall supply their wants? Neither filial nor parental obligations are supposed to be bounded by State lines; and who can believe that the obligations of christian charity are thus restricted? If there be indeed a bond of brotherhood uniting the whole family of Christ on earth and in heaven, it is not hindered nor are the claims which it imposes upon us forfeited by the removal of our Massachusetts brethren and sisters to the valley of the Mississippi or the shores of the Pacific.

Rev. Joseph S. Clark, D.D., for the last nineteen years the able and efficient Secretary of the Society, with whose judicious and untiring labors its growing prosperity has been identified, has, during the year, resigned his office for another sphere of duty, and been succeeded by Rev. Henry B Hooker, D.D., of Falmouth, Mass. Dr. Hooker brings to the office a large experience as a pastor, and an extensive acquaintance with the churches, and enters upon the discharge of its duties with the confidence and affection of his brethren—with the most gratifying assurances of successful labor.

RHODE ISLAND HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Rev. Thomas Shepard, D.D., President; Gilbert Richmond, Esq., Providence, Treasurer; Rev. A. Huntington Clapp, Providence, Secretary.

The receipts of this Society, for the year ending March 1st, were $1,090.37. There were also received, from the State, into the Treasury of the Parent Society, during its financial year, $55.00; making the total for the cause, $1,145.37. The expenditures within the State were, $1,728.17.

Eight missionaries have been in commission, during some portion of the year, and one of them has been installed pastor. "Most of our missionary churches," says the Secretary of the Society, "are in manufacturing villages, and have been sorely afflicted by the financial revulsion which has also so crippled the resources of our few self-supporting churches, as to give us great anxiety in reference to the support of the work in this narrow but important field, for the coming year."

In their last Report the Directors say, respecting their destitutions: "Places like those now vacant need men of large experience and high qualities of mind and heart, such as, specially in the present scarcity of ministers, command ample remuneration. These churches have sought and prayed for competent pastors; the Secretary has used every available means to supply the demand; he has had the advice and help of brethren generously interested in these vacant parishes. But as yet the men have not been found competent for the task, who could be secured at any such rate of remuneration as the state of our funds has warranted us to offer. We appeal to the Society and to the churches to tell us what we, as their representatives, shall do in this matter."

CONNECTICUT MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Rev. Horace Hooker, Secretary; E. W. Parsons, Esq., Treasurer. Office at Hartford.

The receipts of this Auxiliary, for the year ending March 1st, were $7,245.90. The expenditures, within the State, were $4,653.35, and the amount forwarded from the Treasury to the American Home Missionary Society, during its financial year, was $3,000. There were also received by the Parent Society, during the year—in payment of legacies, $7,326.73; from congregations and individuals, $11,829.98—in all, 19,156.71; making the total from the State $26,402.61; which exceeds the amount of the preceding year by $3,084.60. The amount expended through the Parent Society was $22,156.71, exceeding the amount of the previous year by $2,973.48.

Thirty six missionaries have been in commission within the year; three of whom have been installed pastors. Three churches which have been aided hitherto have become self-sustaining. "As to the external condition of the churches," says the Secretary of the Society, "it is better than we might have expected from the character of the year. The hard times have disheartened none of them from at least their usual support of religious institutions, while some have increased their contributions for this purpose. In a few cases we have enlarged our appropriations, where the people from their own means made a corresponding addition to the salaries of their pastors. Towards the latter part of the year embodied in this Report, some of the churches under our care have participated in the reviving influences of the Spirit, and we anticipate that the reports for the current quarter will be richer in the record of conversions and additions to the churches. Should this hope ripen into fruition, and we be permitted to 'shout the blessings home' from worn-out wastes, once overrun with thorns and briers, or to welcome, with you, wains returning full laden from the newly inclosed and broken up fields on the western prairies, while gratefully owning that it is 'God who giveth the increase,' we may remember for our encouragement that the increase comes mainly through the instrumentality of Home Missions."

Some of the causes which, protract the dependence of the missionary churches in Connecticut are thus noticed in the Report of the Directors: "The relations of the Atlantic States with the Western have varied essentially since the origin of Home Missions. The power of the latter to deplete, if we may so express it, the life blood of the former, is now tenfold, if not a hundredfold, greater than it was at that time. Modern improvements, almost dispelling the idea of distance, have made Chicago and St. Louis seem in our very neighborhood. The West, well nigh to the Rocky Mountains, and in some parts beyond, has become as familiar an object of thought and conversation throughout New England as the Hudson was at the opening of this century. Its rich soil, its boundless prairies, its gold-bespangled rocks are mused over by childhood itself. The temptations to migrate have thus become almost irresistible. * * * Nor is this the whole of the evil. A diversified foreign element, unused, if not hostile to the doctrines and forms of worship prevalent in our churches, will often supply the vacancies made by these removals. cities and in the larger villages, where the present tendency of the population is to concentrate, the effect of this diversity on the Home Missionary work may not be as rapid, or as early apparent as in the sparser population of the country towns. But with quickened emigration to weaken and alien immigration to distract, it will be no ordinary task to sustain in a healthful condition the whole sisterhood of our churches."

PHILADELPHIA HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

John Λ. Brown, Esq., President; Henry Perkins, Esq., Treasurer; Rev. Robert Adair, Secretary. Office at Philadelphia.

This Auxiliary received into its Treasury, during the year ending March 1st, 1858, $7,977.55. The amount paid from the field into the Treasury of the Parent Society, during its financial year, ending April 1st, was $1,666.74; viz.: from New Jersey, $1,170.64; from Pennsylvania, $106.10; and from the District of Columbia, $390—making an aggregate of $9,644.29; which is less than the contributions of the preceding year, by $1,657.88. The outlays have been $8,119.85, and the balance on hand, on the 1st of March, was $1,411.44.

Forty nine missionaries have been sustained within the bounds of this Auxiliary, during the past year. One of them has been installed pastor over the church to which he ministers. No church is reported as having become self-sustaining; but a large proportion of the whole number "have enjoyed unusual religious prosperity, during the fall and winter; and recently some have shared largely in the present wide-spread visitation of mercy. In some of the mining and manufacturing districts, the missionary churches have been in great straits; and had it not been for the spiritual blessings bestowed, the missionaries would have been overwhelmed with discouragements." Many of these brethren are compelled to struggle with great embarassments, and throughout a large portion of the field, christian progress is necessarily slow.

No one of our Auxiliaries covers so large an area as this, or includes so great or so varied a population. There were within its limits, at the time of the last census, more than 3,500,000 souls; and yet the churches on whose patronage it must rely, were but little over two hundred in number—one third of them too feeble to support their ministers without assistance, and nearly another third, able to do little more. In no Auxiliary has the Home Missionary work so many difficulties to contend with, and in none is there a more imperative demand for the highest order of christian capacity and devotion. "Its mining and manufacturing districts, with its lumbering and farming regions, in many instances, present moral destitutions as great as can be found in any part of our land"; while in some of its most populous regions the fact that a large proportion of the inhabitants are of German descent, creates difficulties comparatively unknown where the population is homogeneous. The disparity between the available strength of the churches, on this field, and the spiritual necessities of the people, is great. And although this may be somewhat reduced by the blessed work of the Holy Spirit, now in progress, nevertheless, the results can hardly be expected to afford more than a slight foretaste of the consummation for which we wait and pray. There is a great work to be done in these States. "The harvest truly is plenteous; but the laborers are few."

CENTRAL AGENCY, NEW YORK.

Rev. Theodore Spencer, Secretary; J. E. Warner, Esq., Treasurer. Office at Utica.

The receipts into the Treasury of this Agency, during its financial year, ending March 1st, 1858, were $4,813.01. The contributions from the same field paid directly into the Society's Treasury were $1,732.34—making an aggregate of contributions from this part of the State, of $6,545.35. Of this amount, a legacy of $500 was forwarded to the Treasury of the Society; which, with $800 since received, and the $1,732.34 already mentioned, make the total resources derived from the field, in aid of the general operations of the National Society, $3,032.34. Within its own bounds disbursements have been made, amounting to $3,724.69.

"The receipts of the year," observes the Secretary, "are less than those of the year preceding; but the deficiency is not caused by circumstances which, in the least degree, savor of permanency"; but "is owing solely to the financial embarrassment of the past half year. There is no reasonable doubt that, in their contributions for the coming year, the churches will be restored to their former standard, and will resume their annual increase."

Twenty nine missionaries have labored within the bounds of this Agency since the last Annual Report; and have ministered to thirty one churches, and supplied about four thousand souls with the stated means of grace.

Many churches in Central New York have recently been blessed with a refreshing from on high; converts have been gathered in, and feeble congregations have been strengthened. Every where, indeed, the presence of the Spirit has been manifested, in some degree; while in places not a few, there have been unusual and

"It will be observed," says the Secretary, "that there has been a decrease in the number of missionaries for the past year. We regret being unable to report, that this is owing to an increase in the number of self-supporting churches. The truth is, that with every disposition to go to the extent of their ability, congregations remain destitute of the stated means of grace; and the principal cause of this destitution is the difficulty of procuring ministers. Feeble as they are, many of these churches constitute the only hope, under God, that the pure word of divine truth will be brought to bear upon the people of their several localities. It becomes us, by all appropriate means within our reach, to cherish them in their weakness and develop their strength. sent efforts to induce a more prompt and systematic course of contributions, on the part of the abler churches, shall prove successful throughout the twenty five counties embraced in the field of this Agency, its Secretary will be enabled to devote a larger portion of his time to his more appropriate work, of visiting these feeble churches, encouraging, counseling, and aiding them, in arrangements for securing the permanent ministrations of the Gospel." It will undoubtedly be advisable, in many cases, that two neighboring churches should unite in the support of a single pastor. Such an enlargement of field increases the stimulus, under which the minister labors, and must often be attended with benefit both to him and his people. In the present multitude of denominations and dearth of ministers, it is not possible to supply all existing congregations with the regular means of grace, upon any other plan. And, if it were possible, it is questionable whether it were best. For the expense of maintaining missionaries in very small fields is large; while the service which men can render in these too narrow spheres, is generally inferior to the results of the same abilities under the pressure of greater outward incitements. An enlargement of sphere is often as necessary to a missionary's efficiency, as an increase of salary is to his comfort; and, in the case of numbers of excellent and faithful ministers of the Gospel in this State—as well as in others—both are absolutely indispensable to their highest usefulness.

WESTERN AGENCY, NEW YORK.

Rev. John A. Murray, Secretary; W. T. Scott, Esq., Treasurer. Office at Geneva.

The receipts into the Treasury of this Agency during the year ending March 1st, 1858, were $7,421.11; and the disbursements for the same period were $7,140.45. Sums have also been forwarded directly to the Society's Treasury, for the general cause, in payment of legacies and of contributions, amounting to $10,237.56—of which $8,000 were from the legacy of the late Dea. Jabez Goodell—making a total, for the year, of $17,658.67.

Sixty five missionaries have been sustained within the bounds of the Western Agency, during the past year, who have ministered to sixty six churches.

Western New York has suffered, for the last three years, from a wide spread failure of some of the principal crops; so that the recent financial crisis affected this portion of the State with peculiar severity, and collections for benevolent objects have been unusually difficult. In addition to causes of this description, a very heavy emigration westward has drained the churches and towns of much of their best strength. In view of such a combination of circumstances, it is in a high degree gratifying to observe with what praiseworthy liberality the churches have sustained their contributions to the Home Missionary cause. As no portion of the country has more fully experienced the benefits of the Society's labors, so none has manifested a deeper interest in its ever growing work. The noble example of the late honored President of the Society-whose home was, for many years, within the bounds of this Agency, and who was, from the first, a member of its Board—was, doubtless, not without its influence, while he lived; and now that he has entered into his rest, the spirit which animated him survives in the hearts of his fellow laborers; and will survive, we trust, in all that shall come after.

This missionary field bears a nearer resemblance to those of New England than to those of the West. The feebleness of its churches arises, not so much from over hasty immigration as from excessive emigration. Most of those now aided by the Society are very feeble, and utterly unable to sustain the Gospel without assistance; and though some have now risen to the condition of self support, others may continue weak for a long time. But they are none the less the hope of the communities wherein they stand; and the influence of these feeble christian households is borne, it should be remembered, to the remotest corners of the farther West, in the persons of those who have been reared beneath their care. A very considerable number have recently experienced a refreshing from the presence of the Lord. In some a "Committee of Inquiry" has been formed, to visit the different families, to converse with individuals on personal religion, and urge attendance at the Sabbath school and on public worshipmeasures which have been followed with the best results. In portions of the field, the revival has been characterized by unusual power, and the people have been more generally moved than ever before, thronging the churches, by day and night, in serious crowds. Thus has the Spirit of God been doing a wonderful Home Missionary work—strengthening the things that were ready to die, and filling multitudes of hearts with songs of salvation. Denominations have frankly and heartily rejoiced in each other's successes; and the watchmen upon the walls have lifted up their voices together, in unison. Christians, in grateful surprise have exclaimed: "This is the Lord's doing; it is marvelous in our eyes."

The State of New York has enjoyed the labors of one hundred and thirty three missionaries, during the past year, and the aggregate of its contributions amounts to $39,347.96.

WESTERN RESERVE AGENCY, OHIO.

Rev. James H. Newton, Secretary; T. P. Handy, Esq., Treasurer. Office at Cleveland.

The receipts of this Agency, for the year ending March 1st, have been $2,737, and its expenditures, $2,452.79. Other contributions from this field have been received into the Treasury of the Society, amounting to $297.84, making the whole sum devoted to the cause of Home Missions by the churches of the Western Reserve, $3,034.84.

Twenty eight missionaries have been sustained on this field, and have preached to thirty four churches.

Interesting revivals of religion have occurred in several of the missionary congregations, during the past year; some of which, at the last accounts, were still in progress. It is hoped that the fruits of these outpourings of the divine Spirit will be seen, not alone in additions to the number of professing Christians, in the increase of their zeal and liberality, and in the greater strength and efficiency of the churches, but also in an improved tone of public opinion, and a diminution of that fondness for new things which has hitherto so injuriously affected the religious and the moral interests of many communities. Northern Ohio has suffered for years, from that fanaticism for novelties which has misled so many of our people in all parts of the country; the fountain of living waters has been forsaken, and men have hewn out for themselves cisterns that can hold no water. There is a promise now of a return, in some measure, to the well-spring of divine truth; and we earnestly cherish the hope, that the coming year may show a brighter page in the religious history of the Western Reserve, than has recently been entered upon its annals. The indications of improvement, however, must not blind us to the fact, that a great work remains to be done. More than twenty feeble churches are unsupplied with the regular ministrations of the Gospel; and some of these have ceased to afford any signs of spiritual life. Much of the western portion of the field is unoccupied. "Should the wave of divine mercy, now passing over our country, continue to roll and irrigate these wastes, we may hope yet to see them fruitful fields." The work of the missionary in this region is exceedingly arduous, and demands, in a high degree, the spirit of self-sacrifice and of faith; and the manifestation of this spirit is precisely the kind of influence most likely to be useful. There is need, writes a missionary, that the Lord Jesus "be impersonated here. These Christless souls need to see how a Christian lives." In conclusion, we may say, that while for a long time, there has not been so much encouragement, as now exists, for the vigorous prosecution of the missionary enterprise, there never was a time when its necessity was more apparent, or when this portion of the field furnished more impressive illustrations of the truth, that the peculiar work of Home Missions is what our country most needs for its safety and its progress—that the presence of the Spirit of Christ in the hearts of men is as necessary to the moral health of society, as to the salvation of the soul.

MARIETTA AGENCY, OHIO.

Rev. Thomas Wickes, Secretary. A. T. Nye, Esq., Treasurer. Office at Marietta.

The receipts into the Treasury of this Agency, during the past year, have been $276.22. From the same field, the sum of $291.64 has been paid directly into the Society's Treasury; making a total of $567.86. Disbursements have been made to the amount of $235.41, to aid in sustaining seven missionaries who have labored within the bounds of the Agency.

The Marietta Agency occupies ten counties in the south eastern portion of the State, viz.: Lawrence, Gallia, Meigs, Athens, Washington, Monroe, Morgan, Hocking, Vinton, and Jackson—the first six bordering upon the river. This region is, in general, more sparsely settled than the rest of the State, averaging in 1850 but forty five inhabitants to the square mile, and only about 19,000 to each county. The total population at that time was a little over 191,000. This has always been a region of destitutions, and how or when its inhabitants are to be reached by such religious instrumentalities as may reasonably be expected to be efficient, is more than can now be foreseen.

We are encouraged in observing, that two or three of the churches which received aid for a series of years, have now, for two years, succeeded in maintaining their ministers without it. though with great effort, and with some doubt of their ability to bear the burthen permanently. One new field of great promise and interest has been occupied, during the past year, and the first labor expended on it has met with most encouraging success. church has been organized, a house of worship commenced, the blessing of the Spirit's peculiar presence has been enjoyed, and with the decay of skepticism and indifference, there is ground of hope that, ere long, this congregation will be equal to the independent maintenance of gospel institutions.

On the other hand, the oft-repeated story of "feebleness" must be renewed. The churches are still few. Some have been in a declining state for years, too feeble to sustain the regular ministrations of the word, and are almost at the point of extinction; while wide destitutions on all sides surround them. In many places the people have been so long without the Gospel, that they are unwilling to make the efforts necessary to obtain it. If they ever secure it, it will be through the agency of those who have a truer estimate of its worth, and who are willing to bear, for a time, the burthen of the expense alone. Any new churches formed must at first be very feeble, must increase the number of dependents on missionary aid, and—unless the supply of ministers can be enlarged—must add to the toils of faithful men who are already overtasked. The only possible system which can come near meeting the existing demand, must be one which shall unite a number of stations under the care of a single pastor.

There is obviously a demand, in this portion of the State, for more power in the prosecution of the gospel work-for a larger supply both of ministers and of money for their support. This necessity is made more pressing by the fact, that the current of German immigration is now turning itself towards this field, bringing a formidable reinforcement to the elements hostile to evangelical Christianity. This, if not met by a corresponding increase of a different kind of population, or by special religious efforts, can not fail greatly to increase the obstacles in the way of the missionaries, while adding to their task.

WESTERN OHIO.

Rev. LYSANDER KELSEY, Columbus, Agent.

Forty one missionaries have been sustained in this portion of the State, during the past year, and have ministered to sixty churches. Its contributions have amounted to $1,741.86.

Five licentiates have been ordained to the ministry, within the past twelve months, over missionary congregations. Several fields have been blessed with revivals of religion; and seven or eight have made arrangements for the support of their ministers without aid

The spiritual condition of this portion of the missionary field affords some grounds for special encouragement. Many years have passed since there has been such a general seriousness, and so much attention to personal religion, as at the present time; and we receive the gratifying testimony, that the missionaries of this Society "are among the most zealous and active," and that "their faithful labors are greatly blessed in the conversion of many souls."

The benefits of a permanent ministry are here apparent. Every missionary church that has had a permanent pastor for a number of years is growing and prosperous; while of those which have suffered frequent changes in the ministry, some are barely holding their ground, and others have greatly declined, or have become extinct. The missionaries, amid many self-denials, are in general, prosecuting their labors with ability and success. Places where organized infidelity once reigned triumphant, are now feeling the wholesome influences of the Gospel, statedly administered; while unbelief has lost its power, and its organizations have fallen to pieces.

With all these cheering signs, there yet remain large towns, villages, and rural communities, where there is no minister of either of the denominations cooperating in the Society, and yet where faithful laborers would be sure to gather congregations and churches. Seventeen counties, containing in the aggregate over 600,000 inhabitants, have but fifty four ministers of these denominations, or about one for every 11,000 of the people; six other counties, with a population of 160,000, have only ten ministers, or one to 16,600 inhabitants; eight counties, with an average population of more than 24,000, have but one minister each; and twenty counties, containing more than 340,000 people, are wholly destitute. Taking the field as a whole, we have but one hundred and fifteen churches, and seventy one ministers in connection with our two denominations, to meet the spiritual wants of a population of 1,296,000, with a ratio of but one church member to every one hundred and fifty eight inhabitants. Of the churches, only forty three are self-sustaining, while seventy two are dependent upon missionary aid for the support of the Gospel. Many of the communities in which these feeble congregations are found suffer from that "depopulation," which drains their best energies for the peopling of the vast and fertile wildernesses of the farther West.

The whole number of missionaries employed in the State during the year, is seventy six; and the contributions to the Society amount to $5,344.56. A careful survey of the entire field within the limits of Ohio, renews our sense of the magnitude and difficulty of the missionary work here commenced, and of the importance, to the religious welfare of the whole country, of its successful prosecution. The State is the third in the Union in population; is possessed of great wealth, and of immense resources in process of speedy development; and while receiving a larger immigrant population from her sister commonwealths and from Europe than any other Western State, she had, eight years ago, already sent a larger number of her children beyond her borders. than any other in the Union except New York, Pennsylvania, and Virginia. In 1850, nearly 300,000 natives of Ohio were living beyond her bounds, and nearly 540,000 natives of other States, within them. Under her institutions, therefore, thousands of Eastern families are rearing their children, while other thousands who are busy in founding the new society of the frontiers, are under the control of principles imbibed on her soil. In view of such facts, the statement that there are many entire counties in Ohio destitute, while nearly two thirds of all our churches now in existence within an area covering the larger portion of the State, are too feeble for self-support, acquires an impressive weight. Under such circumstances, it is obviously of the utmost importance that the churches in this State remain united in counsel and in sympathy, mutually strengthening and encouraging one another, while they look forward to the day, when they shall not only bear the burthen of their own destitutions, but be able to contribute largely in aid of younger Territories beyond.

INDIANA.

REV. HENRY LITTLE, Madison, Agent.

Thirty eight missionaries have been sustained in this State during the past year, and the contributions from within its bounds have amounted to $2,102.67.

The denominations allied in this Society have never been strong in Indiana; and the population, taken as a whole, is by no means peculiarly accessible to our missionaries. The names of 150 Presbyterian (N. S.) and Congregational churches are found upon the most recent Minutes; but probably less than 130 of these possess much real efficiency. The supply of ministers is still more inadequate. "To meet the wants of these churches, and to make further aggression on the kingdom of darkness," says the Society's Agent, "we have only sixty five ministers giving themselves wholly to the work; and at present these are so distributed, that

Nevertheless, the Society has by no means labored in vain. All the existing churches, it is believed, with three or four exceptions, have been organized, or essentially aided through its instrumentality. The same is true of a large portion of the O.S. Presbyterian churches. Wabash College, also, was founded by Home Missionaries. One of their number, again, was the author of the School Law; and "the State owes its progress in education, in all its departments, very much to the influence of the same wise and faithful men." The cause of temperance, likewise, for a considerable time, found almost its only supporters in their ranks; and the foundations of this great reform are their work. If able allies have since come to their help, it may be doubted whether, to this hour, any of these surpass, in devotedness or efficiency, the original master builders, with their ministerial companions and successors. The history of this State furnishes abundant illustrations of the fact, that a Home Missionary church, with a very small number of members, and those poor in this world's goods, may be a most efficient agent for the establishment of the most valuable institutions and social customs.

The benefit of such results is not confined within the limits of the State, or even of the greater West beyond. For in 1850, nearly 400,000 of the people of Indiana were natives of other, and mostly of older States; so that many Eastern communities are now reaping, in the persons of their emigrant children, the fruits of their contributions to Home Missions. The bread which they cast upon the waters feeds their own households.

But while receiving so many thousands from her sister States, Indiana is already pouring other thousands into the regions beyond. Some of her churches have sent out from twenty to one hundred of their members. In one instance, three hundred persons left a single congregation for Iowa, where they founded two vigorous churches. Such heavy losses, however, are sadly enfeebling; and many communities in this State, once flourishing, are now suffering severely from this "depopulation." Its missionary churches have ever found the scarcity of efficient, pious laymen almost as great a drawback upon their prosperity as the dearth of ministers. This emigration aggravates the difficulty. The numerous revivals of the past season will, doubtless, increase the strength of many congregations, and we may expect a considerable number to rise, ere long, to a position of self support. But while so many entire counties, and so large a proportion of the numerous villages upon that network of railroads covering the State, are unsupplied with gospel institutions, the demand for missionary assistance must increase rather than diminish. almost all these counties and these villages, a minister, of good abilities and devoted to his work, would immediately create an ample field, and would very soon see himself engaged in an interesting and growing work. The day is probably nigh when much larger demands will be made upon the Society's resources from this portion of its field.

ILLINOIS.

Rev. Aratus Kent, Galena, Agent for Northern Illinois.
Rev. Elisha Jenney, Waverly, Agent for Central and Southern Illinois.

Eighty two missionaries have been sustained in this State during the past year. The contributions to Home Missions have amounted to $2,941.42.

The State of Illinois has been divided, for Home Missionary purposes, into two parts, one embracing the northern portion, the other the more sparsely settled regions of the center and the south. The twenty four counties embraced in the agency for Northern Illinois, now contain about 530,000 inhabitants. Rev. Aratus Kent, the Society's Agent, reports one hundred and fifty one churches as belonging to the two coöperating denominations, of which number only fifty six are self-sustaining. To supply these churches, with the surrounding destitutions, there are one hundred and five ministers of the Gospel, devoted exclusively to its work. The Agent estimates that twenty four others might be usefully employed at once. During the past year, five churches have been organized, five more have assumed the support of their ministers, and four congregations have erected houses of worship. The missionaries have continued to prosecute their work with fidelity and success.

Twenty seven years have now elapsed since the formation of the first missionary church on this field; and in this time, observes the Agent, "churches sustained in their infancy by this Society, have been established in fifteen of the twenty four county seats, and are exerting a purifying influence in most of the large towns. What would now have been the condition of the community if no such association had lavished its bounties in aid of our early destitutions, may be readily gathered from a simple statement of facts relative to Galena and its vicinity, in 1829, when, amidst a population of from ten to twenty thousand, there was no church, no Sabbath school, no Sabbath, no minister, Protestant or Catholic, no family altar, and, indeed, no openly avowed advocates of personal piety; but a man who avoided profanity and the use of strong drink, was a marked man-suspected of being religious! Such was the state of morals, that if Abraham has passed that way, he would have exclaimed, as on another occasion: 'Surely the fear of God is not in this place, and they will slay me, for my wife's sake." What a contrast with this picture does the present day afford.

"It is true," proceeds the Agent, "that we have received and expended on this field in five years, not far from $37,000. But let us see what has been achieved by means of this full flow of Eastern beneficence. In the first place, we have contributed, in return, about $12,000, for the general purposes of the Society, or almost one third of the amount of aid granted, which would not otherwise have been collected. Then, again, the people have been stimulated and encouraged, and have actually raised, for the support of the ministry, not less than $75,000. Thirdly, the houses of worship that have been built within these five years by Home Missionary churches, or those which were once of the number, have, in all probability, cost not less than $100,000. Fourthly, the contributions to other causes of benevolence, and which our missionaries have been foremost to encourage, are not less than $20,000. Fifthly, these efforts to raise funds in support of their own institutions, and to send their beneficence abroad, have fostered habits of giving, which, if estimated merely at their money value, are good security for a much larger sum than it has cost to nurture them." But the endeavor is vain, to express the results of the preaching of the divine word in terms of arithmetic.

The present condition of this portion of the field is full of encouragement. A goodly work has been wrought here, and yet not so great but that many places remain unsupplied with the Gospel, and many thousands of souls are suffering for want of the bread of life.

In Central and Southern Illinois, the Society's efforts during the past year have been embarrassed by the failure to secure the advantages of a permanent agency, Rev. S. P. Lindley having tendered his resignation in the middle of the year. It is with pleasure, therefore, that we announce the acceptance of this post by Rev. Elisha Jenney, of Waverly, Ill., one of the earliest missionaries of the State, and personally familiar with its history from the beginning; whose long experience in the missionary work, and particularly within the bounds of the Illinois, and more recently the Alton Presbytery, and his extensive acquaintance with the ministers and churches of both denominations, seem peculiarly to qualify him for the responsible employments of this position.

This is by no means a new field of Home Missionary enterprise. It was in Southern Illinois that the Society's labors within the State were commenced; and two missionaries were sustained there during its first year. In its third year, these pioneers were reinforced by a noble band of young men, who, ere the close of the year following, with true christian forecast, had founded Illinois College. From that day onward, the Society's efforts in behalf of the region have been unintermitted; and although the comparative success here attained is not equal to that which has followed its efforts in the northern counties, we are permitted to point to more than one hundred and eighty Presbyterian (N. S.) and Congregational churches, as the monument of the fidelity and efficiency of its missionaries and their compeers. A large proportion of these churches, indeed, are still feeble, many of them are vacant, and many are surrounded by wide destitutions. Nevertheless, after all proper deductions have been made, the degree of success here attained must be regarded as encouraging. For it is to be remembered, that much of the population of the region now under review has ever afforded but an ungenial soil for Puritan and Presbyterian institutions. An obstinate hostility to education, and especially to all ministerial learning, together with other jeal-ousies and prejudices equally unreasonable, have often baffled the most earnest endeavors for the people's good; and in many places, this hatred of all that is best still celebrates its mournful triumph,

Eighteen years ago, there were, in the forty southern counties of Illinois, but ten churches and seven ministers connected with our two denominations. Three years later, twenty three of these counties, embracing a population of 112,700, contained but eight ministers connected with the two branches of the Presbyterian Church; while other denominations furnished not less than three hundred and eighty preachers—mostly uneducated, and many of them grossly ignorant men—or one to every three hundred souls. Within a few years, an important change for the better has commenced. The emigration to Southern Illinois is of higher character than formerly, in wealth, in enterprise, in education, and morality. Towns are springing up along the railroads; institutions of learning have been founded; the churches have gained in strength, and, what is of equal value, in hope; the missionaries meet with new success in their labors to promote the observance of the Sabbath and to diminish the ravages of intemperance, and their reports breathe a tone of encouragement, which is an earnest of further progress. Never has the Home Missionary work in Central and Southern Illinois worn an aspect of so much promise. The time has come for laying throughout this glorious clime the foundations of many generations.

MICHIGAN.

Rev. HERBERT A. READ, Marshall, Agent.

The number of missionaries in commission in this State, within the year covered by this Report, is sixty five. The amount contributed to the Society, during the same period, is $3,066.48, falling short of the sum contributed during the preceding year by

Michigan has shared largely in the vicissitudes which have affected all portions of the missionary field, during the year, and some sections of the State have experienced peculiar trials. In consequence of excessive emigration, during the summer of 1856, and the extraordinary severity of the subsequent winter, many of the northern settlements of the State were reduced to the verge of famine; and some of the inhabitants actually perished from hunger and exposure. This state of things imposed a heavy tax upon the labors and sympathies of the missionaries in this region, and upon the pecuniary resources of their people; while it diverted the attention of all from spiritual, to temporal interests. Some of the missionaries were obliged to spend much time in ministering to the destitute and suffering; and one instance is mentioned, in which a christian mother was found beyond the reach of any sustenance but the bread that came down from heaven. "I had only time," says the missionary, "to direct her to Christ, and she expired, leaving four little children. We laid the young wife and mother in the grave, in the dark and lonely forest, where the Indian still pursues the deer, the wolf, and the bear.

She was the first person ever buried in the town."

This season of distress was succeeded by a bountiful harvest, and the missionary congregations, sharing in the general prosperity, were making encouraging progress towards independence, when the financial storm, which has swept over the country, overtook them. From this cause, plans for the erection of church edifices have, in some instances, been thwarted, or their execution postponed; the fulfillment of pledges already made, as well as the assumption of increased responsibilities, have been rendered impracticable, and all the material interests of the assisted congregations have temporarily suffered. Nevertheless, the past year, on the whole, has been one of more than usual progress. Several houses of worship have been completed, ten churches have been gathered in new fields, six have become self-sustaining, and several others have testified their gratitude to the Society by increased contributions to its funds, and have made large advances towards self-support. The noble self-denial thus evinced, by some of the churches, deserves our grateful recognition. But in the spiritual results of the year's labors, we find special occasion for devout gratitude to him who giveth the increase. "Never," says the Agent, "in the religious history of this State, have there been so generally revivals of religion, as at the present time. There is scarcely a church that is not receiving the dews of divine grace; and on very many of them copious showers are falling. In many cases the converts are counted by scores, and, in some, the number has reached a hundred. A large number of young men, the fruits of these seasons of ingathering, are already turning their thoughts to the work of the ministry. The most remote and secluded missionary districts, as well as the populous towns and villages, have participated in these revival influences; and many a log school-house has been made vocal with songs of joy and praise from new born souls."

Among the results of these visitations of the Spirit, will be a demand for an increased number of laborers, and an enlargement of this Society's operations, in the sparsely populated portions of the State. Many settlements which, hitherto, have manifested but little interest in the planting of gospel institutions, and have afforded little encouragement to those who would attempt it, will now demand the early attention of this Institution. The valleys of the Grand and Saginaw rivers have received the careful attention of the Committee for two or three years; and a considerable number of efficient laborers have been stationed there, whose ministry has been crowned with signal success; yet the increase of the population of this region has outstripped these efforts to supply the means of grace. Several populous counties, in this section of the State, are entirely destitute of ministers, of the denominations sustaining this Society. Villages are springing up all along the shores of both of the great lakes that skirt the lower peninsula, and smaller settlements are scattered over almost its whole area, where the preaching of the Gospel is rarely or never The construction of projected railroads across the State. and northward to the shores of Lake Superior, will accelerate emigration, stimulate enterprise, and open highways for the chariot of salvation. To overtake, and keep pace with, the material development of this region, and supply the more than forty vacant churches, in the southern portion of the State, will require a greatly increased outlay of ministerial labor, and of missionary funds.

WISCONSIN.

Rev. Dexter Clary, Beloit, Agent for Eastern Wisconsin. Rev. John W. Sherwin, La Crosse, Agent for Western Wisconsin.

In this State, ninety three missionaries have held commissions from this Society, during the past year, and $2,370.87 have been collected for the cause of Home Missions.

Since the last Report, Rev. John C. Sherwin, late pastor of the Congregational Church in La Crosse, has been appointed Agent of the Society for that part of the State lying westward from the Wisconsin river. He was the pioneer missionary in this section of the State, having entered upon his labors in the autumn of 1851. He is, therefore, familiar with the religious history and present condition of this region, and enjoys, in a high degree, the confidence of the churches among which he labors. By the division of this field into two districts, a more thorough exploration of it has been accomplished, than was practicable before; and the efficiency of the Society's operations throughout the State has been greatly promoted.

The number of missionaries sustained in the western part of the State, within the year, is fifteen. They have had under their care fourteen churches, and have preached regularly at a greater number of stations where churches have not yet been constituted. One church has been organized, two houses of worship have been finished and dedicated, and another is approaching completion. This region is very inadequately supplied with ministerial laborers. Two of those whose names are included in this Report, have been recently laid aside by ill health; and the Agent mentions six or eight important points, yet unsupplied, which should be occupied without delay. He says: "It fills my heart with sorrow, to look over this new and wide field with the thought that so many important centers of influence must be left, for years, without the regular preaching of the Gospel, to restrain infidelity, and to convey the bread of eternal life to the souls of men. Again and again, as I pass over the hills and through the beautiful valleys, where villages are springing up, and wide fields are being prepared to yield abundant harvests, do I inquire, with painful misgivings—'Where are the men of God who will come and live and labor to build up the kingdom of Christ, where they will not build on another man's foundation?"

In the portion of the State lying eastward from the Wisconsin river, there have been in commission, within the year, seventy eight missionaries, one of whom has preached to Germans, one to Norwegians, and ten to Welsh congregations. These laborers have preached, statedly, to ninety three churches, and at forty five stations where churches are not yet organized. There are now, on this field, forty self-sustaining churches, all but twelve of which have reached this condition in the last seven years. Four churches have become independent, within the year now reported; twelve have been organized; nine houses of worship have been completed, two enlarged, and fifteen were in process of erection at the close of the year. Five ministers have been installed as pastors of the flocks to which they minister. There have been revivals of religion in twenty churches, and many others have enjoyed seasons of more than usual religious interest. In the early part of the year, the congregations assisted were sharing largely in the general outward prosperity enjoyed by the country; but their spiritual condition was unusually gloomy. The financial revulsion of the autumn suddenly arrested their material growth, and, in some instances, disabled them from sustaining the pecuniary burdens they had assumed; but, as a result of these pecuniary reverses, and more than a compensation for them, a more abundant spiritual harvest has been gathered than in any former year.

There is, however, a wide region, in this portion of the State, where little or no missionary labor has yet been bestowed. Wood, Portage, Marathon, Shawanaw, Door, and Kewanee counties are still unoccupied. Oconto and Adams counties have been occupied, for the first time, during the past year. Waupaca, Waushara, Outagamie, Brown and Calumet—all of them populous counties—have, each, but two laborers. "Ten missionaries," says the Agent, "would find ample scope, in these counties, for their missionary zeal, and for all their mental and physical abilities." He adds: "The great things that have been accomplished, and the adaptation of Home Missions, as a means of good, inspire hope and give large promise for the future. The natural resources of the State, the intelligence and enterprise of the people, the ample provision made for educational and humane institutions, and the plans laid, on a liberal scale, for extensive and rapid improvements will, with the blessing of God, make Wisconsin one of the most important of the sisterhood of States. But it must not be forgotten that the realization of our hopes, in regard to all its higher interests, depends, under God, upon the vigilance, fidelity, and patient continuance in well doing, of his people. Thus hoping, and yet trembling, let us carry forward the work of evangelization, accounting all our labor and sacrifice a privilege and joy, as done and suffered for Christ."

IOWA.

Rev. JESSE GUERNSEY, Davenport, Agent.

The Society has had in commission in this State, during the year just closed, ninety six missionaries; and about twice this number of congregations have enjoyed their stated ministrations. Three of these laborers preach in the German, and one in the Welsh language. In the six years preceding the last, the number of missionaries in Iowa increased from forty one to eighty seven, or at the rate of nearly eight annually. The number now reported exceeds that of the preceding year by nine. One who entered upon his ministry in this State, since the commencement of of the year now under review, has been removed from his earthly labors to his heavenly rest. The amount contributed to the funds of the Society, by churches and individuals in this State, since the last Report, is $1,453.23, which exceeds by $308.28 the sum furnished in the previous year.

Rev. Julius A. Reed, who has labored with great fidelity and efficiency, during the last twelve years, as the Society's Agent for Iowa, has resigned his office, to enter another important and kindred sphere of labor. The Committee are happy to state that the vacancy has been filled by the appointment of Rev. Jesse Guernsey, recently pastor of the Congregational Church in Dubuque. He entered upon his labors in October last, and has met a cordial welcome from the friends of Home Missions, in both denominations, throughout the State.

In reviewing the operations of the Society on this field, during the past year, we find abundant occasion for gratitude and encouragement. Twelve houses of worship have been erected, two others have been greatly improved, and at least six were in process of erection at the close of the year. The aid rendered to the feeble churches, by their respective denominations, in the work of "church erection," is a valuable auxiliary to the cause of Home Missions. In consequence, however, of the monetary pressure, some congregations which had hoped to secure church edifices the present year, have been obliged to postpone the effort; and others which had begun to build were not able to finish. Twelve churches have been organized within the year, four have become independent, and two others, by uniting in the support of a minister, will be able to dispense with further aid. Many of the churches, too, notwithstanding the pecuniary embarrassments under which they have suffered, have largely increased their pledges for the support of the ministry; and in some instances, the shifts and bartering by which the missionary has contrived to gather his main subsistence from his people, have been highly creditable to the ingenuity and economy of both. But the chief feature of encouragement, presented in this review, is the religious aspect of the missionary field. Under the copious showers of grace that have fallen upon it, many a moral wilderness has been made to rejoice and blossom as the rose. At the close of the year, many revivals of remarkable power were still in progress, the full results of which are to be developed and recorded hereafter.

The progress of the State, in population, wealth, and all the elements of prosperity and importance, has few parallels in history. But, although this and kindred institutions have made large outlays for its religious culture—though not far from one hundred and seventy five churches have been planted there, within twenty years, through the agency of this Society alone; yet the present supply of religious teachers is lamentably inadequate to the demand. The Agent states that, in order to do all the work which can better be done now than at any future time, one hundred additional laborers would be requisite; and to meet the demands which are pressing, and provision for which should on no account be delayed, a reinforcement of fifteen or twenty must be furnished. He adds: "The development of the resources of the State, and the increase of its population, have doubtless been somewhat retarded by the monetary crisis. If all the lines of railroad, projected and commenced, had been constructed as rapidly as was anticipated, one year ago, we could have made no approach to an adequate supply of missionaries for the new communities they have and would have created. May it not be that among the purposes which the late commercial revulsion was designed to subserve, was the prevention of a too great disproportion between the material development and growth of these regions, and the agencies provided for their evangelization? Be this as it may, let it be remembered that the same cause which has temporarily retarded our growth, will, in the end, make it more rapid. The wave of immigration which has, for a brief season, been turned back, or staid, will soon roll in upon us again, and with accumulated force and volume. The unemployed mechanics and trades-men of the East, following the suggestions of their own prudence, and of wise counselors, will come by thousands and cover our rich prairies, and fill our rising villages with new and prosperous homes. Let them come; but let them not be doomed to live without the restraints, and die without the consolations and hopes of the Gospel of Christ."

MINNESOTA.

Rev. RICHARD HALL, Point Douglas, Agent.

Thirty three missionaries have been in the service of the Society in Minnesota since the last Report. This number exceeds that reported last year by nine. These laborers have statedly supplied thirty four churches, and nearly as many stations where churches have not yet been gathered. Three of them have confined their labors entirely to such stations. Eight new fields have been occupied since the year commenced, ten churches have been organized, and five houses of worship have been completed on missionary fields. The amount contributed to the funds of the Society from this region is $442.97.

In most of the fields, occupied by the missionaries, encouraging results of their labors have been reported. In the southern part of the Territory, the churches generally have been much strengthened, both pecuniarily and spiritually, by immigration; and some of them, by large accessions from the ranks of the enemy. At the close of the year, showers of grace were still descending on many fields, giving promise of abundant harvest. Most of the new settlements of this Territory have manifested a degree of interest and liberality, in procuring and sustaining the institutions of religion, which is unusual in such communities. Prompt and decided action has also been taken by them in favor of temperance and education—a fact which affords a happy augury for the future of this embryo State. The missionary churches, northward from the Falls of St. Anthony, have been retarded in their growth by a peculiar providential visitation. During the last two summers, a district, twenty miles in width, and extending northward on both sides of the Mississippi, more than one hundred miles, has been desolated by a plague of grasshoppers. Like the locusts of Egypt, "they did eat every herb of the land and all the fruit of the trees, and there remained not any green thing." These inflictions, falling upon infant settlements, exhausted and impoverished by an intervening winter of unparalleled severity, have proved a serious drawback to the prosperity of the missionary churches; and must somewhat protract the period of their dependence upon this So ciety. A return of this visitation is not anticipated, and our brethren on this remote frontier are looking confidently for better days.

The course of events in this Territory, since the missionary work was commenced in it, has been exceedingly fluctuating; and it has been difficult for the Committee to adapt their efforts to its varying circumstances and wants. Soon after the first laborers were sent thither, in 1849, the stream of emigration was suddenly diverted from its wonted channels, to the newly discovered gold fields of the Pacific coast; and for three or four years, the material development and religious culture of the Territory were greatly retarded. In 1854, this Society reported but eight missionaries on this field. Since that time its population has increased with great rapidity; and it has been the effort of the Committee to keep pace with the advancing tide of emigration. In the last three years, the number of missionaries has increased from ten to thirty three, and more than fifty churches have been planted, several of which have become valuable helpers of the Institution which gathered them, and are shedding forth a clear and steady light from the chief centers of influence where they stand.

But, within the last year, the prosperity of this Territory has experienced another check. "The summer of 1856," says the Agent, "brought a larger immigration than any preceding season. The following winter was one of unprecedented severity. Many of the settlers, arriving late, were unable to provide themselves with comfortable homes. The extraordinary depth of snow made it difficult to distribute over the Territory the abundant supplies of provisions stored within its borders. Suffering necessarily ensued. This was aggravated by an 'Indian panic,' occurring in mid winter. A backward spring held our waters ice-bound considerably later than usual, and thus occasioned great delay and expense to the advance-guard of emigrants who had reached the borders of the Territory before Lake Pepin opened her gates. Thus rebuffed, at the commencement of the season, and then held back before its close by premonitions of the commercial crash, the tide of emigration to Minnesota, in 1857, fell far below the height to which it rose in the preceding summer. Consequently both the multiplication of churches, and the disaster arising from inadequate supplies of ministers, were less than had been anticipated. Scores of new towns are at just that stage, in which the added immigration of an ordinary season will bring them into a state of ripeness for missionary occupancy. Ten additional laborers are greatly needed to occupy fields which have already received some degree of missionary culture." It is expected that a very large accession will be made, the present year, to the population of this new State; and it will be the effort of the Executive Committee to multiply the agencies for its evangelization, in a corresponding ratio.

KANSAS.

At the date of the last Report, only three missionaries were laboring in Kansas, under the auspices of this Society. Since that time the number has been increased to twelve. These laborers have been stationed at the most important centers of influence, and have entered upon their work with encouraging prospects. At three of the points, first occupied within the year, viz: Eureka, Quindaro, and Leavenworth, churches have already been formed, and, in several instances, the principal part of the missionary's support has been assumed at once by the people. At Quindaro, a commodious church edifice has been completed and dedicated; and several other missionary congregations are engaged in similar enterprises, which, however, have been much hindered by the extraordinary difficulties which every good work in Kansas has encountered. About twenty five congregations have been statedly supplied with the means of grace, and most of them have made decided progress in numbers, pecuniary strength, and all the elements of prosperity and influence. The contributions to the funds of the Society, from this field, have amounted to only $38.70.

In the former part of the year the missionaries were greatly burdened, and their work was much hindered, by the physical want and suffering which prevailed throughout the Territory. The political disturbances of the country, the rapacity of lawless men, and a protracted winter of terrible severity, reduced many of the people to the borders of starvation. On the field of one missionary—a German—these evils, aggravated by peculiar local circumstances, were followed by a malignant disease, which made fearful havoc among the German population. Such causes of suffering, and such hindrances to the missionary work, it is hoped will not long exist. When admitted to the sisterhood of sovereign States—clothed with the prerogative of self-government, and selfprotection—saved from the threatened blight of slavery—Kansas will set forth upon a career of material improvement, unparalleled in the history of our country; and will make large drafts upon the churches of the East for the supply of her spiritual wants.

Early in the year, Rev. S. Y. Lum, the first ministerial laborer sent to this Territory, was compelled by ill health to resign the pastoral charge of the Congregational Church at Lawrence; and under the direction of the Executive Committee, he has made several extensive tours of exploration, the results of which have been given to the public in the periodical of the Society. The information thus gathered has, also, been of essential service in distributing the missionary force since sent to that field.

In regard to its present wants, he says: "The whole northern portion of the Territory is entirely destitute. Much of it is well settled, and towns are springing up in every direction; but, with the exception of my brief tour there last summer, no one in connection with the American Home Missionary Society has yet visited that region. So, in the southeast, large tracts of land have been opened to settlers, and multitudes have crowded in. son county, (formerly the Shawnee Reserve,) lying on the Missouri border, is one of the most beautiful and fertile portions of Kansas; but though, in some parts, thickly inhabited, it is without a stated ministry. As the outlet of the whole southern part of the Territory, it is of immense importance. Of several other large districts similar statements might be made. The importance of bringing these rising communities, at an early day, under the influence of christian institutions, can not be over estimated. No one who has not had experience on the ground, can appreciate the strength of the current setting against truth and duty. Nothing but the presence of the man of God,—nothing but the force of truth as it flows from his lips and shines in his life, can oppose even a partial barrier to the impetuous tide that is bearing the great majority on to ruin. The work in which the American Home Missionary Society is engaged is, therefore, of the utmost importance. And it is full of promise. The missionary may not, in all cases, see the immediate fruit of his labor, in the ingathering of souls; but he breaks up the ground, throws up to the light and heat the tough roots of a rank vegetation; and ere long the golden harvest will wave its welcome to the sickle. God grant that many laborers may come speedily and sow, with the precious seed of the kingdom, this great garden of the West."

NEBRASKA.

No additional laborers have been sent to this field since the last Report. The two, then under commission, have been cheered in their work by the tokens of the Spirit's presence, and the churches to which they minister have been greatly revived and strengthened. At Omaha City, a commodious house of worship has been erected, which, before its completion, it was found necessary to enlarge. The missionaries have assisted in the organization of several churches, and have performed much valuable service in settlements adjacent to their own fields of labor. Two churches only have made contributions to the Society, during the year, amounting to $25.50.

The deep interest which has been felt throughout the country in regard to Kansas, and the question at issue there, has in some measure, diverted attention from Nebraska, and has increased the difficulty of providing adequately for its religious wants. During the past year it has received a large accession to its population, and many urgent requests have been made to supply the numerous settlements which have been formed, with the means of grace; but hitherto the Committee have not been able to respond to these appeals. The principal settlements are on or near the Missouri, Elkhorn and Platte rivers. Along the Missouri, from the southern boundary of the Territory to the mouth of the Running Water river, a distance of more than four hundred miles, (by the river,) villages are springing up with great rapidity, several of which are already important centers of influence, and should at once be supplied with gospel ordinances. Settlements already extend up the valley of the Elkhorn, a distance of about fifty miles from its junction with the Platte, and several of them are of sufficient importance to demand immediate attention. But no portion of the Territory is more attractive, or prospectively important than the valley of the Platte. It is the natural highway across the Territory from its Capital to the South Pass of the Rocky Mountains; and through it must lie one of the main thoroughfares of the nation from the Atlantic to the Pacific Coast. The line of settlement has already advanced up this valley, about one hundred and fifty miles, and will move forward rapidly during the present year. Only one minister, of the denominations sustaining this Society, is yet employed in this part of the Territory, and several others should be sent to his aid without delay.

The eastern portion of Nebraska presents strong attractions to the emigrant. It has a salubrious climate, a fertile soil, and easy communication by the Missouri river with the markets of the East. Soon four lines of railroad, aided by Congressional grants of land, will touch its eastern border, uniting it by iron links, with the Atlantic seaboard. Along these great thoroughfares the emigrant hosts, by tens of thousands a year, will rush to occupy the prairies of this magnificent domain, and carry forward the standard of our glorious institutions towards the setting sun. Let the Christians of the East see to it that these great lines of travel and traffic become, also, highways of holiness, and the vast regions to which they lead, the garden of the Lord.

CALIFORNIA.

The number of laborers sustained in this State during the year now under review, is ten—five less than during the year preceding. The amount contributed to the Society, by churches and individuals in the State, is $332, which exceeds, considerably, the amount contributed in any former year. Besides this, the church at Nevada, to which an appropriation of $600 was made in December last, having learned the pecuniary embarrassment of the Society, voluntarily assumed the whole amount, and, though engaged in rebuilding their house of worship, which had been burned, have resolved to relinquish further aid.

No Agent has been employed in this State since the resignation of the Rev. Mr. Hunt in the spring of 1857. The Committee, however, have availed themselves to some extent of the services of Rev. Isaac H. Brayton, of San Francisco, a former missionary of the Society, who has performed occasional tours for its benefit, exercised a general supervision of its interests, and, by his correspondence with the churches in the State, and with the Committee, has rendered valuable assistance in the prosecution of the mis-

No striking changes have occurred in the missionary churches of this State, since the last Report. Some of them have been weakened by the removal of members to other places, and one of them, the church at Downieville, has met with a serious disaster, in the destruction by fire of its beautiful house of worship, two days after its completion. Not at all disheartened by this sad reverse, the congregation immediately laid their plans for the erection of another sanctuary, and the work is rapidly advancing.

This church and several others have, during the year, enjoyed gracious refreshings from the presence of the Lord; and some of them have made considerable progress towards pecuniary independence. There has also been a decided improvement in public morals throughout the State. The Sabbath is better observed; gambling, drunkenness, and kindred vices, are slowly yielding to increased legal and moral restraints; and the necessity and worth of religious institutions are more generally recognized. Nevertheless, all evangelical enterprises, in this field, still encounter extraordinary obstacles, and their progress is slow. The elements which compose the population are exceedingly diverse—many of them exceedingly bad. A large portion of the inhabitants regard themselves as mere sojourners, and take but little interest in the planting of permanent institutions. And those who would gladly make a home in the State, have found it impossible to acquire a clear title to the lands they cultivate; and have had no legal protection against the depredations of marauders. All material interests are therefore liable to extreme fluctuations; and spiritual enterprises must share, to some extent, in these vicissitudes.

These facts, however, furnish no argument for relaxing the efforts of this Society in behalf of this State. The purpose of God, in peopling these shores with the Anglo-Saxon race, is sure of its accomplishment; and, though he tries the faith and courage of his servants, whom he has stationed in this field, yet the manifold tokens of his approbation in time past, is the pledge of his favor and of consequent success in time to come. Says Rev. Mr. Brayton: "Could we always present the work as a whole before you, and not, as we almost always must, in the fluctuations, and recessions, sometimes, and struggles always, of each individual church; could we show you the influence which the Church as a whole has had in recovering the State from a condition nearly of barbarism; could we even exhibit the power which we know is exerted by the churches and incipient institutions which have sprung up under the patronage of the American Home Missionary Society, I am sure that neither you nor the churches you represent, would regret that you considered this a part of your field, and that, because of peculiar obstacles and unusual expense, you did not leave it destitute of the saving power of religious institutions. I rejoice in all that others have done, but none the less do I magnify the work which, under Providence, this Society has been permitted to begin; for I by no means consider it complete, and I have no compunctions in asking large things still. In regard to thousands who dig gold in our mountains, not settled down where they can enjoy the privileges of a church, wholly 'self-supporting,' though they prize the Gospel, our brethren at the East have obligations concerning them. 'Yea, verily, their debtors they are.' They are denying themselves home, and almost every thing, to start rivulets of gold from the mountains, whose stream enriches the East. This is the result, whatever be the intention; and is it too much to ask that the East still aid in furnishing the Gospel to communities so situated that they can scarcely be expected wholly to support it themselves?"

OREGON.

Eight missionaries have labored in this Territory during the year, under commission from this Society, and the churches have paid into its Treasury $386.39.

Several of the churches have enjoyed seasons of special religious interest, and one of them, the church at Portland, having within two years more than doubled its membership, and removed a heavy burden of debt, has now assumed the entire support of its pastor. Other churches are steadily advancing in numbers and pecuniary strength; but this progress, owing to the peculiar circumstances of the country, must of necessity be slow. The Territory itself is not increasing rapidly in population. Most of the people are widely separated from each other. A large portion of them emigrated from other frontier regions, and are satisfied now, as they were then, to be without the restraints of the Gospel. Even the establishment of a system of popular free schools has been stoutly resisted, and those who are engaged in laying the foundations of social, educational, and religious institutions are exposed to much obloquy and opposition. Many exciting questions have also arisen, and fierce conflicts of opinion and interest have occurred, which have greatly increased the difficulties of the missionary work. During the past year, the whole Territory has been convulsed with the question, whether these distant shores shall be polluted and cursed with negro slavery; and though the right decision of this question has greatly cheered the hearts of the laborers in this field, the long and fierce agitation which it has occasioned, has greatly retarded their operations.

To rear the temple of the Lord amid such scenes, and with such materials, is a slow and arduous work. It is a work to which none but wise master-builders are adequate. It will not be accomplished by ignorant fanatical preachers, such as already superabound in that Territory. In the language of one of the missionaries: "If the people of Oregon are ever to support the Gospel among themselves, they must be trained to do it. If they are to have stable, intelligent churches, it must be through the labors of stable, intelligent ministers. If they are to enter upon the great work of evangelizing the world, and of sending abroad their sons and daughters as missionaries, they must be educated for this work. If our churches are ever to come up, even to the standard of your feeble and destitute churches at the East, in ideas of ministerial character and duty, in ideas of christian living, and in demand for instruction, it must be through the labors of just such men as labored in those and the parent churches."

To provide such laborers in adequate numbers, and sustain them, on these distant outposts, till the slowly maturing churches can furnish their support, will impose a heavy responsibility upon this Society. But the Committee have entered upon the work with a full view of its difficulties and expensiveness. The importance of the field, the spiritual necessities of its inhabitants, and the success which has crowned the efforts already made, amply warrant, as they believe, the outlay incurred; and they are encouraged to continue and extend their operations there, as fast and as far as the resources of the Society and the claims of other fields will allow.

CONCLUSION.

In closing this sketch of their labors for another year, the Committee would record their grateful acknowledgments to God for the many and varied tokens of his favor by which this period has been distinguished. It has been, in some respects, the most eventful year in the history of this Institution. When we separated at its last anniversary, its financial condition and prospects were as satisfactory as at any former period. Its Treasury contained a larger balance than at the commencement of any preceding year, with a single exception. Expressions of interest and confidence from its friends evinced an increasing appreciation of its plans and objects. Every thing betokened a year of more than ordinary pecuniary prosperity. But the religious aspects of the cause were of a less cheering character. The spirit of absorbing worldliness which pervaded the land, was no where more intense than on the fields which this Society was endeavoring to cultivate for Christ. They were, to a lamentable extent, fields of wild speculation and reckless adventure, where the god of this world seemed to have effectually blinded the minds of men to all those higher interests which it is the object of this Institution to promote. From all portions of the missionary field, and from hundreds of self-denying laborers, the lamentation was heard: "Who hath believed our report ?"

But suddenly a commercial paralysis seized upon the country, and the stroke fell heavily upon this, in common with all other Institutions of benevolence. Its revenue rapidly declined; the surplus at its disposal was quickly exhausted; and for a short period the demands of its missionaries could not be promptly met. At the same time, and from the same cause, the resources of the assisted congregations were greatly reduced; their engagements to those who ministered to them were not fulfilled; and in the depth of winter, these faithful servants of Christ saw their scanty means of livelihood, from both sources, apparently about to fail. But He whose are the silver and the gold, and who has sustained this cause in every former emergency, again appeared for its relief. In response to an appeal in behalf of the Society, in which the facts here referred to were embodied, its friends, as heretofore, promptly came to its help. The streams of their bounty soon increased to their usual volume; the exhausted Treasury was replenished; and the threatened disaster was averted. At the same time, also, the windows of heaven were opened, and on many a parched and barren waste God poured the great rain of his strength, transforming the wilderness into a fruitful field. Seldom has it been our privilege to record so large an ingathering of souls, in a single year, in connection with the operations of this Institution. And the harvest still continues. As we close this record, many a toilworn husbandman who had gone forth weeping, bearing precious seed, is coming again with rejoicing, bringing his sheaves with him. No former year, perhaps, in the history of this Society, has witnessed such vicissitudes in its affairs. No previous experience of its conductors has embraced such alternations of hope and fear, solicitude and joy. No preceding Report has recorded such signal and glorious attestations of God's favor towards this enterprise. No other anniversary has had such a claim to be observed and remembered as a jubilee of praise.

In the success with which God has crowned their endeavors hitherto, and in the altered aspects of the missionary field at the present time, the Committee find incentives to new diligence in the great work to which they have put their hands. Amid such multiplying illustrations of the divine favor, and of the necessity, efficiency, and self-propagating power of this enterprise, it would be ingratitude to God, and a base betrayal of the most momentous trust ever committed to human hands, if the work of evangelizing this land should not be prosecuted, henceforth, with redoubled zeal and on a more extended scale. Many thousands of christian hearts, whose prayers daily ascend in behalf of this cause, have, since the last gathering of the Society, received a fresh baptism of the Holy Many thousands more have, within the same period, enrolled their names with the sacramental host, and laid their first gifts upon God's altar. Millions of gold and silver, then held by the devotees of Mammon, are now consecrated to the cause of Christ and of human salvation. Shall not these replenished fountains, and these new tributaries, greatly augment the streams of beneficence that make glad the moral wildernesses of our land?

The work itself, also, rises before us in vaster proportions than ever before. Christian institutions have not kept pace with the march of emigration and the material development of the country. Hence each year has added to the extent of our religious destitutions, among the rising villages and infant cities of the Western interior, and on the ever advancing frontier. On some of these fields, where no religious culture has as yet been bestowed, showers of grace have recently descended, and they are white already to harvest. Multitudes of people who, hitherto, have been more than content to live without gospel ministrations, are now importunate for them. New responsibilities are thus devolved upon this Society, in regard to existing destitutions. And the events of the past few months have stimulated the action of causes which are every year widening the field, and enhancing the importance of this enterprise. Not only does the tide of emigration from the old world, and from the rugged hill-sides of the Atlantic States. continue to flow, in augmented volume, over the broad prairies of the West; but from the silent factories, workshops, warehouses, the overcrowded towns and cities of the East, tens of thousands are turning their eyes to this land of promise. Through every gateway, and along every thoroughfare to the distant interior flows the mighty and returnless tide; while for the crowds that are already seeking homes on the shores of the Pacific, no adequate means of transport are found. If these pilgrims are to have, in their voluntary exile, the same gospel privileges which they have enjoyed in their former homes; if their hearts are to be gladdened by the tones of the Sabbath bell and the preacher's voice; if the glorious structures they will rear are to be built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner stone; if a high christian civilization is to attend the march of Empire across the continent; nay, if this whole land is to be Immanuel's, -his chosen and chiefest instrument in ushering in that glorious day which seems already dawning upon our vision, then must the friends of this enterprise press forward in their work, -" AND SO MUCH THE MORE AS THEY SEE THE DAY APPROACHING."

RELATIONS OF AUXILIARIES, AGENCIES, &c.

State and other large Auxiliaries.

Most of the State Missionary Societies were in existence before the formation of the National Society, and some of them—as the Missionary Societies of Connecticut and Massachusetts—were among the earliest organized efforts in our country for sending the Gospel to the destitute. They have voluntarily connected themselves as Auxiliaries with the American Home Missionary Society, from a conviction that greater unity of plan and efficiency in action would thereby be promoted.

The terms by which such Auxiliaries—acting on the principles of the Parent Society, undertaking the supply of the destitute within their own bounds, and paying over their surplus funds to the Parent Institution—are connected with the Parent Society, are such as to secure the following objects, viz.:

First—The Auxiliary is not superseded or overshadowed by the National Institution, but, on the contrary, is invigorated and sustained by connection with it.

This is secured by the provision that the Auxiliary is the sole agency for this cause that operates on its field. It controls all appointments in the State to which it belongs. From it alone, so far as its means will allow, the feeble churches receive assistance. Thus a direct relation and strong attachment is cherished towards it, in the hearts of the ministers and churches.

Again—while the local operations of the Auxiliary are thus encouraged and sustained, its connection with the Parent Society is such as to awaken an interest in the destitute beyond its own limits, and afford facilities for reaching them. It is not only a Society for local purposes, but it is also a branch of the National Society, and, as such, has the control of all agencies for the collection of funds within its own field, and can direct the manner in which its surplus resources shall be expended beyond its own limits. Thus, the State and other large Auxiliaries are not merely organizations to help the Parent Society; they are integral parts of it, bound together in one whole by a common interest in and free access, through the Parent Society, to the great field to be occupied, and governed by the same general principles and rules in carrying on the work.

Agents and Agencies.

Besides preaching to the destitute and taking up contributions for Home Missions, the Agents of the American Home Missionary Society exercise a general superintendence of the operations of the Society within their respective fields. By correspondence and personal visitation they ascertain the wants of the destitute; assist them to obtain the preaching of the Gospel; and instruct and encourage them to develop their own means for its support. They receive applications for aid, and make such preliminary examination as may be necessary before submitting them for the action of the Executive Committee; and in other ways labor to insure a judicious and economical application of the Society's funds. At present the Society has in its employ no merely collecting Agents, nor any whose services are not required for other purposes in the regions where they labor. The Secretaries of several of the larger Auxiliaries are also the Agents for this cause in their respective bounds.

In certain districts, where the duties of an Agent are likely to be peculiarly responsible, there is associated with him a board of counselors selected from the region of his labors, called an Agency. These Boards of Agency differ from Auxiliary Societies, in that they have no independent existence, but are appointed by the Executive Committee from year to year, and are governed by rules which the Committee prescribe. Their office is to counsel and direct the Agent in carrying out the principles of the Society, and to give advice in relation to such local matters as may be submitted to them by the Executive Committee. The persons composing the Board of Agency, are selected for their intelligence and interest in this cause, and their influence in promoting it; and are so distributed over the field as to secure a personal acquaintance with its condition. The Agent of the Society is also the Secretary of the Agency with which he is associated.

These boards of counsel might not have been necessary, had the ecclesiastical bodies on the ground been able and disposed to pay sufficient attention to the missionary work, and to act as its directors in their respective bounds. But the ministers composing them are usually scattered over a wide extent of territory, and meet but seldom, and only at seasons when they are not much occupied with other business; and accordingly it has been necessary in some cases to organize agencies for this specific work. But in other cases, Synods, Presbyteries, and Associations have chosen to act as Auxiliaries to the Society, examining into the condition of the destitute within their bounds, and recommending the appropriate action for their relief. Ecclesiastical bodies thus related to the American Home Missionary Society, act through

Committees of Missions.

The American Home Missionary Society has ever regarded the ecclesiastical bodies as the appropriate judges of the standing of their own ministers, and of the wants of the churches in their connection. Accordingly, the commission issued to every missionary requires that his credentials be acceptable to the ministerial body of his denomination, within whose bounds he is appointed to And the various Presbyteries, Associations, &c., are invited to appoint each, a Committee of Missions from its own members, to receive application from its churches, and suggest to the Society the action proper in each case. Such a Committee constitutes the official source to which reference can be had for information and advice, in all matters pertaining to missions in the connection to which it belongs. This mode of cooperation has been preferred by numerous ecclesiastical bodies, from the first formation of the Society. It guaranties to the churches of each denomination represented in the Society, that their respective claims shall be fairly considered, with all the advantage of having the indorsement of the body to which they belong. The advice of such a Committee, acting in the name and by the direction of the ecclesiastical body to which they belong, is regarded as the highest authority in matters pertaining to the standing of ministers and churches in their connection, and has the same influence with the Society, as that of the Board of Agency appointed by itself.

There is one limitation to this influence, however, which ought to be stated. Should any ecclesiastical body so far swerve from the principles of truth and gospel order, as not to retain the fellowship and confidence of the great body of the Presbyterian and Congregational churches in our land, that fact would cause its recommendations not to be respected, as a basis of action, by the Executive Committee.

As cases may occur in which the feeble churches may not be aware of the existence of any Board of Agency, or Committee of Missions, through whom to apply for aid, a general provision is made, that applications may be vouched by any two ministers of known and approved standing, who can certify to the facts of the case. If the information thus given is not sufficient, other facts are sought by the Executive Committee, with as little delay as practicable, from the most authentic sources from which they can be obtained.

Such, briefly, are the relations of the American Home Missionary Society to the various organs, through which the community seeks to act out its missionary feeling. It will be seen that this plan secures the united action, in the missionary work, of those whose views of doctrine and church order admit of coöperation, and whose interests in the great field are essentially the same. This combination insures a homogeneous policy as to the manner and amount of appropriations, and the qualifications of missionaries; it has discourgaged sectional feelings, and diffused throughout each part an interest in all the rest; and thus has formed ties between the West and East, along which has passed from the latter to the former a silent and invisible current of moral influences more valuable, if possible, than all pecuniary grants. At the same time the connection of the Parent Society with the various associations that act with it, is such as to secure to them entire freedom in the missionary work, in their respective spheres, and an influence beyond them, in cultivating the waste places of our common country.

Applications for Aid.

Feeble congregations, applying for aid in supporting the Gospel, are requested to embody in their application the following particulars, viz.:

The name of the church or congregation; the number of communicants, and the average number of attendants on public worship; the denomination and size of congregations immediately contiguous, with the distance to their places of worship; the total amount of salary which the applicants propose to make up, the portion of that salary which they pledge for the given time, and the arrangements that are made for securing it; whether aid is expected from any other source; and the least amount that will suffice from this Society; whether the minister for whom a commission is desired, is the pastor of the church, or if not, whether any arrangements are made or contemplated in the course of the year, with reference to his installment. These statements should be signed by the trustees and elders or deacons, or by a committee of the congregation, and confirmed by the certificates of two or more clergymen, acquainted with the facts. Also,

The name and post-office address of the minister whose services they desire to secure; whether he is a resident of the place in which he preaches, and is engaged in any other calling than that of the ministry; his credentials; and the certificate of two or more ministers of known standing, as to his general character for piety, zeal, and acceptableness, as a minister of the Gospel.

Where the ecclesiastical body with which a church is connected has a "Committee of Missions" to act in their behalf, this Committee are the proper persons to certify the statements of the church, the standing of the minister, and his prospects of usefulness in the place where his services are desired; and the application should be sent to them for their indorsement and recommendation.

Applications, after being properly indersed and recommended, should be addressed to the care of the Agent (or Secretary of the Agency or Auxiliary) for the region where the applicants reside.

As a general rule, the appropriations of the American Home Missionary Society are for twelve months from the date of the application; at the end of which, if further aid be needed, a new application must be made, containing all the particulars above stated, and indorsed and recommended in like manner. And each congregation applying for renewed aid, should furnish, in addition to other testimonials, the certificate of the missionary, that they have fulfilled their previous pledges for his support.

The address of the Society's Agents and the Secretaries of its Auxiliaries will be found on the cover of its Reports and of the Home Missionary. Where no such medium of communication with the Society exists, applications may be sent directly to the Society's office in New York.

ADDRESSES

Address of Rev. William S. Leavitt, of Hudson, N. Y.,

ON MOVING THE FOLLOWING RESOLUTION:

RESOLVED: That we cherish the work of Home Missions as one of the great constant forces, by which is to be formed in this land a Christian nation, not in name, but in fact.

It seems to me, sir, a matter of rejoicing that we can not become a Christian nation in name, till we are so in fact. For it is evident that we never can take this position by act of Congress declaring, or by a constitutional provision recognizing Christianity as the established religion of the country. It is sometimes spoken of with regret, that our constitutions are silent upon this matter, and do not commit us to Christianity, or hinder us from adopting any system of religion we please. And sometimes it is charged upon us by way of reproach, that we are a godless people, that we have no national law and no national religion, because we do not recognize or profess Christianity by our forms of law. We are not made Christians as the people of European counties are, by legal enactments. Our public officers take upon them no obligation to maintain the christian religion. And there is nothing in the Constitution to prevent us from electing a Mohammedan to the Presidential chair; and there is nothing to prevent him from declaring in his inaugural, that the great principles of religion which Mohammed taught shall be the guides and counselors of his life, and taking his oath of office on the Koran.

Now, sir, I do not think this is a just cause of reproach to us. I do not even think it is to be regretted. It may be well for us, that we can not manifest any more Christianity than we really have. There is no proof in the experience of other nations, that Christianity has gained any credit by the indorsements of kings; or that acts of parliaments which established it have increased at all its living force. There is not a little truth in the words of Macaulay: "The whole history of the christian religion shows that she is in far greater danger of being corrupted by the alliance of power, than of being crushed by its opposition. Those who thrust temporal sovereignty upon her, treat her as their prototypes treated her Author. They bow the knee, and spit upon her; they cry, hail! and smite her on the cheek; they put a scepter into her hands, but it is a fragile reed; they crown her, but it is with thorns; they cover with purple the wounds which their own hands have inflicted upon her, and inscribe magnificent titles over the cross on which they have fixed her to perish in ignominy and real real."

We may even find a comfort in the thought that the absence of any national profession of christian faith has spared us in the past, and may save us in the future, from some painful hypocrisies. There are some things which, if they must be done, we prefer to have accomplished by men who do not bear the name of Christ. We have far less disgust for Pontius Pilate than for Judas. There are some transactions which we do not wish to have covered with a christian profession. We do not want to see a cross on the flag of a slave-ship. We do not want to see a spire in the place where its cargo is landed and sold.

If then, we can not, as a nation, come into the church on a profession of our faith, plainly there is but one course left to us, and that a far better one. We can become a christian people, known, acknowledged, proved to be such, only by causing the principles of Christianity to pervade all the departments of our national life. No legislative enactments could accomplish this. If Congress today should unanimously resolve that we are a Christian people, that would not make us better or more Christlike to-morrow; nor under present circumstances, would it confer upon the Gospel any additional honor. There would be absolutely nothing gained by putting on the form of godliness while the power of it was not There is a vision of some pilgrims in the nineteenth century, who found many things changed since Bunyan wrote his guide-book of the path. Among others, after ascending the Hill Difficulty, they came to a magnificent edifice where they supposed the House Beautiful to be. The lions were missing; but in their place, and to assure pilgrims of the identity of the house, a sign had been put up, inscribed in large letters, "The House Beautiful for the entertainment of pilgrims." The porter had the name, "Watchful," written on his forehead; and that there might be no mistake, the ladies of the house-Piety, Prudence, Charity—had each her name in her forehead, in capital letters. The wonder why it was necessary for the House Beautiful to have a sign, or for Piety, Prudence, and Charity to wear labels, soon ripened into the conviction that this was one of the traps for pilgrims in the nineteenth century, when the sign was made a substitute for the thing signified, and the name and profession of religion for the fact.

And so, sir, we can not make ourselves a christian nation by putting up a sign, or by putting on a label. What we need is, christian principle ruling in all the forms and activities of our life, Christ acknowledged as the Lord of all, the deep, practical conviction that all things belong to Christ, and that we in all our times and in all our deeds belong to him. There is a great work implied in this, a work which is far from being finished yet; and we should not rest or be satisfied with a state of things that comes short of this. We have been rejoicing, of late, that in all our cities and villages prayer meetings have been maintained, in the very centers of business, and in the most crowded thorough-fares of commercial activity. We have been glad that thanksgiving and the voice of melody were so intermingled with the eager voices of traffic. But we want Christianity to come yet closer to our business life, and to be mingled with it still more intimately than this. And we can not forget that there are lands and cities where the whole population stops its toil, and hastens to bend in idolatrous worship before the consecrated bread, as often as it is borne along the streets; and that there are other lands where, as the call to prayers is heard from the minarets at noonday, the merchant arrests his unfinished bargain, the porter lays his burden down, and all, whatever their employment, turn from it instantly to pray. Nor can we forget that both Christian and Moslem rush back, with hearts unpurified from the lust of gain, with evil purposes unsubdued and unrepented of, to complete the fraud, the overreaching, the knavery, which were suspended, but not cast out by the prayer. We want something more than this to make us a christian nation in fact. We want, not only prayer amid the places of business, but christian principle in the business itself. And when the business of this land, in city, and town, and village, shall be conducted according to the laws of Christ, controlled and regulated by a christian spirit, then, sir, we shall need no proclamation to tell the world that we are a christian people.

We have rejoiced, that in our seats of government and legislation, prayer meetings have been established. But that is not enough. We want a still more vital force of Christianity to enter those very seenes from which so many have been anxious to shut religion entirely out; we want a force that shall arouse the conscience and purify the heart of the men, on whom are resting the responsibilities of law-making and law-enforcing power, and make them fear God and serve God in their public, and official, and political deeds—a force that shall banish forever those hideous forms of corruption, which have so long defiled our political life and destroyed the faith of many in free institutions, a force which shall make our public men really believe that, whoever may be chosen to office by the people of this land, Jesus Christ is the King of it; that the principles of Christ are the only foundation of true statesmanship and public welfare; and that all who hold office hold it under him, and must give to him their account. We shall become a christian nation, not by act of Congress, but in our acts of Congress when this is done. We have lately welcomed the coming in of religion as a topic of conversation into all social circles with unwonted freedom. We have rejoiced that the neryous hesitation and dread, which so often attended the subject of personal religion, seem to have disappeared; and that all classes have been more than usually free to utter their honest thoughts upon the highest of all themes. We have hailed it as a sign of progress, and as a pledge of still greater improvement yet to come. But that is not enough. We want the ethics of Christ to become the law of society, binding all its castes and classes together in that brotherhood of which Jesus spoke and for which he prayed, purifying it of those low and evil principles, over whose prevalence we have mourned so long, superseding the complaints and the work of infidel socialists, by giving experimental proof that Christianity is the best and truest socialism, and that only by the laws and in the spirit of Christ, can society attain a healthy and harmonious organic life. And it must be something more than talk, than free conversation on religious topics, that will bring us to this state and make us a christian people in our social life.

We want Christianity to pervade and fill the nation with a regenerated life. whose outflowings shall be spontaneous, which shall not only profess but prove its presence every where. We need this, to accomplish among the nations the work which we have believed God gave our fathers to do, and which from them has come down, a heritage of labor and influence, to us. For we have believed, that, in a peculiar sense, this nation was to be the light of the world, a missionary people—that there were elements of character which gave us peculiar advantages, and therefore also responsibilities for this work. And if we have been losing this faith, of late, because of any spots of corruption that seemed to be spreading through our christian character, still we have not been willing to give it up. But if we ever do this work, it must be with far more of energy and heart than we have yet shown. We want Christianity to be so intermingled with our life that, in our missionary operations, we shall not merely gather up. with great toil and difficulty, a little of our Christianity and send it abroad to convert the world-met and counteracted as it is, by other and evil influences. going out from us in a full tide, and by rumors which can not be hushed, of strange and horrible inconsistencies at home-but so that the very life of the nation shall be missionary in its spirit and workings, its christian character manifesting itself so freely, that every point of contact with other nations shall reveal it. And as the restless enterprise and the growing commerce of our people are constantly multiplying these points of contact, until soon there shall not be a tribe on earth which has not formed its idea of us from what it has seen, so we want that our missionary power—the acting out of a consistent and all-pervading home christian life-shall be always increasing, until our distinctively foreign missionary efforts shall be but one item in the whole work, but one ray in the broad beam of christian light that goes out from this land, to pierce, at ten thousand points, the darkness of the world.

This is what we want; a nation thus moulded and inspired by the Gospel of Christ. For this we labor. And the religious awakening now present among us, so far as it means what is of real worth, means progress in this direction. Here should be its fruits. Here, certainly, is its test.

Now, sir, it is plain, that a nation thus christianized throughout, so as to need no profession of its faith—the fact speaking for itself—must be the result of constant forces. It can not be accomplished in a day. It can not be the fruit of any intermitted or spasmodic efforts. From its very nature, it must come by a process of growth. It is true we are told in Scripture that, under some conditions, a nation shall be born in a day. But whatever this may mean, there is no promise that such a nation shall reach its christian manhood in a day. That principle of leaven which Christ announced as the fundamental law of his kingdom, is the only one on which we can rest our faith and hope. There is no promise that the forces of christian truth, and the grace of God acting with them, and without which they are powerless, there is no promise that they shall work, except as they have done from the beginning—the mustard seed slowly but always growing up into a tree—the leaven spreading itself through the mass, by a law that admits of no interruption till the whole is leavened, and the real progress that is accomplished, one that can not be seen or measured by spaces so brief as days or months.

It is here then, sir, we see the value of the Home Missionary work, and especially that method of it which has been from the beginning the ideal of this Society—the object being not to carry on an itinerant or an occasional work, but to establish a constant force; the incorporating of christian institutions and teachings into the life of all our growing communities. This, above all things, is what the nation needs-a permanent influence of truth in every place, the laws and teaching of Christ applied to all the departments of human activity, and to all the varying scenes of human life, the truth not uttered merely once or twice by a stranger's voice, and then left to bear what fruit it may, but dwelling there as a leaven, making the home and social life, pure, holy, orderly, cultivating the human sympathies and training them into a christian brotherhood, planting the seeds of righteousness in the individual soul, and watching through all the summers and winters of their growth, and so making every place where this Home Missionary work is done a living portion of the nation's christian life. It is this constant force—the permanent existence of christian ordinances—the regular proclamation of christian truth, carried on through encouragement and discouragement, through success and seeming failure, never wearied—a true vital force, that sustains many and varied forms of activity but never ceases to work -training the population from their childhood, to hear with reverence the word of God, and to watch its bearings upon the duties and scenes of life-it is this alone, which must form in this land a christian nation, not in name, but in fact.

And, sir, there is a comfort in the thought, that the power of this work is not to be measured by any sudden results, or by any momentary appearances of success. These do not begin to show us all it has done. It is the nature of a constant force, not to manifest all its fruits at once. We must measure the work as we do the growth of a tree—comparing the present with the past, and taking for the comparison intervals of time long enough to reveal the slow but certain operations of a vital force. Our encouragement is not a matter of sight but of faith. We who cherish and contribute to the work, they who direct its details, and they carry it on, amid obstacles, and weariness, and privations, whose recital often saddens our hearts—all persevere in it, not mainly because we can see its precious fruits in the very process of ripening, but because we have a faith in the purposes of God, in the tendency of his truth, in the testimony of the past, in his promises of the future.

Let us work on, sir, till our work is done—till in every town and village of our growing country, Christianity has become a permanent, self-sustaining, living fact, and the fruits of it shall appear in the reality of a christian people, transformed and purified through all its being by the spirit of Christ.

And when we look at this result for which we labor—when we think of the glory that shall fill this land and radiate from it, when a christian nation in truth is dwelling here, how trifling seem all our sectarian differences, how frivolous our efforts for mere denominational increase, and how all our questions of church government and ecclesiastical forms sink into nothingness, before that far greater question which God is calling this Society and every one of us to answer, Shall this be a christian nation? What is your church government or mine to this grand reality?

May no denominational jealousies hinder the work. May no agitation of that question, apostolic in history but not in spirit, "Which shall be the greatest?" distract the counsels of this Society, or waste the resources of its beneficent toil. May that new sentiment of christian union which has been among the chiefest facts in the late awakening, prove itself a real growth of that love of Christ's disciples one to another, by which all men shall know that they are his.

Address of Rev. Samuel T. Seelye, of Albany, N. Y.,

ON MOVING THE FOLLOWING RESOLUTION:

RESOLVED, That while we may properly appeal to philanthropy and patriotism in behalf of Home Missions, we must rely chiefly upon christian principle.

The philanthropist can not consistently refuse to sustain the institutions of the Gospel. For it is to their influence that we are indebted for our choicest temporal blessings. There is nothing like Christianity to check crime, to drive away wretchedness, to make each home a paradise, and to fill every heart with gladness. Mere philanthropy only alleviates—Christianity cures.

The patriot may also be expected to extend the influence of the Gospel. For it is the author and the preserver of all that is valuable in the State. It alone teaches the rights both of the sovereign and the subject, and shows that these are never in conflict. Nowhere save under its influence, is the government clothed with authority and honor, while at the same time the interests of the governed are carefully maintained. The right of kings to rule, and the right of the few to trample upon the many, are all the rights which false religion or mere civilization have ever guaranteed. The idea that every man has an inalienable right to liberty as a citizen of the State, has never been conceived except as Christianity has taught it. The tendency always has been and always will be to build up one system of oppression after another, save where the Bible teaches the glorious truth, that man, in whatever clime he dwells, has a Godgiven right to be free. A free constitution without the sanctions of the Bible, can become only an instrument in the hands of tyrants.

For these reasons, we may properly appeal to the philanthropist and the patriot to aid us in bringing the whole land under the power of the Gospel. But we can not rely upon them, either solely or chiefly, to carry forward this work. They have not chosen it as their work, they feel no responsibility for its accomplishment, and, more than all, they have no sympathy with its great object. They value the Gospel for the blessings which it confers in the present life. They prize it for the industry and thrift which it fosters, and for the love of liberty which it enkindles. With those eternal realities which it reveals, and with those hopes of eternal glory which it awakens, they have no concern. Yet who supposes that the Gospel could be kept alive, merely for the sake of its incidental blessings, however precious they may be? What missionary would undertake to proclaim its truths either in our western wilds or in heathen lands, simply because they tended to quicken the progress of civilization and to give justice, and therefore stability to the government? Who, indeed, does not see, that the power of the Gospel to dispense these temporal blessings, is derived from its power to provide for the eternal interests of the soul? The Gospel can never become the mere coadjutor of philanthropy and patriotism. It must be sustained for the sake of its great fundamental truth, or it will not be sustained

Upon what, then, must we chiefly rely to carry forward the work in which we are engaged? The ordinary motives which urge men to effort are rendered powerless by the vastness of the work. It is our aim to secure the preaching of the Gospel throughout the land, wherever it will be received. We are to see, that these sanctuaries where our fathers worshiped are not left desolate—that the sacred truths which taught them the way to heaven are still proclaimed in the same temples of God. We are also to see, that, as the members of these flocks become scattered, they shall still be followed by the shepherd and kept together in the fold. It is our work to send faithful men of God who will preach the whole Gospel, wherever throughout the land a congregation can be gathered to listen to the truth. Yet although this is a mightier task than any of which the philanthropist and the patriot ever conceived, we may, without fear of disappointment, appeal to christian principle to carry it on. If we choose to rely upon it alone, we shall not fail. While without it, success is impossible, with it, success is sure. Our success also would be purchased without the loss of a single blessing. For christian principle goes far beyond philanthropy and patriotism in their own spheres. It embraces the world with love, and stands up for the right to the last, with no thought of submission or compromise. It removes every form of suffering. It stops the cry of want, and goes with the swiftness and the tenderness of fraternal love to each sorrowing one. Philanthropy, moreover, may grow weary and patriotism be exhausted, but christian principle can not be overtasked. The philanthropist also may fail of his object, and the patriot may see every hope wrecked and die in despair. But the Christian is never vanquished—he is always a conqueror. If he falls at his post, it is with the victor's crown in his grasp and with the prayer on his lips which he knows will be answered. Thy kingdom come, thy will be done in earth as it is in heaven.

There are however two sufficient reasons for relying upon christian principle to carry forward this Home Missionary work.

First: Because it gives the only foundation for any successful effort to bless the race. It is possible that one of a company of condemned criminals may feel the deepest sympathy for his companions. In pitying their sad fate he may sometimes forget that he is himself to suffer the same doom. Yet with his hands manacled like theirs, and watched with the same vigilance by the officers of the law, what can he do to aid them? In order to move the government to pardon, or incite the citizens to a rescue, he must stand out from that company of convicts. To make an effort there can only add to their punishment.

Suppose that by some great calamity a hundred men were cast into the sea without a single spar or plank to cling to. Suppose that two or three of this number, moved by sympathy, should try to save the others, what would be the result? Every effort could only hasten the inevitable death. But suppose that one man of that company is able to gain some rock and stand upon it, from which, by reaching out the hand, he can lay hold of those drowning men-then he can save them all. So it is with every effort which is designed to bless the race. It is not enough that it be prompted by the purest sympathy. To be successful, it must rest upon a true and firm foundation. Without this, it is as useless as a lever without a fulcrum. Where then shall we find this foundation for effort which is essential to success? Christian principle alone affords it. It places its possessor upon the rock from which he can stretch out his hand to rescue the perishing. For christian principle may be defined to be, standing upon the Rock Christ Jesus. He who stands there feels that he is safe himself and that none are imperiled by his efforts. How firm a foundation for successful effort is thus afforded to the Christian! It inspires him with hope in every struggle—it gives him faith in every prayer—it enables him to feel that the service of a life-time is easy and the burden of saving the world is light. In this point of view it is not strange that Jesus Christ gave to his disciples that great commission, "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature;" for standing upon such a foundation they are competent to the mighty task. It is safe therefore to rely upon such men to bring the land under the influence of the Gospel.

Again, another reason for relying upon christian principle to carry forward the work of Home Missions is, that it appreciates the Gospel. A single illustration will show the importance of this truth. A few years ago, in a violent storm, a ship was driven upon the bar on the south shore of Long Island. The waves swept over the deck, and the crew clung for safety to the rigging. Upon the shore, a company of men were gathered who stood motionless by the lifeboat which they had dragged to the beach. They were appalled by the danger, and felt that it would be certain death to venture out upon such a sea. Suddenly, a man who had once been a sailor rushed down to the beach, took his denly, a man who had once been a salor rushed down to the beach, took his place by the boat, and shouted, "Come men, lend a hand—I've been there myself!" That appeal was enough. The life-boat shot forth among the foaming breakers on its merciful, though perilous mission, and the crew were saved. That sailor had experienced a similar peril—he had felt the joy of rescue, and was ready to hazard his life to carry the same boon to those shipwrecked men. So the Christian, because of his experimental appreciation of the worth of the Gospel, labors successfully to extend its blessings when other men would yield to despair. He has seen, flaming up before him, the wrath of an offended God: and he has felt the embrace of a loving Father as he forgave and welcomed the returning prodigal. He was once in the horrible pit and the miry clay, and now his feet are planted upon the rock. His soul was once famishing and faint, and now he feels that he shall hunger no more—he shall thirst no more. Once he was without hope and without God in the world, and now he rejoices in the anticipation of eternal glory, and is able to look up to God and say, Abba, Father! Can such an one grow weary, or be disheartened, or shrink from danger in striving to extend the influence of the Gospel? Never! He who thus appreciates the worth of the Gospel, will not fail to proclaim its glad news of salvation. Knowing the terror of the Lord, he will not cease to persuade men. Constrained to effort by the love of Christ, he will go on in his divinely-appointed work so long as that love glows in his heart. And can that love ever be extinguished? "Who shall separate us from the love of Christ? I am persuaded that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord."

It is safe, then, to trust the cause of Home Missions, with all its amazing interests, to christian principle. We need not make a single appeal in its behalf to selfish interest. Christian men, with united heart and united effort, animating each other's zeal, and strengthening each other's faith, will carry it on. What though long centuries may pass before this work shall be accomplished? It is enough to know that it shall be done. The workman who is to-day laying the foundation of some vast structure which shall require the time, and wealth, and toil of generations to finish, goes as cheerfully to his task as though he could hope to see the cap-stone rising to its place. For he has before him the plan of the architect, and he knows that every stone which he lays down deep in the earth helps to realize that plan. So the Christian can now labor as cheerfully and with faith as strong, to fill the land with the power of the Gospel, as though he could see the dawn of the millennial morning lighting up the East. For he has before him God's plan, and he sees as he looks upon it the glorious result which his toil is helping to attain. He sees that this is to be Immanuel's land-a mountain of holiness, and a habitation of rightcousness; and he knows that each passing year, with its burden of fervent prayer and self-denying effort,

DECEASE OF HENRY DWIGHT, ESQ.,

PRESIDENT OF THE AMERICAN HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

This eminent servant of Christ, after a protracted illness, borne with the meekness, the submission, and the full faith in the power of Jesus and the resurrection, which formed so striking a feature of his character, departed this life, on Sabbath morning, September 6th, 1857, at the age of 74.

Mr. Dwight was born in Springfield, Massachusetts, and graduated at Yale College in 1801. In 1813, he entered the ministry and became the pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Utica. The duties of this office he performed with great ability and acceptance, and large accessions were made to the church under his faithful ministrations. But the loss of his voice compelled him, in 1817, to relinquish the profession of his choice and engage in secular pursuits.

He soon after removed to Geneva, where he continued to reside till his decease, and where his domestic and social virtues will long be had in most affectionate remembrance. In his extensive business transactions, his perspicacity, his sound judgment, his sense of justice, and his unbending purpose to do that which was right, commanded for him the highest confidence and respect. In his connection with the church, as an Elder, a Bible class and Sabbath school teacher, a comforter of the afflicted, a guide to the inquiring, a counselor of the young, a helper of the poor, and a friend to all, he honored the religion of his Divine Master. In the great enterprises for the dissemination of religious truth, the establishment of christian institutions and the conversion of the world, which distinguish the age in which he has lived, he took the deepest interest, and contributed largely of his wisdom, his personal influence, and his pecuniary bounty for their advancement.

Previous to the organization of the American Home Missionary Society, he had a leading agency in the formation and management of a Demestic Missionary Society in his immediate vicinity, which gave encouragement and strength to many of the feeble churches. The idea of a National Institution on substantially the same basis, gladdened his heart; and by his intelligence, his sagacity, his experience, and his faith in the promises of God, he rendered important service in developing it, and commending it to the christian community, and in founding the American Home Missionary Society. Of this Society he was constituted a Director, at its organization; and in 1837, was elected its President. For twenty seven years, he also performed the duties of Chairman of the Agency of the Society at Geneva. He had a high appreciation of the nature and importance of the Home Missionary work, was most familiar with its principles and policy, and watched over its progress with unceasing interest. His wise and kind suggestions contributed to the success of its administration; his noble example stimulated others to lend to it a helping hand; and his remembrance of it at the throne of grace, we believe, brought down upon it the richest bless-

He has ceased from his labors, but his works do follow him. His generous contributions, through so long a period, for the advancement of a cause he so much loved, we can not doubt he now finds to be treasure laid up in heaven, and the instrumentalities he has set in motion for the redemption of men, we may hope, will not cease till our whole land shall become Immanuel's, and the earth be filled with the knowledge of God. His record is on high; and his memory will be precious to the wise and the good in the large circle in which he was known; especially will it be embalmed in the best affections of the members of the Institution, over which, with so much propriety and dignity, he so long presided.

In reference to the decease of Mr. Dwight, the Executive Committee of the American Home Missionary Society, at their meeting, September 28th, adopted the following minute:

WHEREAS it has pleased Almighty God to remove, by death, HENRY DWIGHT, Esq., one of the founders of this Society, one of its most valuable counselors and most liberal benefactors, and, for twenty years, its honored President;

Resolved, That we recognize, in this dispensation, so afflictive to the Church of God and to all christian and philanthropic enterprises, a peculiarly severe bereavement to this Institution—the loss of one of its earliest, most constant, and distinguished patrons and friends; and that we desire to record our deep sense of his eminent ability and his exalted worth—his broad and comprehensive views of the divine government and of human responsibility, the simplicity of his christian character, the strength of his faith, his stern regard for principle and duty, his inflexible integrity, his large-hearted benevolence, his careful observance of all the proprieties and courtesies of life, his entire devotedness to the will of God, and his meetness, when the summons came, for the joy of his Lord.

Resolved, That we sympathize deeply with the bereaved widow and children in their affliction, while we unite with them in thanksgiving to God that a life of so much moral beauty and christian excellence—an example of so much that is lovely and of good report, in the most endeared relations and the most important trusts, has been continued so long, and closed with such tokens of the divine approbation and such assurances of a blessed immortality.

Resolved, That a copy of this minute be presented to the family of the deceased, and published in the periodical of the Society.

We append the following from a notice of the character of Mr. Dwight, in the New York Evangelist:

"His christian munificence toward nearly every religious and benevolent society was remarkable, while the liberal hand with which he has ever relieved private suffering, although conjectured, may never be known. His kind heart never allowed a deserving applicant to go away unrelieved. His christian affection toward the indigent follower of Christ, was as warm as it was for him who was 'clothed in purple and fine linen.'

"Mr. Dwight, although in feeble health for many years, was an active, earnest, consistent, unwavering Christian. Even formerly when engaged in extensive and engrossing secular business, he never allowed the most unimportant religious duty to pass neglected. He was a Sabbath school teacher, and instructed a Bible class. The weekly lectures and prayer meetings in Geneva, even to his last illness, were seldom overlooked or forgotten by him. On many a dark, stormy night, might this devoted follower of Christ, be seen with his lantern, groping his way to the regular evening meetings. When younger men were absent, he would be found in his seat; if the brethren needed words of encouragement or exhortation, he was ever ready for christian duty and personal effort.

"Mr. Dwight was remarkable for his christian hospitality. His delightful home was seldom without its guests, and they were entertained with that courtly cordiality and warmth of heart which endeared him and his estimable lady to a wide circle of christian friends. In his former extensive banking operations, which once not merely embraced the whole of Western New York, but extended to Michigan and Ohio—where himself and his three brothers were proprietors of banking institutions—the breath of calumny never was uttered against their integrity or the christian equity of their financial operations. Uprightness of purpose and a conscientious discharge of every trust, characterized Mr. Dwight's business life, as child-like faith, humility, and gentleness marked his symmetrical and beautiful christian character.

"It may be proper here to remark, that his retirement from the ministry was not a voluntary act. After nearly four years of eminent usefulness in the pulpit at Utica, his voice failed him, and he reluctantly engaged in secular pursuits. Yet he never omitted his theological studies, or the practical duties of a pastor. Mr. Dwight's business was guided by christian principles, and the various officers educated in his banking institutions in Geneva and the West, have left their impress upon these communities. Even to this day, his example and precepts are exerting the happiest influence in Geneva and the Western country.

cepts are exerting the happiest influence in Geneva and the Western country.

"Three children, two sons and a daughter, survive the deceased parent. While they have sorrow of heart that so beloved a father has been removed, they rejoice that he was permitted to see so many years of usefulness, and that he has left such evidences of abiding faith in Christ, and deep, child-like piety. A long life of honorable usefulness was graciously continued to him. He was only called home by his Heavenly Father when his strength was impaired and his eye dim, and he was fully ripened for the harvest."

It may be proper to add, especially as incorrect statements have appeared in some of the public prints, respecting the bequests of Mr. Dwight, that after making such provision for his wife, and leaving such portions to his children and other relatives as he deemed suitable, he devoted the remainder of his property to benevolent purposes, giving thirty per cent of it to the American Home Missionary Society; fifteen per cent to each of four other National Institutions—the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, the American Bible Society, the American Tract Society, and the American Sunday School Union; and the remaining ten per cent to the promotion of several other charitable objects. The whole to be paid in ten annual installments; and the provision for the widow, at her decease, to be distributed in the same proportion to the institutions and objects previously named.

Intimate Relations of the East and West.

I preached most of the time in a log cabin. I found it truly a Bethel. Sinners were weeping, and backsliders resolving to return. Oh! it is blessed to preach to those who are hungering and thirsting for the bread and water of life. Some listened eagerly who had scarcely entered a church since they left the East. One man who, I have learned recently, belonged to a church at he East formerly, but was ashamed to have it known, has returned to his Father's house. Another, from New England, is now interested, and I have some reason to think, has passed from death unto life. I have often felt, that our brethren in the East do not feel sufficiently the close and intimate connection between themselves and us. Here we meet with their sons and daughters. Some of them are impenitent, or perhaps hardened. They have, here in their prairie-home, time to reflect. The temptations to pleasure and amusement, that so often dissipated or prevented scrious thoughts in the East, are here comparatively small. In our last meeting, a son of a Congregational minister was present, and signified his desire to become a follower of Jesus. Providence had guided him, as if by a pillar of fire or cloud, to this place, just at this time, in search of a home for himself and widowed mother. May he find, first, his father's religion.

Infidel Emigrants from the East.

The East does not send us so many zealous, active Christians as I had hoped for; and I have been surprised to see how large a proportion of the immigrants from the Eastern States regard the christian religion either with feelings of indifference or of hostility. In many cases, doubtless, the habits and character of the immigrants have been greatly altered for the worse, since their removal to the West; but not a few of them bring all their impiety and hatred of the truth along with them; and manifest it on the first convenient occasion after their arrival.

They are evidently glad to escape from the observation of their former acquaintances, and from the religious restraints which were thrown around them in youth. Sometimes their assaults on the truth are so outrageous and audacious, that their efforts to convince others that the Bible is false, produce an effect very different from what they intend. They find, upon trial, that it is much easier to speak contemptuously of the Scriptures, than to prove them false. We have many skeptical persons here; but those who have put themselves forward as the champions of infidelity, have gained neither honor nor influence by it, even among the irreligious portion of the community. The open and violent assaults of infidelity are much less to be feared than the silent influence of worldliness. The hostile attacks of the enemies of the truth serve to strengthen the ties by which Christians are united; but when Christians yield to the influence of a worldly spirit, they become estranged from each other, and mingle with the irreligious world.

Discomforts and Perils of the Winter.

Such has been the intensity of the cold, the thermometer ranging a great portion of the time from 10° to 30° below zero, and such the character of the snow storms to which we have been subject, that I have found it utterly impossible to fulfill my appointments regularly. Probably, greater interruptions have occurred from this cause during the past three months, than during the whole period of time for which I have had the privilege of being sustained by your Society. My visits to the distant settlements have been almost entirely cut off. Seldom have our roads been sufficiently broken or the weather so moderate, as to warrant my going with safety far from home. Our snow storms have been unequaled within the knowledge of the oldest inhabitants of Northern Iowa: and to be caught out on our open prairies at the close of day in one of them, was like rushing into the jaws of Death. During the space of time covered by my report, we can enumerate eight deaths, of persons who were thus overtaken by them at night, in this immediate section of country. Some perished within sight of their own dwellings; and but for the watchful providence of God I had been numbered amongst this list. I had gone down to New Oregon, one Sabbath morning, having an appointment to preach at one o'clock, P.M., and in the evening. The morning was clear, but soon presented the usual signs of a heavy storm. I knew that my family would be alone, and unable to do any thing against it, and were not prepared for it; and after consulting some of the friends decided to return immediately. Before I had walked one mile, it broke upon me in all its strength. It proved to be one of the most severe of the season. More than once, I got off my road into the drifts, and several times had almost given up in despair. To go back was as dangerous as to go on. I felt cheered, however, by the recollection I was in His hands who giveth his angels charge over his people; and finally reached my home, where we failed not to return thanks to God for his watchful providence. Frequently, when the roads were unbroken, and the snow-drifts so heavy that I dared not take my horse out, have I walked to my appointments with the thermometer varying from 10° to 30° below zero, over an exposed prairie without the least shelter; and, with the exception of having had my face and ears frozen, I have been mercifully preserved. In this state of things you will not be surprised on learning, that our congregations have been very fluctuating. When the day is promising, we have a congregation varying from sixty to eighty; but when the reverse is the case, it dwindles down to less than twenty. Certainly, I have seen nothing like the present winter during the thirteen years that I have spent in Iowa. On five or six different occasions, I have had to dig down to my stable; and on the last, which was during the past week, it occupied myself and two of my neighbors nearly all day, to shovel the snow away under which it was buried. My time has been largely occupied in preparing fire wood, and shoveling snow.

A Cold Bath.

A violent rain which occurred during my labors at Kinderhook, caused an unusual freshet, and came near resulting in something serious to myself. Having been prevented from reaching my stopping place, in Rockport, I was on my way, the next morning, before sunrise. A sudden change of weather had come with severe cold. The still swollen current of a creek concealed a change in the bed of the stream, and I unexpectedly found my horse nearly swimming, with an almost perpendicular ascent beneath the surface. After nearly falling twice, he succeeded in throwing himself partly upon the bank, and, on the instant, I cast myself from him. When thus relieved, he gained the shore. I received a contusion upon the side, the effects of which still continue. I rode ten miles, with my limbs encased in such "greaves" as Goliah never wore—the mercury at 10°.

Discomforts.

We could bear the winter well enough, if we had a comfortable house; and we hoped that we should have; but we find the cold gets in where we little expected. We live in a house boarded and well clapboarded, but neither ceiled nor plastered inside; and it has been impossible to keep comfortable. Our children have suffered much; they have all been made unwell. But we are not alone in suffering. Our neighbors are similarly affected. There is scarcely a person about here who can call himself well. We shall be right glad to see spring open, and to feel the warm rays of an April sun. To perform much ministerial or any other labor, under such circumstances, is next to impossible. To take care of my domestic animals, and provide wood for our two stoves, has necessarily occupied no small portion of my time; while the impossibility of keeping my study comfortable, has made it very difficult for me to study at all.

Hard Journey.

Our journey from Reed's Landing to this place, was not only one of hardship but of peril. The Mississippi was just rising by the melting of the immense body of snow above, and the frost was just coming out of the ground. Though we did not—I speak rather for myself than my family—sink in "the slough of despond," yet we did literally in a slough of the Mississippi, with horses and wagons, so that my whole family and baggage had to be carried by hand several rods through water and mire, three or four feet deep. But a merciful Providence delivered us out of all our perils. I spent the Sabbath at Dunnville, where we arrived on Saturday evening—having left on Monday—and preached to a small congregation.

The New Home.

My family, worn out with fatigue, started again on Monday morning for our destination—one of our children, eight years old, being sick with the scarlet fever. We arrived at this place, to go into a house without floors, and with but few windows, and no partitions, and commenced housekeeping with a box-stove, and such scanty household utensils as the kindness of friends could spare—our own goods not having arrived. Our exposure and labors were such as my family were unaccustomed to; but though suffering from colds and fatigue, we have been spared from fatal or even severe sickness. The child taken with the scarlet fever soon recovered; but shortly, some of the others fell ill with the measles—five of them having never had the disease—and to this day, there has not been a time, unless we except the present, when some one or more of my family have not been sick. This state of things, living as we have had to do, in a house with joiners and masons at work, has forbidden us almost all the blessing of a home. Yet we have probably been as well provided for in this respect as most of the settlers here, and much better than many. They are trials not wholly unexpected, and to which all settlers in a new country must be exposed. These things are written, not in a complaining spirit, nor with desponding feelings, but as a simple narrative of facts. With the care of my family, the labor of building, and the responsibilities of a missionary, I have been most cheerful; and, with the exception of a few days, never enjoyed better health.

In Labors Abundant.

We have now in active operation four Sabbath schools in connection with my congregations, numbering about 200 scholars, in all. They are well manned, and have good libraries. I now preach, regularly, to five congregations, viz., Bluffton, Dartford, Green Lake, Metomon, and Reed's Corners. Next Sabbath evening, I go ten and a half miles, and preach on Green Lake prairie, After opening the Sabbath school, I hasten to my next appointment, four and a half miles due east. When through there, I ride four miles more, and preach again. The next Sabbath, I only travel ten miles, and preach only twice. I can sympathize with Paul, in respect to being "in weariness often." Still, my health is good; and I feel confident that I can now perform more ministerial service than at any former period of my life.

History of a Day.

Saddled my horse and rode four miles before breakfast, to procure a workman whose presence was necessary by the usual hour for work. Next, five miles more, to visit a ministerial neighbor, who was very ill. Thence, three miles, to order at one place some lime, at another, to find a man to load it, and at a third to order stone from the quarry; then, back to the church, two miles; thence to another quarry, to help roll on a load of stone. From there (while the team was on the way to the building and back) I walked a mile, to call upon a church member lying very ill; back to the quarry, and helped load more stone; and finally, a four mile ride home. On another day, I was stopped in the midst of a similar round of duties, to attend a funeral, three or four miles away, across the river—a journey necessarily made on foot, and leading me across the Kansas river and Soldier creek, by ferrying four times. Scarcity of laborers and of means to pay them, lays upon him who would see any such work go on, the necessity of donning his working suit, and putting his own hands to the work.

A Year of Affliction.

This has been a wonderful year to me. God has dealt bitterly with me. I have been sick nigh unto death. My son, my first born, my only son, was taken sick and died, while I was sick; and then, when I had begun to recover so as to be able to preach, I was thrown from the carriage, and nearly killed. From that injury I have not yet recovered, though I have preached once on almost every Sabbath since. The people here have been so kind and attentive to us, that they have given me an insight into the twenty fifth chapter of Matthew, that I never could have obtained in the closet. Surely, Christ must be in his suffering members, to behold how like angels his people look, when ministering to the sick and dying. Never were a people more humane and constant and sympathetic and self-sacrificing. Truly there is no friendship like christian friendship, and no sympathy like christian sympathy, and no love like christian love. To have a son just beaming into manhood, taken from you, under any circumstances, must be a severe affliction; but to have a first born, and an only son, one who was never know to lisp a profane expression; one who never gave to either of his parents an unkind word; one who was always happy, and always trying to make others happy; one who had, for four years, been seated with us at the table of his and our Lord; and who sat down with his father, the last time that he worshiped God, and partook of the elements for the last time, before leaving to go to the school of the prophets—to have such a son taken, and taken, too, when his father could not be present, though in an adjoining room, seems a concentration of sorrows.

"Canst thou Drink of the Cup?"

Since my last quarterly report was sent to you, God has called my dear wife and myself to drink deep of the cup of affliction. A beloved daughter, in her twenty first year, has, after a year's sickness, and severe suffering, gone to her rest in heaven, leaving her motherless babe in our arms. Some months before her death, she dedicated herself and her child to God; and from that hour her trust in the blessed Saviour was unshaken, and she met death with a cordial welcome. This is the third daughter that has been taken from us, in the space of a few years, by that fatal disease, consumption. All arrived at womanhood, and each has left a lonely companion to mourn her death. Our last and only surviving daughter, aged twenty eight, is now on her death-bed, with the same disease, and will probably be removed from us before my next quarter shall close. She is in a very happy state of mind. Thus is God dealing with us. But his will be done!

Missionary Wives.

It is not strange that the wives of Home Missionaries often lose their health. I often wonder that they are as well as they are. It is one of our greatest trials, that our wives and families fare so hardly, with our scanty support, in these new countries. It is often next to impossible to get help, if we try; and then as difficult to pay them, if we get them. The common price for girls' wages, where we live, has been $3 per week, and very scarce at that. At the time when most mothers feel that they must have a girl in the kitchen, and a nurse besides, we were utterly deserted, without a single female in the house. Such trials with those of housekeeping will soon wear them out. Tell the churches to remember their missionaries and their missionaries' wives, and to pray that God will strengthen them for their self-denying labors!

An Advertisement.

We pray that the laborers needed may be speedily sent. If you know of any one who longs for crucifixion, who feels as if he would love to find his way down to the lowest depths, where dreams of fame and wealth, or distinction of any earthly kind, will not in the least ruffle his spirit, direct him to me. I would, in a few hours' ride, introduce him to a field that would thoroughly test his professions of love to Jesus. But if any one longs to come, we can not consent to offer the privilege, except on one condition—that he determine to live and die on the field! The Lord Jesus needs to be impersonated here. These poor, perishing, Christless souls, these lost sheep and lambs, for whom the great Shepherd bled and died, need to see how a Christian lives. And how can they behold the full likeness, till they see how a Christian dies. We bespeak for this people, who have become dear to us, much prayer. We cherish bright hopes for the future. The soil here is the richest in Ohio; and when the genuine spirit of Christianity—readiness to suffer for the salvation of the people—appears here, we shall have some of the sweetest odors, the fairest blossoms, and the richest fruits.

A Dark, Hard Place.

I have labored to the limit of my strength on the Sabbath, uniformly attending our Sabbath school, which is large and flourishing, in the morning, and conducting three public services, one of which is four miles distant. I have also spent much time in visiting from house to house, and distributing tracts. I regret to say that the attendance on my appointments has been quite irregular. At times, I have a respectable number of hearers, and then but few. Although not in the limits of what is called Egypt, the moral aspect of this field is dark enough. The chief business of the Sabbath is visiting and recreation. Whilst addressing a small audience a few weeks since at C., two young men left the house to attend a horse race; and an aged "local preacher" soon after bolted, saying, "that was too strict for him." Of course he will not be seen again among my hearers. The next Sabbath that I was there, another horse race came off, and consequently my audience was quite small. On a recent Sabbath, five reapers were at work in this vicinity, giving employment to fifty men. Thus do they requite the God who has given them abundant harvests!

You may judge of the moral condition of this village, from the fact that there are only six family altars in one hundred and two families, and three of these are the families of ministers. All the earlier settlers, who laid the foundations of society, thirty years ago, were decidedly irreligious. With scarcely an exception, all the men of business, physicians, merchants, and mechanics, are of the same character. The small number of nominal Christians also appear to be quite conformed to the world in their habits. How I should rejoice, had I a small number only of self denying, prayerful, responsible brethren to labor with me. One of the sorest evils a missionary has to contend with, is the declension of those who have long lived far away from religious ordinances. How we need a few burning and shining lights in this dark region. Satan has got a strong hold here, and he will not relinquish his grasp without a severe struggle. is ready to dispute the ground, inch by inch. As yet, I have made but little impression upon this mass of sin and death. Plain, faithful, pungent preaching, people can hardly bear. And yet what must be done? No other preaching will do the least good. Never before have I realized so sensibly my utter impotence. Unless God pour out his Spirit, my efforts will fail, and all the people go to perdition. I feel encouraged by the thought that faithful labor will not be lost, even in a hard field. Besides, should it be abandoned, the enemy will triumph and remain secure in his possession.

Ignorance and Crime.

It is stated, that every fourth family in this and the adjoining counties, is destitute of a copy of the Scriptures; and it would probably be found that more than that proportion of the population can not read. Although ignorance and vice still exist here to an alarming extent, still there has been a great improvement in the habits and morals of the community, within the last few months. The Sabbath is better kept, there is not as much rowdying and fighting in the streets. Meetings for religious worship are better attended, and there is not so much disorder in time of worship—the people listen with more attention and apparent interest; and yet, it is a very hard place. A friend from Vermont, who has spent a few months here, remarked to me the other day, that there was not another so wicked a place in all the Free States, and that they needed a missionary here, as much as in Africa or Asia. I think there have been four murders committed in this county, within twelve months, and only one man has been arrested, and he had been in jail for a few days only, when he was bailed out by an irresponsible man, on a bond of five hundred dollars! It is thought that he will never be brought to trial. We now have a good day school here.

taught by a Presbyterian minister, which is exerting a good influence, and a gentleman from New England is about collecting a class in vocal music. At times, I get almost disheartened. But, as Providence has placed me here, I would not imitate Jonah, and embark on board a boat for "Tarsus," lest I get shipwrecked or swallowed up.

"Down with Education."

Not only in political and pecuniary matters, is the truth of the Bible maxim realized, "When the wicked rule the righteous mourn," but also in the important work of education. Our village contained two school districts, but their school houses being poor and worn out, it was voted to unite the two into one, buy a lot, and build a school house of good size. The Trustees selected a lot, and voted to buy it at an expense of $250.. They also proposed a plan for a building, to cost about $2,000. At a recent school meeting, the tax payers—many of whom hardly know their right hand from their left, like the babes of old "Nineveh"—secretly drummed up their host and came to the meeting, resolved to stop this school movement for educating the children; it "cost too much." It was amusing to hear some of our most wealthy citizens.—"I have got along as well as most men; and I never went to school but three months in my life." Another: "I have done better than that. I have never been to school at all." And another still: "What is the use of laying out so much, to educate the children? The fact is, those that don't go to school are the best off, they an't so proud and stuffed up. This education is all nonsense—down with it!" The vote was taken on the building; and these wise ignoramuses voted down the school house tax, and went away in triumph.

Baptism by a Justice of the Peace.

I had heard, for several days, that my Dutch neighbor of the brewery, was to have a grand ball and supper on Saturday evening. Great preparations were making; and on Saturday morning he asked me to attend the festival, and baptize his child. He is a profane, Sabbath-breaking man, and keeps a lager beer saloon. His wife gives no more evidence of piety than he. They are both good natured people, and on good terms with the community, especially the drinking portion of it. I had a little talk with him, and found that his highest idea of the rite was, the naming of the child in public. This was all he expected or wished. I was obliged to tell him that we had no such rite. I could not make him see into it. He said, he had always considered that we belonged to the same church. He had been baptized into one when he was an infant. I overheard him indulging in a little profane language after I left, and learn that a large part of the town gave vent to their feelings in the same way. Of course, there were exceptions. During the evening the band, which had come twenty miles for the occasion, ceased its music, the dancers formed a circle around the room, the child was produced, and baptized by the Justice of the Peace, who is not a whit behind the father, either in profanity or disregard for the Sabbath.

Grog-Shops.

The low grog-shops are doing a large business, in violation of law; and though prosecuted and fined, they will not desist. One establishment was amerced at the recent sitting of the Circuit Court in the sum of $140, and it is now doing a larger and bolder business than ever. The drunkenness and revelry of that one establishment, are enough to make the day gloomy and the night hideous. Hitherto, complaints have been made by individuals, chiefly upon their own responsibility; but a few of us have been consulting, and have concluded to call a public meeting, in order to give the entire community an opportunity to assume the responsibility of whatever further legal measures it may be expedient to adopt.

The new law must have fallen unpleasantly on those who had ever been accustomed to avenge their own injuries, when murder was first made punishable by death. What an outrage that a man should not be permitted to take vengeance on his enemy! But the conscience of the people—of the governing people at least—had, at last, fully settled it, that murder is a crime; and so, if any person, for love of money, or for revenge, or with malice of any kind, wishes to take the life of his neighbor, he must do it at peril of his own. This is a crime. The whole community acknowledge it to be such, hold it in abhorrence, and are determined to visit it with due punishment.—There has been procress.

But in the light of these latter days, the eye of the public conscience has caught sight of another wrong, which stands out so prominently, is so frequent, and so gross, and so hurtful, and so sinful, that it must be publicly recognized, acknowledged, stamped as a wrong; and henceforth, no man can keep a grogshop and keep his character. We are gradually coming to the point, that no man shall be allowed to open one of these schools of iniquity. He loses character by it. If that is not sufficient to deter him, then he must lose money—which is the life-blood of this sin. But even if he must lose his liberty for a season, this wrong must be stopped.

Church-Building under Difficulties.

We have had a terrible struggle to get our meeting house so that we could use it this winter; but, thanks be to the Lord for his great goodness, continued to us in these times of necessity, we have held worship in it for the three last Sabbaths! It is not completed, however. We have only a rough coat of plastering on it, and the seats and pulpit are all temporary. But our hearts are made glad, notwithstanding, that we have a place of our own; where we feel at home in our acts of devotion. Our church edifice has given us at once a name and a character, and a much stronger and more prominent influence in the place than we have ever before felt.

One can hardly realize the value of a meeting house to a little denomination. who have struggled hard and long, in competition with other denominations already in possession of houses of worship, until he has had some experience. We find that there are many of our order scattered all around, who are now coming up to this temple to worship. I have often been compelled to labor on our meeting house, all the week, and much of the time to stand at the head of affairs, in order that the work might go forward: Besides, I am on the subscription for $200; and a necessity was laid upon me to do what I could with my hands, to keep this obligation. The closing struggle to get into our house of worship this winter, has been a hard one for me. The money crisis coming on, we found, when we had got our house so far completed as to be ready for plastering, that the money could not be raised to buy the lime; and all our available means had been exhausted. I therefore took it upon myself to raise the money, and by writing to relatives at the East succeeded in borrowing it; so that we finally obtained the lime, and succeeded in getting on one coat. Then, the house to be fit for use, must be furnished with stoves. Here again, I have had to assume the responsibility of raising the money, or we must go with-With the favor of kind relatives, I have succeeded in this also. I would not have you think from this, that there is any backwardness on the part of my people, to take this burden off from my shoulders, if they could do so; but money can not be had among us at present. They say that I shall be helped out of it, just as soon as they can do so. Our house has already cost us $2,300. We built of brick, and had the misfortune to have both of the side walls blown down, when they were ready for the roof. I have turned every dollar I could get from any source whatever into the building; and have much indebtedness of my own that ought to be met.

A Noble Example.

You will remember that about two years since, I wrote you in relation to the necessity of sending some able and devoted ministers into this valley. You will be interested to contrast our present condition and prospects with what they then were. In September, 1855, we called Rev. C. Smith to an unoccupied—and considered by many—an unpromising field, on the west side of the river, in this city. On the 25th of October, we organized a church of 23 members. In twelve days after the timber for a frame was at the saw mill, we completed—with the exception of the seats—a church, 54 by 36 feet, and held service in it. It was painted and plastered in that time. Immediately after, it was filled; and we have since found it necessary to add 20 feet to its length. Immediately after our church was formed, we organized a Sabbath school and Bible class, which has steadily increased, until we have now about 200 members, and one of the most interesting schools I have ever attended. There has been no communion season since we were a church without additions, until we now number nearly 100 members; and though the youngest but one, we are already one of the most efficient churches in the country.

Within the past year, we have put up the walls of one of the best modeled—and what will be, when completed—one of the most beautiful church edifices in the State; 100 feet in length, and 65 feet wide. The front is of polished gypsum—than which nothing is more beautiful. It will cost, when completed, about $25,000; and when finished, we shall owe but little for it. When Rev. Mr. Smith came here, he was acquainted with no family but mine, and I assumed his support for the first year; but others aided liberally in making up his salary. We promised him $1,000 per year, and paid him $1,500. We have had no aid from any Church Erection Fund in building our house, nor from any Missionary Society in paying our minister; and have accomplished just as much, or more, than we should have done, had we been aided to the amount of $5,000, to commence with.

It is a marked feature of our congregation that, to a large extent, they are made up of persons who did not before regularly attend church—many of them not at all, except on funeral occasions. Some of the most interesting members are from this latter class.

From House to House.

It is pleasant to enforce the duties of religion from house to house, to search out diligently through the thinly settled country the scattered of the flock of Christ, where they have none to admonish, or sympathize, or pray with them. Said one: "I have not found the comforts, or the temporal enjoyments, nor yet the intellectual, moral, and religious influences that I had expected. There is not an individual to whom I can open my mind on the subject of religion. I should appear as a barbarian to those about me, were I to attempt it. The whole current of society is against holiness. The Sabbath is spent in drinking, social visits, laboring, and hunting. There is no meeting, no place of prayer, no preacher of righteousness. I take my Bible, and retire alone, and pray the Lord of the harvest to break up this course of wickedness."

It is good to meet such persons in our explorations, and laborious duties. It refreshes and comforts our own hearts as well as theirs. They receive us as sent of God, in answer to prayer, with christian cheer and charity.

Since writing the above, I have been called to attend a funeral, ten miles distant, on the other side of the Wisconsin. The ferry-man was not to be found. But, observing four Indians round a fire among the bushes, I hired one of them to ferry me over. With one pipe in his mouth, and another in his hair, he rowed me safely over. On my return, one of them, Warrikawa, was drunk before the fire, with a bottle of whisky by his side, and two of his companions were playing cards with two white boys, intelligent and well clad, and only about twelve years of age. One of them is the son of a pious widow.

The Ministers demanded.

These little beneficiary churches frequently have a bell-wether among them who hails from Dr. Cheever's, Dr. Cox's, Dr. Smith's, or some other D.D.'s church, and he is never satisfied unless the minister is somewhere near his old Doctor. He is apt to make his whole flock uneasy, and to keep them looking in the direction he points, for a Doctor.

Another, the proprietor of the town, wishes a man who is popular, who will bring his town into notice, and make market for his lots. He will give so much, for a minister of such and such qualifications. The idea is, a bell weighing so many pounds, with a tongue or clapper so long and so big, to be heard far and near, and call the ends of the earth together—for what? To purchase lots!

The "Lone Rock."

Juneau county, in which I am the only minister of Congregational or Presbyterian predilections, contains an area of 756 square miles. Its distinct existence dates back less than one year-though it has had a brief existence in connection with Adams county—and yet it has a somewhat large population already, and accessions are made to it daily. Upon the numerous streams running in various directions through the county, have sprung up a number of towns, in which, if you may not see the church spire, and hear the church-going bell, you may see tokens of worldly thrift, and hear the hum of business. Nor will there be wanting evidences enough, that Satan's seat is also in the midst of them. Among these towns is New Lisbon, the county seat, situated at the juncture of the Big and Little Lemonwier rivers, and having a population of There are five other villages within a few miles. All these towns, with one exception, I have visited, spending one or more Sabbaths in them, and preaching to the people. And in them all can be found but one Presbyterian or Congregational church, and that has a membership of only fire. In this county is a rock, towering high, and standing so entirely by itself, that it has received the designation of "Lone Rock." Such may not this little church be called, standing, as it does, solitary and alone in the midst of all these settlements? And if she is not herself a rock, it is to be hoped that she is built upon that Rock which will enable her to bid defiance to the descending rains, the beating winds, and the rushing floods.

A Preaching Saw-Mill.

One instance will serve to show how completely the religious interest swallowed up all worldly considerations. There is a steam saw-mill in our place which, at that time, was doing a heavy business, running night and day; but whenever the hour for a meeting arrived, whether in the day time or the evening, the mill was stopped, and all hands were permitted to attend. Such a fact might appear trifling at the East; but here, where money brings three per cent a month—which rate of interest the proprietor was actually paying at that time for capital to carry on his business—this fact possesses some significance. As a brother minister remarked, this silent saw-mill may, in the providence of God, have preached more effective sermons, as to the paramount importance of spiritual interests, than any that were heard from the pulpit.

Spiritual Harvests.

At the date of my last report, I was engaged in protracted labors at R. At the conclusion, the pastor told me that he could count 112 persons who had given evidence of conversion during the meeting. Besides these, he thought that there were not less than thirty who had professed conversion, but whose names he did not know. How many will unite with the church I can not tell.

At the last communion there were twenty nine. My labors during the latter part of winter and spring were quite severe. For ninety days, I averaged one sermon a day.

As the results of the meetings above mentioned, more than 200 persons were hopefully converted. At the last meeting of our Convention, not less than 1.000 hopeful conversions were reported in connection with our congregations, during the last six months. All these churches were once, if not now, connected with the Society as beneficiaries; and that too, within five years.

Truly "There shall be a handful of corn on the tops of the mountains; the fruit thereof shall shake like Lebanon"!

A Touching Conversion.

Among the recent conversions of special interest, was that of a young lady of fine mind and attainments, who, though the daughter of a wealthy citizen. preferred to earn her own living as a teacher in one of our public schools. She was a girl whose loveliness of character, rare accomplishments, and winning ways drew round her a large circle of admiring and attached friends.

Some few weeks since, her mind became deeply impressed by the truth, and by the Spirit of God. She had not previously enjoyed religious advantages: and when she did see herself and her lost condition in sin, she was deeply affected, and sought with anxious concern to learn the way of life. One Tuesday evening she came to see me, to talk about her soul. After unfolding to her the guilt and misery of the natural man, and the preciousness of Christ as a Savior from sin, and the reasonableness of God's claim for the immediate surrender of the whole heart to him, I told her that I was about to offer prayer. and begged her that while on our knees, she should give herself away, just as she was, to be the Lord's forever. After prayer, and a few words of instruction, she left. On Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday evenings of that week, she was at the meetings, saying little, but deeply solemn; on Sabbath she was at church at both services, and took a deep interest in them. She remarked to a friend that she had never heard preaching before as she did that day. The truth was sweet to her soul. It was her last visit to the house of God on earth! The next day she was taken with a fatal illness. As soon as I heard of it, I hastened to visit her; and as I sat by her bedside, she said: "Mr. II., when we bowed in prayer in your study, last Tuesday evening, I did give myself unreservedly, if I know myself at all, to be the Lord's forever. I know my heart is deceitful, and I have examined myself often, and with much prayer, that God would show me if I am deceived, but after the closest scrutiny I can give, I do feel and believe that I am the Lord's, by full and free surrender, and that he is mine through rich grace. I am happy, unspeakably happy. I feel that this sickness is unto death. I shall not recover; nor have I a wish to live on my own account." In this frame of mind she continued, till death, in a few days, closed her earthly course. Many who knew and loved this young disciple, (as I doubt not she was,) and who saw what the grace of God had done for her, have been deeply impressed.

Too Late!

At T. I preached to a small but attentive audience. Among the rest was a young man, the husband of a young wife, and the father of three children. I noticed him very particularly, because I knew that he entertained some skeptical notions, and rarely attended my preaching. After sermon, we both traveled the same road for some two miles. His company started in advance of me, but I saw him hanging back; so I rode up and joined in conversation with him. He was exceedingly pleasant, and showed a great deal of friendship. When I parted with him, I could not keep from entertaining the hope, that I might yet do him some good. About two weeks afterward, I heard that he had been taken violently ill. The next morning I hastened to his house, hoping that the time had come when his heart might be opened to the truth of the Gospel. But alas! I found his mind almost entirely gone. He recognized me, and said he was glad to see me; but I saw that there was no chance to present to him a Saviour's love. That night he died.

Some Results of Home Missionary Experience in New Hampshire.

1. Labors among feeble churches have produced a deep impression of the ralue of these churches to the communities around them, and the importance of continuing to sustain them. Not less important are they to the communities in which they are found, than are larger, richer churches, to those in which they are located. Our feeble churches and their faithful pastors, or stated supplies, we must sustain at all events. Failure here would result in incalculable evil, not only to the latter but to the former; for the immoralities generated in the moral darkness of that, would overflow into this, and both communities tend to moral ruin together.

2. The only promoter and conservator of good morals in any community, is the BIBLE, with its doctrines explained, its institutions advocated, its duties inculcated, its precepts taught, its motives enforced by an educated, godly ministry, such as the community will respect, and in which, known by its fruits, for "its simplicity and godly sincerity," they will confide. In the absence of such a ministry, it is utterly vain to hope that a high standard of morals can be raised or sustained.

3. Such a ministry should be established in the early settlement of every town. Let any number of men establish a new settlement, and unless they make the institutions of the Gospel an essential part, and secure an able, pious ministry from the first, irreligion and immorality will creep in; soon, vice will be in the ascendency, and in a few years will give the people a character of ungodliness; they will sneer at, will defy God's truth, and "glory in unrighteousness." In demonstration of this, thousands of terrible facts might be adduced.

4. In the absence of a learned, godly ministry, competent to "vindicate the ways of God to man," whose weight of character shall command the respect and gain the confidence of the people, an ignorant, feeble ministry will appear, which, to some extent, will be endured, but can produce no strong impression for good. Good men they may be, but uneducated, unlettered, devoid of mental discipline, unable to use language correctly, entirely incompetent to state or defend the fundamental doctrines of the Bible, or to inculcate the duties it enjoins, announcing a text, yet not saying any thing in legitimate connection with it, but always running into a cant line of exhortation; they not only fail to secure the ears of their hearers, but awaken disgust in well-informed minds. Such minds, driven by the character of the so-called preaching from the place of worship, draw others away with them. The few who continue attendance, are those generally who can exert but little influence in molding society for good. The consequences are, the Bible is read but little; its great doctrines and duties are but little understood; sin, open and unblushing, goes unrebuked; its results, in time and eternity, are not declared; the immortality of the soul is scarcely thought of; responsibilities to God are wholly disregarded; God is blasphemed; Christ as a Saviour, despised, the soul lost.

5. An illiterate ministry only, existing in a place for any considerable time, hedges the way against a competent ministry. It does this by creating prejudice in the minds of those whose views and tastes have been formed by such a ministry, against a ministry competent to instruct in the things of God. Among this class are many truly pious persons, but their knowledge of the Bible, their general knowledge, indeed, is very limited, and their prejudice against an educated ministry and written sermons, very strong; and thus, though for different reasons, they are strongly opposed to the introduction of a suitable ministry, often

6. All these difficulties in the way of introducing an able ministry into our religious destitutions notwithstanding, such must be sent to them. It is a most pernicious mistake, that men of small abilities, of little education, however pious they may be, are competent instruments to do the mighty work of repairing the moral wastes of our State. If such instruments have not created these, they have often served to render them more difficult of repair.

THIRTY THIRD ANNIVERSARY.

THE AMERICAN HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY held its Thirty Third Anniversary in the Church of the Puritans, on Union Square, New York, on Wednesday evening, May 11th, 1859.

Rev. William T. Dwight, D. D., of Portland, Me., one of the Vice-Presidents, occupied the chair, and the exercises were opened with prayer by Rev. William Patton, D. D., of New York.

The Treasurer's Report was read by Mr. Christopher R. Robert, the Treasurer of the Society.

On motion of Rev. Leonard Bacon, D. D., of New Haven, Ct., seconded by Rev. James H. Newton, of Cleveland, O.,

Resolved, That the Reports now presented be adopted, and published under the direction of the Executive Committee.

On motion of Rev. Edward S. Lacy, of San Francisco, Cal., seconded by Rev. John H. Pettingell, of Albany, N. Y.,

Resolved, That the all-pervading influence of the Gospel is indispensable to the conservation of the institutions of our free country.

On motion of WILLIAM CURTIS NOYES, Esq., of New York, seconded by Rev. Calvin Clark, of Chicago, Ill.,

Resolved, That a diligent and successful prosecution of the Home Missionary Work is essential, not only to the continuance and improvement of our religious character and privileges, but also to the extension and perpetuity of the civil institutions which secure to us the blessings of liberty.

On motion of Rev. Henry M. Dexter, of Boston, Mass, seconded by Rev. John Spaulding, of New York,

Resolved, That as personal holiness is the necessary fruit of Christianity, within the soul, so Missions, (first Home, then Foreign,) are but its natural development in the world without.

May.

Addresses were made by Messrs. LACY, NOYES, and DEXTER, in support of the Resolutions which they respectively offered; and the music of the occasion, by the Choir of the Church of the Puritans, was conducted by Mr. John Jameson.

THIRTY THIRD REPORT.

We are admonished, with peculiar impressiveness, as we commence the review of another year, of the shortness and uncertainty of our time of service in our Master's vineyard. Fellow-laborers and patrons, in the midst of their toil and at an unexpected moment, have been called to an account of their stewardship.

Rev. Bennett Tyler, D. D., one of the Vice Presidents of the Society, and eminent for his services in the Church of God, departed this life early in the year. He had sustained official relations to the Society from its organization, had been a firm supporter of its policy, and an able and endeared instructor of young men, who have borne the burden and heat of the day in the open field of the Society's labors.

Hon. Benjamin F. Butler,* LL. D., another of the Vice Presidents, has also been removed from the spheres of usefulness, which he adorned and blessed, to his reward on high. He was an early friend and patron of the Society; his attachment to its objects, his valuable counsels, his eloquent pleadings, and his liberal benefactions for the accomplishment of them, were continued, with remarkable consistency, to the peaceful close of a christian life.

Two of the Directors of the Society—Amos M. Collins, Esq., and Anson G. Phelps, Esq.—have also been removed by death. Intelligent and warm-hearted christian men, appreciating the opportunities which God gave them for the furtherance of his kingdom, ready to every good work and contributing of their substance with liberality and cheerfulness of heart for its accomplishment, we doubt not they have their reward in the assurance of their Savior, that inasmuch as they did it unto one of the least of his brethren, they did it unto him.

Some of these brethren were veterans in the missionary work; some of them had just entered upon it, in the vigor of youth and the ardor of first love; and all of them fell with their armor on, to receive, we doubt not, the recompense of him that overcometh.

God has in mercy spared our lives and crowned our labors with his blessing-made the year a year of prosperity, in the means furnished for the prosecution and enlargement of our work, and especially in the gathering of souls into his kingdom; and we would here render to him devout ascriptions of praise and consecrate ourselves anew to his service.

The various operations of the Society are noticed in the body of the Report, under their appropriate heads and in connection with their respective localities; such details as can be presented in a compact form are embraced in the following

SUMMARY OF RESULTS.

The number of ministers of the Gospel in the service of the Society the last year, whose names are found in the preceding General Table, together with those engaged in superintending the work, and whose names are mentioned in connection with the respective Auxiliaries and Agencies, is 1,054.

Of these, 804 were in commission at the date of the last Report, and 250 have been since appointed.

They have been distributed in 22 different States and Territories, as follows: in Maine, 92; New Hampshire, 45; Vermont, 97; Massachusetts, 38; Rhode Island, 8; Connecticut, 39; New York, 135; New Jersey, 12; Pennsylvania, 53; Delaware, 1; Kentucky, 1; Ohio, 77; Indiana, 29; Illinois, 93; Michigan, 65; Wisconsin, 102; Iowa, 102; Minnesota, 34; Kansas, 14; Nebraska, 4; California, 6; Oregon, 7.

This distribution gives to the New England States, 319; Middle States, 201; Western States and Territories, 534, including 13 on the Pacific coast.

Of the whole number in commission, 559 have been pastors or stated supplies of single congregations; 345 have ministered to two or three congregations each; and 150 have extended their labors over still wider fields.

The advantages of a permanent and an itinerant ministry are thus happily combined. The Society seeks to accomplish whatever is practicable by a general exploring agency, by the arrangement of circuits more or less extensive, where the circumstances call for them, for itinerant laborers, and by the encouragement of churches to secure, each for itself, the entire services of a pastor. From one eighth to one sixth of the missionaries, each year since the organization of the Society, have been employed in itinerant labors, preparatory to the more permanent establishment of gospel institutions.

The aggregate of ministerial labor performed is 810 years.

The number of congregations and missionary districts which have been fully supplied, or where the Gospel has been preached at stated intervals, is 2,125.

Ten missionaries have been in commission as pastors or stated supplies of churches of colored people; and 41 have preached in foreign languages—20 to Welsh, 18 to German congregations, and 3 to congregations of Swedes, Norwegians, and Frenchmen.

The number of Sabbath school scholars, connected with the missionary churches and stations, is not far from 67,300.

The contributions to benevolent objects, reported by 581 missionaries, amount to $20,846.92.

Seventy six churches have been organized, in connection with the labors of the missionaries, during the year; and thirty have become self-sustaining. Fifty houses of worship have been completed; fifty one repaired or improved; and the building of sixty one commenced. Ninety seven young men, in connection with the missionary churches, are reported as in preparation for the gospel ministry.

The additions to the churches, as nearly as can be ascertained, have been 8,791, viz.: 5,878 on profession of their faith, and

2,913 by letters from other churches.

This is a larger addition than has ever before been made in any one year of the Society's labors. It is thef ruit of the revivals, which it was our privilege to report as in progress at the last anniversary, and which have spread their happy influence over the year, awakening joy in the presence of the angels of God over the repentance of sinners, and giving strength and beauty to Zion, in the enlargement of her borders, and the more joyful and unwearied activity of her sons and daughters in building up her walls. Four hundred and seventy two missionaries report 4,971 hopeful conversions in connection with their labors during the past year; and there are instances where the presence and power of the Spirit have been most strikingly manifest, in which 80, 90, and even 100 have given evidence of having been born again. This is the Lord's doing; it is marvelous in our eyes!

THE TREASURY.

RESOURCES.—The balance in the Treasury, April 1, 1858, was $6,488.07. The receipts for the succeeding twelve months have been $188,139.29; making the resources of the year $194,627.36.

LIABILITIES.—There was due to missionaries at the close of the last year, $11,046.47. There has since become due, $186,493.95; making the total of liabilities, $197,540.42.

PAYMENTS.—Of this sum, $187,084.41 have been paid; leaving $10,456.01 still due to missionaries for labor performed. Towards canceling these claims and redeeming additional pledges on commissions daily becoming due—amounting in all to $80,635.21—there is a balance in the Treasury of $7,542.95.

PROGRESS.

A comparison of the leading items in the results of the last year, with those of the year previous, is full of encouragement. The receipts exceed those of the year preceding, by $12,167.92; $10,722.12 of the increase have come from legacies, and $1,445.80 from the contributions of the living. Forty two more missionaries have been in the service of the Society; one hundred and one more congregations have received the ministrations of the Gospel; one thousand and eight hundred more children and youth have been instructed in Sabbath schools, and two thousand and three more communicants have been added to the churches.

Should not such evidences of the Divine favor inspire our hearts with thanksgiving and praise, and enkindle within us holier and firmer purposes, stronger faith, more importunate entreaty, and a more absolute consecration with reference to the work which is still committed to our hands—a work of increasing magnitude and amazing import, and to the accomplishment of which nothing but the arm of Omnipotence is adequate? Giving doth not impoverish our Infinite Patron, our Almighty Helper, nor withholding enrich him. The silver and the gold and the cattle on a thousand hills are his. The hearts of all men are in his hands, and the residue of the Spirit is with him. He can send forth laborers into his harvest, and gather it all into his garner. The cause for which we labor is infinitely more precious in his sight than it can be in ours; and he is far more ready to grant us the largest desires of our hearts, with reference to it, than we are to utter them before him. What responsibilities rest upon us, then, in regard to the future! And with what encouragement and hope may we put forth our humble efforts to discharge them, strong in the Lord and in the power of his might!

GENERAL COMPARATIVE RESULTS.

The following Table gives a comparative view of the amount of receipts, expenditures, number of missionaries, new appointments, congregations and missionary districts, years of labor performed, additions to the churches, and pupils in Sabbath schools, for each year since the organization of the Society. It also exhibits, in the tenth column, the average expenditure, each year, for a year of missionary labor, obtained by dividing the sum total of the expenditures for the year, by the number of years of labor performed. And in the eleventh column, by dividing the sum total of the expenditures of each year, by the number of missionaries employed, is shown what the average to a missionary would be, if the expenditures were equally apportioned among them.

Remarks.—1. The total of receipts for thirty three years, is $3,644,220.11.

- 2. The total of years of labor is 19,681. These years are reckoned in each Report, by adding together the number of months of labor which the missionaries have actually performed.
- 3. The whole number of additions to the churches is 159,066. The largest additions were made in 1843, and in 1859.
- 4. The average expenditure for a year of missionary labor includes the entire cost to the Society, of obtaining the missionary, defraying his expenses to his field, and sustaining him on it, as well as the average proportion of all the expenses of conducting the Institution. The increased average of recent years has been occasioned by the greater number of those who have held full commissions, the expensiveness of more distant missions, and the larger appropriations that have become necessary, as the expenses of living have increased, to secure to the missionary a comfortable support.

- 5. The difference between the annual average expenditure to a missionary and the average of a year's labor, is occasioned by the fact that a missionary is named and counted in a Report, though in some cases he may have labored but a fraction of a year.
- 6. The fifth column—that of new appointments—shows how many have to be called in each year, to supply the places of those whose support is assumed by the people, the vacancies occasioned by death, sickness, removals, and other changes, and to make the increase, if there be any, over the number of the preceding year.

MAINE MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Rev. William T. Dwight, D.D., President; John Howe, Esq., Treasurer; Rev. Ben-Jamin Tappan, D.D., Secretary. Office at Portland.

The receipts of this Society, for the year ending March 1, were $10,854.12. There were paid from the State into the Treasury of the American Home Missionary Society, during its financial year, $35.32; making a total of $10,889.44,—less than the preceding year by $228.72. The expenditures within the State were $10,709.57.

Ninety two missionaries have been in commission during some portion of the year, whose fields of labor comprise one hundred and six churches, and twenty five stations where no churches exist. The average number of souls in attendance on the Sabbath instructions of these missionaries is twelve thousand; and the members of their Sabbath schools and Bible classes number seven thousand. The last year has been one of uncommon religious interest. At the date of the last returns to the Auxiliary, five hundred and six had been added to the churches; and nine hundred and forty four reported as hopefully converted to Christ,—a larger number than in any one year before since the Society was instituted.

The Home Missionary cause loses none of its interest in Maine; but that interest increases year by year. "We do not maintain," say the Trustees, "that it presents the only claims upon our benevolence that ought to be regarded. We will not assert even that they are paramount to all others But we do contend that this cause makes a very urgent demand upon the love of Christ, and upon the love of country. To us it is obeying the command to "begin at Jerusalem." It is providing for our own in a matter of urgent necessity, of primary importance. In looking attentively over this broad land, or even over this eastern portion of it, even now, who does not rejoice with trembling? Who does not feel the need of increased, untiring effort to stem the ever swelling ide of evil, and to deepen and widen the channels, and to do all hat man can do for the progress and diffusion of the pure river of the water of life? Surely the only conservative and reforming nfluence to be relied upon is the Gospel of the Son of God—its principles, its precepts, in all the length and breadth of them, aithfully dispensed in every divinely appointed method, and accompanied, in answer to the prayer of faith and of intense desire, by the quickening influences of the good Spirit of God. How mutterably important, then, is the more thorough evangelization f Maine, and of our whole American homestead!"

NEW HAMPSHIRE MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Hon. WILLIAM HAILE, President; Rev. Benjamin P. Stone, D.D., Secretary and Treasurer. Office at Concord.

The receipts of this Society for the year ending March 1, were $5,976.20, of which $347.87 were designated by the donors for the Parent Society. There were also received, from individuals and churches and in payment of legacies, into the Treasury of the National Society, during its financial year, $356.97; making the total to the cause $6,333.17—less than last year by $307.56. The expenditures within the State were $6,696.85; and the amount paid into the Treasury of the National Society was $704.84.

Forty five missionaries have been in commission during some portion of the year. Rev. William Clark has also prosecuted the work of a general missionary agency in the destitute portions of the State. Forty five churches, and ten congregations where no churches have been gathered, have received the benefit of these missionary services; and three thousand one hundred and forty children and youth, in connection with the congregations, have been instructed in Sabbath schools. Showers of divine grace have greatly refreshed a large portion of the field, and made it more fruitful in the conversion of souls than in any other year since 1843. Revivals of greater or less power and extent have been enjoyed in twenty six churches and congregations; and the number of hopeful conversions reported from them is three hundred and ninety five.

These rich blessings from on high greatly encourage the Society to go forward in their endeavors to sustain the preaching of the Gospel wherever it is needed among them, though they know not whence the pecuniary resources are to be derived for the accomplishment of the work. "God has blessed the labors of the New Hampshire Missionary Society," they say, "these fifty seven years; and his blessing has always been the most abundant when its necessities have been the greatest and its conductors and friends have most felt their own helplessness and their dependence upon the throne of his grace. To lose confidence in the God of our salvation now, and to become weary in our work, would be a dishonor to his name, unfaithfulness to our divine Master, and an unnatural and cruel withholding of our sympathies and charities from the destitute and perishing. * * * The victory is sure-a victory measured by our faith and devotion. Gods calls us to be instruments, not to be inventors nor creators. He alone has the residue of the Spirit. We have no apology for observing the wind or regarding the clouds, but should go forth in the morning sowing the seed, and in the evening withholding not our hand, for we know not whether shall prosper either this or that, or whether they both shall be alike good."

VERMONT DOMESTIC MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Hon. ERASTUS FAIRBANKS, President; C. W. STORRS, Esq., Treasurer; Rev. John F. STONE, Secretary. Office at Montpelier.

The receipts of this Society for the year ending March 1, were $8,673.42. There were also received into the Treasury of the American Home Missionary Society, during its financial year, from individuals and congregations in the State, $456.61, and in payment of legacies, $860.45; making a total for the cause of $9,990.48, which is $405.25 less than the amount reported last year. The expenditures within the State were $9,098.12; and the amount forwarded to the National Society, $1,317.06.

The number of missionaries employed is ninety seven, including forty seven licentiates, whose course of theological study was not completed, but who rendered short terms of service during their vacations. Thirty three churches have been aided in the support of pastors or stated supplies, and forty two towns and communities pesides have received the benefit of these missionary labors. Not ar from three thousand children and youth have been instructed n Sabbath schools. Many of the missionary fields have been cenes of more than usual religious interest. Churches have been quickened and rendered more earnest and prevalent in prayer; congregations have improved in respect to numbers and punctudity in attendance; and two hundred and fifty one souls are reported as having hopefully passed from death unto life—a larger number than has been returned in any one year before since the nissionary work in this State began, and twice the number that has been reported in any year but one for the last ten years.

The Secretary of the Society says of the service rendered by icentiates whose course of preparation was not fully completed, Though the period of it has been brief, they have generally perormed more labor, in the way of visiting the people at their omes, conversing with individuals, and lecturing in different eighborhoods during the time covered by their commissions, than hey, or even older and stronger ministers would be able to perorm on an average as permanent laborers. This plan was never hought of as a substitute for more permanent supplies, but mainly s a temporary expedient to be adopted where no better arrangenent was immediately practicable, and with a view of preparing he way for a settled ministry. And among the results of such abors we are happy to find, not only an increased desire for reaching, but a strong wish to secure a permanent ministry. And ot less than ten churches which have been destitute, most of them or years, previous to being visited by these laborers, now have ated supplies or settled pastors."

WASSACHUSETTS HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Rev. RICHARD S. STORRS, D.D., President; Benjamin Perkins, Esq., Treasurer; Rev. Henry B. Hooker, D.D., Secretary. Office in Boston.

The receipts of this Society, for the year ending March 1st, were $31,207.63. The expenditures within the State were $5,957.91; and the amount forwarded from the Treasury, to the American Home Missionary Society, during its financial year, was $26,000. There were also received into the Treasury of the Parent Society: from legacies, $20,610.91; from the Hampshire Missionary Society, $1,298.08; from congregations and individuals, $5,445.90—in all $26,904.89; making the amount to the cause from Massachusetts, $58,112.52. The total of receipts exceeds the amount of the preceding year, by $12,938.69, and of any previous year, by $629.45. The whole amount expended through the Parent Society, is $52,904.89,—exceeding the amount of the preceding year by $11,848.64, and of any previous year, by $2,645.66.

The number of missionaries in the service of the Society, is thirty eight; the aggregate average attendance on their public ministrations, is over four thousand, while more than three times that number come more or less under their religious influence. The churches to which they have ministered, contain one thousand three hundred and eighty seven members, and the Sabbath schools connected with them, more than two thousand children and youth.

"An important event," says the last Report of the Society, "has marked the missionary year. While the churches have been straitened in pecuniary matters, they have not been straitened in regard to spiritual blessings. We are permitted to record, and rejoice over the fact, that the land, and almost the whole land, has been blessed with a more bountiful effusion of the Spirit of God, than has been granted, in the same time, and over such an extent of country, since the world began. And while our strong churches have been in such numbers strengthened, our feeble churches have had gracious visits from the Infinite King, fulfilling gloriously ancient prophecy: 'He shall judge the poor of the people, he shall save the children of the needy, for he shall deliver the needy when he crieth, the poor also, and him that hath no helper.' Many of the mission churches of our own particular field have been greatly blessed. In proportion to the numbers in the congregations, there have not been elsewhere greater manifestations of the Spirit's power. From these churches we have reports of the conversion of one hundred and fifty five individuals during the year, and revivals are yet in progress among them. Thus have these neglected corners of the Lord's vineyard been objects of his special kindness and care, and when his servants had toiled on, disheartened and desponding, they have had occasion to say, 'The Lord hath redeemed Jacob, and glorified himself in Israel.'"

RHODE ISLAND HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Rev. Thomas Shepard, D.D., President; George G. Richmond, Esq., Providence, Treasurer; Rev. A. Huntington Clapp, Providence, Secretary.

The receipts of this Society, for the year ending March 1st, were $1,403.29, exclusive of $500 from the Connecticut Missionary Society. There were also received into the Treasury of the Parent Society, during its financial year, $125.74; making the total to the cause, $1,529.03,—exceeding the amount of last year, by $383.66.

The expenditures within the State were $1,700.50.

Eight missionaries have been in commission during some portion of the year, and the churches to which they have ministered, have shared in the work of grace which has blessed the land. "Yet, all these churches," says the Secretary, "remain pecuniarily feeble, nor do they promise early self-support. Still, the Society feels that not one of them can be spared, and has acted on the principle of rendering the liberal aid essential to their existence, in the trying time through which they have passed."

The Society, in the death of its Treasurer, Gilbert Richmond, Esq., has lost one of its firmest supporters, as well as the Church of God a humble, earnest, and self-sacrificing laborer for the advancement of the Redeemer's kingdom.

CONNECTICUT MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Rev. Horace Hooker, Secretary; E. W. Parsons, Esq., Treasurer. Office at Hartford.

The receipts of this Auxiliary, for the year ending March 1st, were $6,694.52. The expenditures within the State were $4,664.08. The amount forwarded from the Treasury to the Parent Society, during its financial year, was $3,400, and to the Rhode Island Home Missionary Society, $500. There were received by the Parent Society: in payment of legacies, $8,002.04; from congregations and individuals, $11,494.67—in all $19,496.71; making the total from the State, $26,191.20; which is $211.41 less than the amount of the preceding year. The amount expended beyond the limit of the State, was $23,396.71, exceeding the amount of the previous year, by $1,240.00.

The number of missionaries in commission, during some portion of the year, is thirty nine. The main characteristic feature of the year, in reference to the churches aided, is their enjoyment, to an almost unexampled degree, of the renewing and sanctifying influences of the Holy Spirit. The number of hopeful conversions, in some of these churches, has rarely been exceeded during any year since the organization of the Society. No inconsiderable part of the converts, however, are children in the Sabbath schools, or young persons who have slight resources separate from their parents, so that the pecuniary ability of these churches has not been greatly increased. Their peculiar circumstances will make them longer dependent on their brethren, whose encouragement and assistance have been to them so great a blessing.

"There does not, indeed," says the last Report of the Society. "appear to be any valid reason for expecting that religious institutions will, for many years, be enjoyed in this or any other community, in due extent and vigor, without the intervention of Home Missions. From gradual decay, originating in local changes-if not from sudden shocks caused by more culpable instrumentality -even in millennial days, there will, perhaps, be members of the christian confederacy needing the sympathy and beneficence of their more favored associates. When there is no more room for the exercise of benevolence, in extending the Gospel where Christ has not been preached, this relation of strength and weakness; of abundance and necessity, may be essential to the healthy action of the Church. At any rate, the employment of a part of its means, in 'strengthening the things that remain,' is proved by the fruits to be 'well doing,' and we should no more be 'weary' in this work than in making new conquests."

PHILADEPHIA HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

The receipts of this Auxiliary, for the year ending March 1st, were $7,474.22. There were also received from this field, at the office of the Parent Society, during its financial year, $1,575.54, viz: from New Jersey, $980.99; from Pennsylvania, $184.05; from Maryland, $30; and from the District of Columbia, $80. The total contributions, therefore, from this region to the cause of Home Missions, have amounted $9,049.76; or less, by $594.53, than those of the previous year. The expenditures of the Auxiliary, during the year, have been $8,069.73, and the balance in the

Fifty eight missionaries have been sustained by the aid of this Auxiliary since the last Report, viz: 8 in New Jersey; 49 in Pennsylvania; and one in Delaware. Though the missionary congregations have suffered, in common with others, from the prevailing pecuniary embarrassment of the country, yet most of them report more or less of material, as well as spiritual progress. Three have undertaken the support of their pastors; one has completed a church edifice; and several others, by relieving themselves of pecuniary burdens, or providing themselves with improved accommodations, have conquered obstacles which have hitherto retarded their growth and prosperity. Upon several missionary fields, copious showers of grace have fallen, and on others rich harvests have been gathered, which were the result of seasons of refreshing enjoyed during the previous year. Two new fields have been occupied, within the period now under review, and the number of those still uncultivated is smaller than formerly. Three missionaries, however, have, since the last Report, been called to their rest and reward on high. Who will enter into their labors?

The Executive Committee, in their last Report, present the following cheering summary of the results which have been achieved, through the agency of this Auxiliary, since its organization: "This Society was organized, July 1, 1840. It existed a few years prior to this, as an Agency of the Parent Society at New York. Through the instrumentality of this organization, many a wilderness has been made fruitful, and many a languishing church revived, and thousands of souls converted to God. Its missionaries have regularly preached the Gospel at from 75 to 125 missionary districts; 45 churches have been organized, and 50 Sabbath schools; 47 churches, under its fostering care, have been raised to a position of self-support, several of which are now large and efficient organizations—radiating centers of moral and religious influence; 66 church edifices have been erected by the congregations, during their partial dependence on the Society; and these buildings, with few exceptions, are free from debt. Over 5,000 souls have been hopefully converted, and 10,000 persons supplied with the means of grace on the Sabbath. The churches have contritributed, during this period, over $33,000 to the various objects of christian benevolence. Several young men, trained in them, are now preaching the Gospel, either at home or in the foreign field. These churches, in various ways, have been sending forth a healthful moral influence, not only where they are located, but by the removal of active members to other parts of the Lord's vineyard. Many larger churches, at the East, have received valuable accessions from these feeble churches, and their influence has been felt in the far West. A Society that can produce such credentials, surely ought to enjoy the cordial sympathy, and generous patronage, of our ministers and churches."

CENTRAL AGENCY, NEW YORK.

Rev. Theodore Spencer, Secretary; J. E. Warner, Esq., Treasurer. Office at Utica.

The receipts into the Treasury of this Agency, during the year ending March 1st, were $3,201.55. Contributions have also been sent from this field to the Treasury of the Society in New York, to the amount of $2,183.63, making the aggregate for the year $5,385.18, which is less than the amount raised in the previous year by $1,160.17. The disbursements of the Agency for missionary operations on this field have been $3,585.73.

Twenty eight missionaries have labored within the bounds of this Agency during the period covered by this Report. They have ministered statedly to thirty seven churches, and have reached not far from four thousand and five hundred souls with the word of life. "Their labors," says the Secretary, "have been arduous, abundant and effective; and their zeal in every good work is worthy of high commendation. The work of collecting the children and youth into Sabbath schools and Bible classes has been prosecuted with much success. The cause of Temperance has been kept before the people; and though the public mind is less impressible on this subject than formerly, it is believed that no ground has been lost. In many communities the traffic in intoxicating drinks has entirely ceased. Several of the missionaries report special visitations of the Holy Spirit, by which the graces of Christians have been revived, and, in some instances, large numbers have been hopefully converted to Christ." The net increase in the membership of the churches, however, is but small, in comparison with the accessions made to them; and in some the losses have exceeded the gains.

The trees which were the first planting of the Lord on this field, are falling with age; and those of a later growth have been transplanted to bloom and bear fruit on the prairies of the West. This process still continues, and nothing but the earnest toil of the husbandman, sustained by the sympathy and aid of Christians in more favored regions, can save these nurseries from running to waste. For the sake of the fruit that may ripen on the soil, as well as of that which will be borne away, to be gathered from dis-

In former Reports mention has been made of the vast physical and moral wilderness of Northern New York, which forms a part of the field now under review. The Agency, and the ecclesiastical bodies covering this territory, have done what they could to ascertain its condition and supply its necessities; and many of the scattered sheep have been visited and gathered into churches. But though the laborers in the field have extended their ministrations over wider regions than they could adequately cultivate, yet multitudes remain as sheep having no shepherd. A missionary who has eight stations in Franklin and Clinton counties, mentions as many other points in those counties where ministers are needed, and adds: "If these places were all supplied, there would still remain, in the southern part of these counties, a district more than forty miles by seventy, as destitute and needy, if not as promising, as any portion of the West." This section of the State is rapidly increasing in population, and in all the elements of importance. Its adaptation to grazing, and its exhaustless treasures of lumber and iron, are attracting enterprise and multiplying facilities of communication with the markets of the seaboard. Along its northern and western border railroads are already in operation, and another, in process of construction, across the great plateau between the head waters of the Hudson and Black rivers, and passing through the heart of this vast wilderness, will accelerate immigration, which will soon transform these now dreary solitudes into fruitful fields. The Committee would unite with the local Agency in inviting attention to this portion of the State, and will cheerfully cooperate with their brethren there in sowing, over all those hills and valleys, the good seed of the kingdom.

WESTERN AGENCY, NEW YORK.

Rev. John A. Murray, Secretary; W. T. Scott, Esq., Treasurer. Office at Geneva.

The amount paid into the Treasury of this Agency, within the year ending March 1st, is $6,944.90; and the amount sent by the donors from this field to the office of the Society in New York, is $11,402.07, making the aggregate of contributions to the cause $18,347.07, or $588.40 more than those of the previous year. Of this sum, $9,800 were the avails, in part, of the noble legacy of the late Deacon Jabez Goodell, of Buffalo. The disbursements of the Agency have amounted to $7,798.78, of which $7,298.78 were expended for missionary purposes on this field, and $500 were remitted to the Treasury of the Society. It appears, therefore, that of the amount contributed the past year to Home Missions from this section of the State, $11,048.29 have gone to supply the wants of other portions of the missionary field. The whole sum raised in Western New York for this Society, since its organization, is $358,667, of which $167,488 have been expended in building up its own institutions, and $191,179 have been applied to the support of the general cause.

During the year just closed, sixty one missionaries have held commissions to labor within the bounds of this Agency, and have supplied sixty nine churches with the stated means of grace. In respect to the material interests of the feeble congregations, the past year has been one of severe trial. Much labor has been expended to prevent churches that had declared their independence, from falling back upon the hands of the Society, and to induce others still dependent, to apply for a less instead of a greater amount of aid. These efforts have been attended with gratifying success: and one evidence of the Society's efficiency is to be found in the fact that no larger outlay is reported. Its success is to be measured, not merely by the number of churches it counts on the list of its beneficiaries, but also by the number it takes, and keeps Notwithstanding the circumstances referred to, several church edifices have been erected, others have been repaired, debts have been canceled, and it is confidently expected that a few of the churches assisted will not renew their requests for aid.

But the most cheering result of the year's labors is seen in the spiritual fruits that have been gathered. Nearly every church has received important accessions from the world, and full one fourth of them report revivals of religion, several of which have been of remarkable interest and power. Forty, fifty, and even sixty have been added to a single church, and the previous membership of several has been more than doubled. Thus, while the year we are reviewing has witnessed much outward adversity and trial, it has been, to many a feeble flock, a year of the right hand of the Most High.

In reference to the recent history and present aspect of this missionary field, the Agent says: "For several years it has been increasingly difficult for a portion of our feeble churches to sustain the Gospel. The failure of the crops for several years in succession, the steady stream of emigration to other parts of the country, and the late wide-spread financial revulsion, have seriously affected this region, and made the struggle more earnest and desperate for the continued life of our missionary churches. Western New York has hardly begun to recover from these disasters. They are even now occasioning an unprecedented emigration. Thousands of families are forced by pecuniary reverses to seek a change of residence. The churches know not how to spare them, and their standing lamentation is, that their members are leaving them for the 'regions beyond.' Some of the missionaries, with wise forethought of their coming trial, and animated with the Spirit of their Master, are making special effort to reach with the Gospel the multitudes who are habitual neglecters of the sanctuary. some towns where an exploration has been made, it has been ascertained that full one half of the families belong to this class. They are literally heathen in the midst of us. If all our Home Missionaries will regard them as under their own charge, and accept the responsibility involved, a wide and effectual door of usefulness will be opened to them, and, with the blessing of God, a glorious harvest may be gathered to the praise of his great name."

The whole amount of contributions to the Society from the State of New York, during the past year, is $40,110.77, exceeding those of the previous year by $762.81; and the number of missionaries who have labored in this State, is one hundred and thirty five, or two more than were reported at the last Anniversary.

WESTERN RESERVE AGENCY, OHIO.

Rev. James H. Newton, Secretary; T. P. Handy, Esq., Treasurer. Office at Cleveland

The receipts of this Agency, during the year ending March 1st, were $2,431.46, falling short of the amount received during the preceding year by $305.54. Contributions amounting to $337.54 were sent from this field to the Treasury of the Society at New-York, making the whole amount raised for Home Missions on this field, during the year, $2,769.00, or $265.84 less than during the previous year, The amount expended by the Agency since the last Report, is $2,506.96, which exceeds the disbursements of the preceding year by $54.17.

The number of missionaries sustained within the bounds of this Agency, is thirty four, or five more than were reported the year previous. They have supplied statedly thirty nine congregations. Considerable accessions have been made to several of the missionary churches, and nearly all the missionaries have had cheering proof that their labor has not been in vain in the Lord. Nine churches are reported as having assumed the support of their ministry within the year. In several cases, however, this has been accomplished by the union of two churches for this purpose. This policy is enforced, not only by considerations of economy, but by the scarcity of laborers; and must be adopted to a much greater extent than hitherto, until the time when the Lord of the harvest shall send forth more laborers into his harvest.

A large number of churches on this field still remain destitute of the ministrations of the Word, and are in a feeble and languishing state. Others, from the effect of emigration, and other causes, sustain the means of grace with great difficulty, and may be compelled to resume their dependence upon this Society. "On the whole," says the Secretary, "the year has been one of spiritual progress on the Reserve; and in many respects the moral and religious aspect of the churches is encouraging and hopeful. Yet there must be a vast amount of faithful and self-denying labor performed, before this portion of the Lord's vineyard will yield the appropriate fruits of righteousness in such measure as it ought. We still have much ground unoccupied. There is needed more permanency in the pastoral relation, and less fastidiousness, not to say fickleness, on the part of the people, if not, indeed, on the part of the ministry itself."

In this region, as in the Eastern States, the missionary work has reached that stage when its principal office is, to strengthen the things that remain that are ready to die. The currents of emigration have borne away the pillars of once vigorous churches, that they may be wrought into the foundations of other similar structures in the more distant West; while immigration supplies their place with materials which furnish an increased demand for missionary labor, but no assistance in sustaining it. The population has thus become heterogeneous, and more minutely subdivided, than in most other places, into religious sects. A few years ago it was ascertained that not less than forty three sects, all professing to derive their creeds from the Word of God, were found within the bounds of this Agency. From such a variety and conflict of beliefs, has naturally sprung a plentiful harvest of unbeliefs and disbeliefs, presenting a formidable opposition to the progress of evangelical truth. In some instances the sanctuary of God, surrendered into the hands of the enemy, has become a synagogue of Satan; the incense of prayer and praise has ceased to ascend from the public altar; and the faithful few, in their exile, have wept as they have remembered Zion. To encourage and aid them in rebuilding their decaying altars, in recovering the ground that has been lost, and in making an aggressive war upon the forces of error, is no unimportant office of this Society. Each year witnesses old fortresses retaken, and advanced positions gained. These achievements are less striking, perhaps, than those which are witnessed in the newly settled portions of the country; but as conquests of truth over organized and established error, they are even more difficult, if not more important. If this whole continent is to be subdued to Christ, we must fortify and defend the posts already won, and reclaim those already lost, as well as push our conquests into new and distant fields. In this view we can hardly estimate too highly, the importance of the work which this Society is performing on the field of this Agency; and he in whose name, and for whose glory it is undertaken, will not fail to crown it in the future, as he has crowned it in the past, with his signal favor and blessing.

MARIETTA AGENCY, OHIO.

Rev. THOMAS WICKES, Secretary. A. T. NYE, Esq., Treasurer. Office at Marietta.

The receipts into the Treasury of this Agency, during the year ending March 1st, were $263.04. This is less by $16.18 than the amount received the preceding year. The amount sent from this field directly to the Treasury of the Society, is $257.89, making the total contributions to Home Missions, $520.93, or $46.93 less than the contributions of the previous year. The disbursements of the Agency have been $285.00.

Seven missionaries have labored on this field during the past year. Two of them have been sustained by the funds of the Agency, and the others by direct appropriations from the Treasury of the Society. One missionary, in consequence of domestic affliction, has been compelled to abandon the field where God was crowning his ministry with much success, and it still remains vacant. The other laborers have been permitted to prosecute their work without interruption, and with unusual tokens of the divine favor. To some of them, after a long night of toil, the day-spring has appeared, bringing a rich reward of their labors. The feeble churches have been much strengthened, and visible inroads have been made upon the domain of error and sin. One point is particularly noted, where a missionary has been accustomed, on afternate Sabbaths, to preach an evening discourse, his fourth for that day. "There was no church there," says the Secretary, "and very little religious influence. The people, however, became interested in his preaching and personal labors, which were abund ant. A prayer-meeting was established, and ere long there were inclinations of the workings of God's Spirit. There have been thirty or more hopeful conversions, and the whole aspect of the community has been changed. Steps have been taken to organize a church of thirty or forty members, and to erect a house of worship, which work will be accomplished with very little help. This church will occupy a central and commanding position in reference to the population of this region."

But while, in this portion of the State, the harvest is great, and the whitening fields invite the sickle, the laborers are few. husbandmen in the moral, as in the natural field, are attracted to the broad and fertile prairies of the remoter West. Yet this hill country of Ohio has resources and attractions which will insure to it a vigorous and intelligent population, and which will constitute it an important field of ministerial labor. It is, indeed, "a good land, a land of brooks of water, of fountains and depths that spring out of valleys and hills, a land of wheat and barley," "a land whose stones are iron, and out of whose hills thou mayest die"-The present rapid development of its material recoal and salt. sources, and its multiplying facilities of communication with other parts of the country, invite increased attention to its claims, both as a field of secular enterprise and of religious culture. The children of this world, in their generation, will be wise and prompt to gather its material harvests, and exhume its buried treasures. Shall the children of light keep pace with them in the work of converting its moral deserts into fruitful fields?

WESTERN OHIO.

Rev. LYSANDER KELSEY, Columbus, Agent.

The amount contributed to the Society, the past year, from this portion of Ohio, is $2,520.12, being an advance of $778.26 upon the contributions of the preceding year.

The number of missionaries who have labored in this portion of the State, during the year, is thirty six, or five less than the number reported a year ago. This fact does not imply any delinquency on the part of this Society, nor does it arise from the abandonment by missionaries of their fields of labor; for the feeble churches of this region are more generally supplied than at any former time. It is an indication of the success of the missionary work. Two churches, within the year, have undertaken the entire support of their ministers, and five others, by uniting with neighboring churches, have been enabled to relinquish foreign aid. The missionaries under commission have preached the Gospel, statedly, at seventy five stations, and have carried the heavenly message into many long neglected neighborhoods, bringing under the influence of the truth multitudes whose faces are never seen in the house of God. More than twenty of the missionary churches on this field, have enjoyed a season of revival within the year, in connection with which not less than two hundred and fifty souls have passed from death unto life.

"The pecuniary affairs of this part of the State," says the Agent, are in a very depressed condition. Business has not recovered from the shock of the last year, and an extensive failure of crops has occasioned much embarrassment to missionary congregations. Yet both they, and the missionaries laboring with them, have toiled on in hope, practicing severe self-denial, sowing the good seed, and, in many cases, reaping a plentiful harvest. I am happy to bear my testimony to the faithfulness and diligence with which they have labored, under their many discouragements, and to magnify the grace which has crowned these endeavors with such a measure of success. But much missionary labor will be required in this part of our State for many years to come. There are many destitute regions where devoted and self-denving men might plant churches, and lav, broad and deep, the foundations of many generations." We are happy to add that the stronger churches of this region are feeling, more and more, their responsibility for the spiritual culture of the desolations around them, and we confidently expect a large annual increase in their pecuniary contributions for this object. We doubt not the Agent expresses the general sentiment and purpose of the churches, when he says: "The progress of the past year encourages us to look forward to the time, as not far distant, when this part of the State will become self-sustaining in its Home Missionary operations. At this we are steadily aiming; and though new fields among us will be constantly opening. and demanding missionary culture, and others, now occupied, may continue to require our aid, we believe the time is not distant when Ohio will not only supply her own spiritual destitutions, but will also contribute largely to send the blessings she enjoys to the regions beyond."

The whole number of missionaries employed in Ohio, during the year, is seventy seven, and the entire contributions from the State to the funds of the Society, amount to $5,214.62. This sum is less than that contributed during the previous year, by $129.94.

INDIANA.

Rev. John W. Cunningham, La Porte, Agent.

The number of missionaries in commission in Indiana, since the last Report, is twenty nine, which is less by nine than the number reported a year ago. The contributions of churches and individuals in this State, to this Society, have amounted to $1,586.76, or $515.91 less than those of the previous year.

The missionary churches in this State have not escaped the pecuniary difficulties which have embarrassed all religious enterprises at the West, during the past year. Some of them have suffered severely, and the missionaries have suffered with them. Yet no previous year, it is believed, has witnessed greater progress in the missionary work. Several fields have enjoyed special seasons of revival, and all give evidence that the missionaries have not labored in vain, nor spent their strength for naught. They have extended their labors into many regions long neglected, and on some deserted public altars the fire has been rekindled. Three or four churches have been gathered; as many pastoral relations have been formed; several sanctuaries have been completed, and dedicated to the worship of God. Eight churches have passed from a state of dependence, and are now sustaining, unaided, the ministrations of the Word.

Early in the year, Rev. Henry Little, having been urgently solicited to undertake an important service in behalf of Lane Seminary, resigned his office as Agent of this Society for Indiana. Mr. Little was appointed to this office in 1833, and for twenty five years, with the interval of a single year, performed its duties with eminent fidelity and zeal. During most of this period, the principal part of Ohio as well as Indiana was comprised in the field of his agency, and for a time his labors extended into Kentucky and Tennessee. He has borne a prominent part in planting the religious institutions of these States, especially of the two former, and bears with him, into his new sphere of action, the affectionate regard of his fellow laborers in the missionary work, and of the churches he has so long and so efficiently served.

The post was filled, in the autumn, by the appointment of Rev. John W. Cunningham, paster of the Presbyterian Church of Laporte. He was already favorably known among the churches, and has been cordially welcomed as the representative of this So-During the last six months, he has been mainly occupied in ascertaining the religious condition of the State, and he represents, in strong terms, the want of additional laborers, and the encouragements which the field presents. After speaking of the vacant churches which should be immediately supplied, he adds: "In the great harvest field of Indiana, more than half of the counties of which have no minister, of our faith and order, we want more than a dozen ministers who, according to the grace of God given unto them, as wise master builders, shall lay the foundations of churches which shall remain long after their founders shall have entered into their everlasting rest. The faithful labors of such enterprising and cross bearing men, would soon cause many a moral wilderness in our State to rejoice and blossom as the rose. It is confidently believed that no State in our Union now presents a more inviting field of usefulness than Indiana. Some others may present more encouragement, from accessions made by immigration, but none from the new creations of the Holy Ghost. To this important, but too long neglected portion of the Lord's vineyard, we invite the attention of wise and devoted ministers who are seeking a field of useful labor. Come, and we cordially greet you, counsel with you, labor with you, pray with you, suffer with you, rejoice with you, die with you, and reign with you in glory! And soon, this State, in the full maturity of christian growth, shall become a co-laborer with the older States, in the spiritual education and training of the young and dependent members of our great national family."

ILLINOIS.

Rev. Aratus Kent, Galena, Agent for Northern Illinois. Rev. ELISHA JENNEY, Waverly, Agent for Central and Southern Illinois.

Ninety three missionaries have labored in this State, under commission from this Society, during the past year. This exceeds by eleven the number reported one year ago. The contributions to the funds of the Society from this State since the last Report have amounted to $3,875.53, or $934.11 more than the sum contributed in the preceding year.

In the field assigned to Rev. Mr. Kent, comprising the twenty four northern counties of the State, forty eight missionaries have been employed, who have supplied statedly sixty seven congregations, and have preached occasionally at a large number of outstations. Nine churches have been organized within the year, and four have become independent of missionary aid. Others, which hoped to reach this point, have been disappointed in this respect, and have been embarrassed in all their financial affairs by the unprecedented stagnation in business which has prevailed during the year. Only four or five churches on this field have reported seasons of revival, though nearly all the others have gathered some fruit of the harvests enjoyed during the preceding year.

The Agent for this part of the State alludes to the fact that just thirty years have elapsed since he commenced his labors as a missionary of this Society at Galena, which is still the place of his residence. On the 19th of April, 1829, after an unusually rapid journey of eighteen and a half days from New York, he reached his place of destination. Galena was then a small village of 200 houses, the center of the "lead region." All the territory now comprising northern Illinois, Wisconsin and Iowa, with the exception of the mining district, was yet an unbroken wilderness. No steamer had yet plowed the waters of Lake Michigan. On the site of Chicago stood Fort Dearborn; and where Milwaukie now stands, a single trader was trafficking among the Indians. No church of Christ existed, and no sermon had yet been preached to white men west of Lake Michigan and north of the middle of Illinois. During these thirty years, how great the change! Within that time this region has become the home of not less than 2,000,-000 of souls, and not far from 600 churches have been gathered there through the agency of this Society alone. Where else on the face of the earth, and in what other equal period of time, have such material changes and such spiritual achievements been witnessed?

In Central and Southern Illinois, forty five missionaries have been in commission the past year. That they have labored and have not fainted, amid the manifold discouragements that have surrounded them, implies no ordinary measure of faith and heroism; that but little visible progress has attended their labors, is a cause for lamentation, but not for surprise. The paralysis which has rested upon all departments of secular enterprise, has prevented most of the missionary congregations not only from assuming increased responsibility for the establishment and support of their religious institutions, but from fulfilling the pledges already made. The missionaries consequently have suffered not a little embarrassment. Nor do the worldly trials which have fallen upon the community seem as yet to have borne much spiritual fruit. Very few revivals have been reported, and the additions to the membership of the churches have been small. Yet something has been accomplished. One congregation, within the year, has become self sustaining. Eight or nine churches have been gathered on new fields, and the seed has been widely and faithfully sown, which will yet spring up and bring forth fruit an hundred fold.

The Agent of the Society in this part of the State commenced his official labors in May last; and though a residence of nearly thirty years on this field had made him familiar with its general features, he has, during the year, made an extensive and careful examination of its present condition and wants. His statements. and the reports of other laborers, show that this field has never held out greater encouragement to missionary culture than at the present time. Says one of the missionaries: "That aboriginal element of society, in Central and Southern Illinois, which has ever been inaccessible and hostile to missionary effort, is becoming, relatively, if not actually less every year. It emigrates as others immigrate. And when the enterprise and industry of the older States shall have seized upon these vacant prairies, unsurpassed in fertility, climate, and healthfulness, as is now fast being done, this element will be but as a drop in the bucket; and that drop, even, must soon be assimilated to the surrounding and master forces of society." To accelerate this process, and seize the advantages it affords to the prosecution of the missionary work, a large reinforcement of missionary laborers is requisite, and we hope will be speedily supplied. The Executive Committee have long felt a deep interest in this portion of the missionary field, and in supplying its necessities some of their most liberal outlays have been made. It is their wish and purpose, if they have the cooperation of the stronger churches in this region, to carry forward their operations there with renewed vigor and on a more extended scale.

MICHIGAN.

Rev. HERBERT A READ, Marshall, Agent.

The number of missionaries in commission in this State within the year covered by this Report, is sixty five. The amount contributed to the Society, during the same period, is $2,186.66.

There are in Michigan about two hundred and twenty one churches connected with the denominations cooperating in this Society, and about one hundred and forty six ministers, including those who have retired from the active duties of the sacred office. These churches have about fifteen thousand members. Eighty two of them sustain the ministrations of the Gospel without missionary aid. In some instances, however, this is secured only by the union of two or more in support of the same minister. Thirty five churches are vacant; and some of these are so feeble as to afford but faint hope of permanency. Eight churches have been organized during the year; six have become self-supporting; eleven new houses of worship have been dedicated.

Although revivals have been less frequent than they were the year before, there has been an increase upon previous years; additions upon profession of faith have been numerous, a growing interest in religious things is manifest, and, generally, the missionary churches have been strengthened and established. The benefits of previous revivals are still most sensibly felt.

In temporal affairs the past year has been a very trying one. The last harvest was every where below the average; and in some portions of the State the crops were to a great extent cut off. As a consequence, many of the missionary churches have found it extremely difficult to fulfill the pledges made to their ministers; many of the ministers have been compelled to practice self-denial, while some have endured great hardships, and under a crushing burthen of care and privation have manfully struggled on, with truly christian heroism refusing to abandon their work.

This State, in common with other portions of the field, needs an addition to its missionary force. Of the thirty five vacant churches, nearly twenty are located in places of prospective importance—most of them in villages surrounded by a good agricultural country, some of them in county seats that will ere long be centers of wealth and of influence. Now, in their infancy, these towns need a faithful christian ministry, that the foundations of many generations may be laid in the fear of God. The churches in these localities may at present be feeble, but they are surrounded with the elements of strength, and devoted, self-denying, able ministers would be sure, with the divine blessing, within a few years to make them centers of a permanent and varied usefulness. There are also important points where churches could be formed, with good promise of success.

Of the eighty two self-sustaining churches in this State, all but some eight or ten were either organized by missionaries of this Society, or were once dependent on its funds. Many of them are now in possession of commodious, tasteful, and costly edifices wherein large congregations are wont to assemble, from Sabbath to Sabbath, for the worship of God. Strangers to the Home Missionary work would be little likely, when contemplating the throngs of worshipers in these spacious temples, or when hearing of their munificent contributions, to conjecture that these very churches were once dependent on missionary aid. But cisterns filled with the living waters become well-springs of life, and continue to flow for many generations. Were the churches that have already risen to a position of independence in this State to be the only fruit of the Society's labors there, the money and the toil had not been spent in vain. These churches have, doubtless, already paid back to various objects of christian benevolence more than has been expended on them; and they stand to-day, and will stand for years to come, in the largest cities and villages of the State, fountains of universal blessing. What these are, those now dependent may be expected to become; until at last all the people shall have been brought under the influence of the divine word.—Many fields are already white for the harvest; other fields are green with promise; but laborers to care for them are not found.

WISCONSIN.

Rev. DEXTER CLARY, Beloit, Agent for Eastern Wisconsin. Rev. John W. Sherwin, La Crosse, Agent for Western Wisconsin.

In this State, one hundred and two missionaries have held commissions from this Society, during the past year, and $1,648.86 have been collected for the cause of Home Missions.

Wisconsin has been divided, for Home Missionary purposes, into two parts, the one including the eastern and southern portion, which was earliest settled, the other the newer regions of the north-west.

In Western Wisconsin, eighteen missionaries have been sustained within the past year, who have ministered to twenty five churches. Six churches have been organized; three new houses of worship have been dedicated; two are in process of erection, and preparations are begun for building several others. This portion of the State has felt the pecuniary pressure in a peculiar degree. Only two of its churches have reached the point of self-support. A year of good harvests would materially change the aspect of the field. But the missionary work, although compelled to struggle with many embarrassments, has yet made most encouraging progress. Less than eight years ago this whole region was an almost unbroken wilderness. Now, twenty seven churches have gathered round the banner of the cross, and with cheerful courage are bearing it on to further victories. Some of them have recently been blessed with revivals; all are working harmoniously in promoting the cause of Christ. New fields are continually opening before them as they advance; and the call for more laborers is still heard from counties wholly destitute of ministers of either denomination.

In Eastern Wisconsin, the Society has aided in the support, during the year, of eighty four missionaries, who ministered to one hundred and six churches, and preached statedly at forty stations where no churches had been formed. Eight of these missionaries are Welsh ministers, and one is a Norwegian. Upon this field there are forty one self-sustaining churches; three have reached the point of self-support during the year; and two, reported as independent last year, have found themselves compelled to apply for renewed assistance. Thirteen churches have been organized. Nineteen are unsupplied with ministers, most of them being quite feeble, and some nearly extinct. Four houses of worship have been completed, two have been enlarged, and eight are now building. Ninety six churches have meeting houses, and sixty six have none. Revivals have been enjoyed in not less than forty churches on this field-inclusive of those in self-supporting congregations; quite a number are now in progress; and members have been received on profession of faith into almost all. The whole number added to the churches embraced within the cooperative denominations, as nearly as can be ascertained, is 1,340 on examination, and 825 by letter, in all, 2,165—making the whole number of church members in the two denominations 9,080.

The past twelve months have been a season of great pecuniary embarrassment. The failure of crops for two years in succession, the general prostration of business, the heavy liabilities incurred in the construction of railroads, together with a general loss of confidence, have deeply affected the ability of churches to support the Gospel. Consequently, the amount of Home Missionary aid required has been increased, rather than diminished; the contributions to causes of benevolence have been less, and, in many instances, the missionaries have themselves been brought into great embarrassment.

But while God, in his wise providence, has been pleased thus to cloud the temporal prospects of the people and of the churches, in spiritual things, he has given them light; and the effects of the great revival of last year are still most manifest. They are recognized in an increased spirit of prayer, and a growth in grace, in clearer views of the Bible standard of christian experience and activity, and in a more entire consecration to God. A new interest is manifested in Sabbath schools and Bible classes, a deeper conviction has settled on many hearts that God has a great work for laymen to do, which has hitherto been sadly neglected; and a larger number of christian young men are turning their attention to preparation for the ministry. There has been progress in supplying destitutions and occupying wastes; valuable accessions have been made to ministerial strength and influence, and the churches are better supplied than at any previous time; new outposts have been established, and the boundaries of Christ's visible kingdom have been extended. And yet, large destitutions reported last year are destitutions still. In twelve of the northern counties of this field there are but thirteen ministers, and only fourteen churches. New settlements have been formed, during the year, and those that had been previously commenced have received large accessions, so that the calls for missionary labor are

"The patrons and friends of Home Misssions," observes the Agent for this portion of the State, "have much to encourage them. The history of Wisconsin, though brief, is full of interest. The expenditure of money and labor, in planting and watering churches, in establishing christian institutions and promoting reforms, are, in comparison with the results already witnessed, but as a handful of acorns to waving forests." But Wisconsin, as a Home Missionary field, is yet in its early youth. Coming years must witness a great multiplication of churches, or else vastly increased destitutions, and a lamentable growth of irreligion and immorality. Large numbers of its inhabitants are of alien birth. amounting, at the time of the last national census, to thirty six per cent of the entire population. The presence of so large a foreign element increases the difficulty of the missionary work, and makes its necessity more imperative. It would be indeed a strange negligence if, while sending missionaries abroad to proclaim the word of life, we were to withhold it from the stranger within our gates; and while giving it to the people of China and Japan, were to leave our own neighbors and our kindred to the tender mercies of the Destroyer. These immigrants from foreign lands, who have settled in such numbers within the State of Wisconsin, have not only come within our reach—they have planted themselves by the side of those who are bone of our bone and flesh of our flesh; and if we neglect the households of the stranger, we neglect our own.

IOWA.

Rev. JESSE GUERNSEY, Davenport, Agent.

The number of missionaries in the service of the Society on this field, during the past year, is one hundred and two; who have ministered to not less than one hundred and eighty congregations. Three of these missionaries have preached in the German, and one in the Welsh language. Twenty three churches have been organized; three pastors have been installed; six houses of worship have been dedicated, and arrangements are making for the erection of several others. One church has become self-sustaining. Contributions have been made to the Treasury of the Society, amounting to $1,278.54.

It is probable that no portion of the country has felt the pressure of the times more severely, during the past twelve months, than Iowa. Ministers and people have suffered together; and have, in many instances, exhibited a fortitude and generosity worthy of imitation. Notwithstanding the unparalleled scarcity of money, in many localities amounting to an almost total absence of any circulating medium, the voluntary pledges from a large proportion of the missionary fields are slightly in advance of those of last year; while the amount of aid applied for from these same fields is less, by some hundreds of dollars. That the missionary churches should thus hold their own, amid such universal stagnation of trade, and while suffering from the almost utter failure of the staple crops upon which the farming population relies for its support, is a fact that is full of promise for the future. For although some of those who have thus given their subscriptions are owners of valuable lands, they are yet "so entirely destitute of money, and of present means of raising it, that they may emphatically be said to have given of their penury." "Nothing else than the revivals with which the churches have been blessed," adds the Society's Agent, "could have begotten a spirit of self-denial adequate to such an emergency." For it must be remembered, that in almost all the towns and villages of this State are to be found families not a few who are temporarily reduced to a condition of dependence; and that their more fortunate neighbors are, in some instances, heavily taxed for their relief—a tax which has been most cheerfully paid. "I think," observes the Agent, "that no similar number of Christians any where give more, according to their means, or give more conscientiously, or with more willing hearts, than do the members of the churches planted by the American Home Missionary Society, in Iowa." This liberality of christian laymen finds its parallel on the part of the ministers. The hundreds of dollars saved to the cause of Missions, by their voluntary relinquishment of a portion of salaries already too small—rather than ask from an overburthened Treasury an increased amount of aid—furnish an example of cheerful sacrifice worthy to be remembered by all patrons and friends of the Society.

The revivals which many churches in Iowa were enjoying at the time of the last Report, with others subsequently developed, continued for several months, and resulted in a large number of hopeful conversions. Definite information has been received from not less than forty five congregations; in some of which the manifestation of God's saving grace was wonderful and glorious. In many places the religious interest still continues; and most of the churches are enjoying some of its fruits.

Church debts have increased rather than diminished during the year; for subscriptions that were relied on with confidence have failed. A few thousand dollars judiciously bestowed, at this juncture, in aid of congregations that are struggling to provide sanctuaries for the people, would greatly promote the spiritual efficiency of the churches, and hasten the day of their self-support.

Notwithstanding all the efforts made in behalf of this State, destitutions continue to stare us in the face. Twenty four counties are unsupplied with even a single missionary; and there is scarcely one of the four score counties of Iowa in which one or more additional laborers could not be profitably employed. Some eight or ten fields, in particular, need an immediate supply. Looking back only six years, we find but fifty five missionaries on this field, where now there are a hundred. The contributions to the Society's Treasury were then considerably less than one half those made during the year of commercial distress just ended. Only one missionary had then reached the Missouri; now, six missionaries are laboring along the extreme western frontier of this State, and four have crossed into Nebraska. Then, there were but six ecclesiastical bodies in the two cooperating denominations; now, there are twelve. Then, the rail-car had not come within eighty miles of the Mississippi; now, five railroads, connecting the lakes with the river, touch its shore opposite to Iowa. and seven roads are in operation within the State, and are all. notwithstanding the embarrassments of the times, pushing their lines toward completion. Along these lines villages spring into being, and the regions which they penetrate fill up more densely with population. It is manifest, therefore, that the Society has only begun its work in Iowa, and that it has not seen a tithe of the fruits that shall be gathered there.

MINNESOTA.

Rev. RICHARD HALL, Point Douglas, Agent.

Since the last Report, thirty four missionaries of this Society have labored in Minnesota, supplying some thirty seven churches and twenty out-stations with regular preaching. Twenty four of these congregations have enjoyed services every week, and thirty three, once in two weeks. Eight missionaries have labored in fields where, as yet, no churches have been formed. Six new fields have been occupied. Seven churches have been organized. Two houses of worship have been dedicated; within the past nine months, four have been completed, and one is now in process of erection. Contributions amounting to $571.85 have been paid into the Treasury of the Society.

The amount pledged by the congregations towards the support of their missionaries, is something over $6,000, and that pledged by the Society amounts to more than $9,000. Important aid in church erection has been received from the Building Funds of the two denominations; and yet many congregations have so felt the pressure of the times, as to be compelled to postpone the execution of their plans for building, till a more favorable season. Of the thirty seven churches, only ten have houses of worship finished; four meet in commodious halls hired for the purpose, while the remainder are obliged to share with other denominations the small school houses of the country, or to retire to private dwellings. Three young men have been licensed, during the year, to preach the Gospel, and are now doing good service under the patronage of the Society. Seven of the churches have been blessed with special influences of the Holy Spirit; but, at no time, during the last two years, has a general religious interest pervaded the State, such as has prevailed in some other portions of the country.

It is now ten years since the first missionaries of this Society came to Minnesota. During that period, there have been gathered by the cooperating denominations, and mostly by the Society's missionaries, fifty seven churches, which have now a membership of about fourteen hundred souls, and over twenty houses of worship -including those near completion. Almost all this is Home Missionary fruit. For of the five churches that have reached the point of self-support, three have been aided by the Society. It is obvious, that without such assistance very little could have been done, in these ten years, towards planting religious institutions in Minnesota. With all the help given, they have been years of unceasing toil and hardship-years, too, in which the difficulty of missionary operations has been sorely enhanced by the very great variations and reverses to which the general affairs of the State have been subjected. These checks have, indeed, been temporary, but they have been severely felt in every department of business, and in none more than in the Home Missionary enterprise. During the ten years, of which we have spoken, Minnesota has experienced no less than three important interruptions of its prosperity. The first was, the great and sudden diversion of the tide of emigration to California; the second, the visitation of the grasshoppers, laying waste a district of some two thousand square miles, during two successive seasons, with an intervening winter of great severity over the whole territory, and the Indian panic near its southern border; and now, the universal financial embarrassment, aggravated by short crops, has paralyzed business and brought multitudes into distress. Very few towns have made any progress during the year. The immigration has been very small. From portions of the State, more have gone out than have come in, and the Kansas gold fever is now carrying off not a few. It is in the face of such obstacles and reverses, that the encouraging progress which we report, has been made.

Such embarrassments, however, only postpone, they can not prevent, the growth of Minnesota. For in her climate and soil, in her abundant natural resources, in the character of her present inhabitants, and in the educational and religious institutions which they have already planted, Divine Providence has laid sure foundations for a great and prosperous State, the home of a hardy, enterprising, intelligent, free, and religious race. And ere long there will be another beyond. For the next wave of immigration will doubtless break in the valley of the Red River of the North, and will divide itself upon the prairies that stretch far away, across the national boundary, into the British possessions; so that missionaries and churches will soon be needed two hundred miles north-west of the Sauk Rapids. Meanwhile, in the parts of the State already occupied, six promising churches, two of which are provided with houses of worship, are without pastors; and five other important points need immediately to be occupied by capable and devoted missionaries. The work presses. Where shall the laborers be found?

KANSAS.

The number of missionaries sustained in this Territory, during the year now under review, is fourteen; who have preached regularly to more than twenty congregations, and to several others, occasionally. Nine churches have been organized, and of these four have already acquired considerable strength. Four churches enjoy the ministrations of the Gospel but a part of the time, and two are wholly destitute. Five church edifices are near completion. The contributions for the year have amounted to but $33.10.

In this, as in other portions of the missionary field, the recent financial disasters have put a serious check upon all social movements. During much of the past winter, also, continuous rains have made traveling well nigh impossible, and have greatly interfered with attendance upon religious meetings. In a few of the churches, there have been evident tokens of the Holy Spirit's presence, and souls have been born again. But the people seem to have acquired an appetite for excitement, which the course of events continually stimulates: so that often, when men have begun to give an earnest attention to religious things, some fresh occasion has furnished new fuel to the flames of worldly passion, and spiritual interests have lost their hold upon the mind. The scenes of violence, which so long agitated this community, have left their mark. The population of the Territory was from the first characterized by an unusual intelligence and energy; and the hard discipline through which it has passed has strengthened these traits, and developed them into forms not always the best. Many of the peculiarities of Western life exist here in an intense degree. Individual character, good or evil, stands out in bold relief. The force of early teachings and of old habits is much relaxed, and a tendency to skepticism shoots into sudden growth; the eagerness for gain stirs up bad passions; the Sabbath loses its sacredness; and various forms of immorality manifest a rank energy. The sickness, indeed, which was very prevalent in the autumn of 1858, and the pecuniary pressure which still continues, have put a certain check upon some of these evil tendencies, but have created embarrassments of another kind.

Notwithstanding all these distracting influences, however, the churches are manifestly progressing, both in numbers and in influence. The field is continually widening; applications for the organization of new churches are frequent, and of an encouraging tenor. The Territory is full of enterprise, and will be full of thrift, so soon as the business of the country has recovered a healthy tone; and with this must come a great increase of population, and larger demands upon the Society, both for men and money. The late discoveries of gold in the mountains upon the western frontier of this State, have started a sudden and a very extensive emigration thitherward, not only from Kansas itself, but from all portions of the country. Large numbers are reported as having passed the winter in the new mines, and ere the present year closes, the population of Western Kansas will be counted by thousands, or, possibly, by tens of thousands. Should present hopes be realized, permanent settlements will at once be made throughout the mining region, and over all the lands in its neighborhood that are suitable for cultivation or for pasturage, as well as along the principal routes connecting the mountains with the Missouri. The Society may speedily be called upon, to assist in laying the foundations of another State, among the fountain heads of the Kansas, the Platte, the Colorado, and the Columbia.

NEBRASKA.

During the past year four missionaries have been employed in this Territory, each occupying a field of importance and promise. Of the seven churches now in existence, two have been organized within the year, and three are destitute of the regular ministrations of the word. Only one house of worship has been completed; but preparations are making for the erection of two more. The contributions to the Society's Treasury have amounted to $38. Sabbath schools have been maintained in connection with most, if not all, of the churches, even where there has been no regular preaching.

In the face of difficulties that seemed almost insurmountable, the brethren upon this field have succeeded in laying the foundations of what we trust will prove a literary institution of high character; a building has been erected, and the Preparatory Department of the "Nebraska University" has been in operation at Fontanelle, since the first of December, 1858. An enterprise like this, begun in faith and prayer, and in the name of God and his Church, is full of promise for the future, and a fruit of Home Missions that can not fail, if it attain a healthful maturity, to bear, in its turn, most precious results, sowing far and wide the seeds of

In temporal things, the past year has been one of sore trial. Most of the members of the churches have been without money, and in straitened circumstances. The wonder is not that so little, but that so much has been accomplished. What has been achieved by the small number of laborers on this field, illustrates what might have been done, had a missionary force entered the Territory sufficient to occupy all its growing points. Wherever a minister has put forth faithful, persistent efforts, he has become the center of an influence which gathers to itself all the appliances of the Gospel, and becomes a controlling element in the building up of society.

Only three counties have yet been occupied by missionaries of this Institution. Of these, two are on the Missouri, and one is on the Platte and Elkhorn rivers. Nine other counties border on the Missouri, having a population of from six hundred to five thousand each. Three of these contain feeble churches in great need of the regular ministrations of the Gospel; and in others, churches could easily be gathered, but there are none to do the work. Adjoining these counties upon the West are others, at present but sparsely settled, but destined soon to grow into importance, and to be calling for additional laborers. Along the Platte river a line of settlements extends for two hundred miles, and several counties are already organized, though their population is yet but small.

For the last two years various causes have interfered with the growth of Nebraska; but the discovery of gold at the base of the Rocky Mountains will now tend to hasten its settlement. The region near the Missouri, and along the rich valley of the Platte, presents as inviting a field for agricultural enterprise as can be found in the great West. With a healthful climate, a productive soil, and an abundance of pure water, there is nothing wanted but a market near at hand, and facilities for reaching the centers of trade farther east, to make this one of the most attractive portions of the continent, and to secure for it a rapid settlement. Should the gold mines prove productive, the year which now commences must witness great changes; and, with all that can be done, may exhibit, at its close, a vast increase of spiritual destitution.

CALIFORNIA.

No additional laborers have been sent to this field since the last Report; and the Society has aided in the support of only six missionaries. The amount contributed to the cause of Home Missions by churches and individuals, is $358.62, a slight advance upon the previous year.

It is now ten years since the first home missionary set foot on the soil of California. Nearly all the ministers in the State, connected with the two cooperative denominations, have borne the commission of the Society. Their present number is twenty eight. Under their ministry, twenty five churches have been gathered in the most important centers in the State, most of them furnished with good houses of worship, and upwards of a thousand communicants, who are very equally divided among the several congregations. This little band of christian disciples has been a power in the land, "efficient in settling social order, and freeing society from the reign of vice." "In all places where the Gospel has been steadily preached, a public spirit has been cultivated, schools, and libraries, and literary societies, and benevolent associations have been established, and a general spirit of improvement is plainly manifest."

For several years, California has been suffering the reaction consequent upon its premature prosperity. Immigration received a sudden check; droughts have disappointed the hopes of miners; desolating fires have laid whole towns in ashes: commercial crises have harried merchants into bankruptcy; conflicting claims to farming lands have sorely delayed the development of agricultural resources; while the madness for gain, which has so raged in the hearts of the people, has, in many places, rendered social and religious progress impossible. The reaction has, however, been most salutary. The tone of California sentiment has greatly improved. Moderate expectations have taken the place of the wild dreams that so recently intoxicated the multitude, and sober industry is systematically developing the immense natural resources of this young "empire" of the Pacific. "In almost every respect," says a late missionary, whose opportunities enable him to form a reliable opinion, "the prospects of California are improving. The signs of permanency are of the most cheering character. The reaction of the Fraser River excitement is filling the State with men, families and homes. The overland mails predestinate a Pacific railroad. The feeling of isolation is passing away. Our State and County Agricultural Fairs are conclusive evidence of our agricultural and horticultural resources—resources, perhaps, superior to those of any other State in the whole Union. Our Industrial Exhibitions show that we can make our own tools, as well as we can raise our own wheat. The recent opening of China. the wealth of whose trade has built up nations into empires of the world, now points to the Golden Gate as the chief emporium of the vast commerce of the East. We feel these things coming on. We are beginning to realize that our position is changing fast from that of an outpost to a center." The opening of the Tehuantepec route has brought San Francisco within twenty days of New York: while by the various lines of steamships, and the new mail wagonroads through Arizona and through Utah, the Pacific coast is in almost daily communication with the Atlantic. Throughout the entire population of the State there is a growing disposition to make it their permanent home; and a new life blood of courage and hope is felt in all enterprises, both secular and religious:

In the missionary work, however, the upward tendency is only beginning to be felt. For a long time almost every change seemed to work against its advancement; and the faith and hope of both ministers and churches have been very severely tried. Fires have destroyed their sanctuaries; amid shifting populations, congregations have melted away; the rumors of a richer Eldorado in the north sent 30,000 men from their homes upon a barren pilgrimage, throwing whole communities into confusion; decisions of important courts have been inconsistent with scriptural principles, and unfavorable to the progress of Christianity, of good morals and social order; while several useful and honored missionaries have found themselves compelled to return to the Atlantic States, and it has been, hitherto, impossible to fill their places. Instead of new churches springing up in the wilderness and solitary places.

churches already established have remained unsupplied. At the present moment, three congregations that are able to support pastors without missionary aid, are destitute; and other important

But under the pressure of all these difficulties, neither the missionaries nor their churches have lost heart and hope. Churches, when deprived of their ministers, have devoted the money which would otherwise have gone towards salaries to the payment of debts; and ministers have toiled and counseled together with unflagging zeal and determination—laying plans for a more efficient Home Missionary organization; making arrangements for the education of young men for the ministry on their own soil; endeavoring to bring the public mind to correct views of the Sabbath, of marriage obligations, and the use of the Bible in schools: establishing at favorable points educational institutions of a high order; and laying, with careful hand and with many prayers, the foundations of a Christian University; in short, while feeding their own flocks with the word of life, they have contended, on this side and on that, against various forms of immorality, meeting the adversary under whatever form he has shown himself. turning their hand to every good work, pushing ever on the banner of the cross.

Great labors, however, are in prospect, before we can see California brought even so far under christian influences as are the States of the East. Of the 500,000 nominal Protestants within its bounds, only 7,000 have professed the name of Christ; and far the greater part of the wealth in their hands is not accessible in aid of religious uses. The State is still filled with multitudes animated with that love of money which is the root of all evil; and these can not be effectively reached without a very considerable increase of the missionary force. The times are now ripe for a fresh effort. The high order of abilities and of character, indeed, which the true economy of this work demands, renders the supply of the requisite number of suitable laborers a difficult task. But we will not cease to trust in that Providence who has led us hitherto, or to believe that God will raise up apostles to carry his word to the ends of the earth. Nor can we forget that the Romish See claims California as of old her property; and that, with 108,000 souls already enrolled under her banner, and abundant pecuniary resources, she is pushing forward with great energy, and not unsuccessfully, her schemes for education and control, determined, if possible, to stamp the rising generation with her seal, and to regain her old predominance. While we have no fears of the realization of these bold dreams, we can not but feel that God is demanding of us greater courage and energy in the prosecution of his work. With his blessing upon our labors, California shall yet become a garden of the Lord.

OREGON.

contributed to its Treasury $305.60.

Although this portion of the missionary field has risen, since the last Report, from a position of Territorial dependence to the dignity of a State, the real change in the number and condition of its people and of its churches has not been great. The immigration has been very small, and the financial embarrassment which has visited the East has made itself felt on the banks of the Columbia and in the valley of the Willamette. The excitement occasioned by the discovery of gold upon Frazer's river, aggravated rather than relieved existing evils. When good men had begun to hope that society was about to become settled on a firmer basis, and to advance thenceforward in regular steps of improvement, this sudden furor came over the community and foiled their expectations. Multitudes were hurried away in eager pursuit of gain; fields and workshops were deserted; and churches felt the loss of some of their most enterprising members. In the midst of such excitements, the whispers of conscience lose their power, and hearts become hardened against the truth.

Although, taking the year together, some increase of religious interest is perceivable, yet the progress in spiritual things has not been great. Few have been added to the churches by immigratian, and the wave of Divine mercy which has been flowing over the churches of the Atlantic shore has not reached Oregon. The sparseness of the population interferes with the growth of churches and the development of their power, and frequent changes and removals tend to diminish their strength and to repress their spirit of enterprise. Preachers, indeed, are numerous; and in a certain district, where an estimate was made, there was found to be one for every two hundred and eighty five souls. Most of these, however, were uneducated men, mainly devoted to secular employments, and rarely spending much labor upon any one field. None but a permanent and an educated ministry can do the work which needs to be done in Oregon.

The progress of the missionary work in this State has, it must be owned, been slower than was at one time anticipated; but it nevertheless affords grounds for encouragement. Churches have been organized, and their membership has increased; a female seminary has been established—in part by the labors of the missionaries of the Society—which has effectually dislodged a Papal seminary from its position of influence. A college has been founded, which, if it can but secure the funds that it is now seeking at the East, promises to be an institution of great and permanent value; the common school system has been fostered; intemperance, and all immorality has been checked; the observance of the Sabbath has been promoted—in one word, an indispensable foundation work has been accomplished, the results of which must become more and more evident as years advance.

"It was a great thing," observes a missionary, "to settle this territory with an American population. It was a grand passage in God's Providence, to give us a share in the wealth of California, while compelling us to cultivate our own soil and establish homes in Oregon. It was an overruling and gracious power, which held back the hand of the combined savage foe, two years since; for it is now well known that they were enlisted to exterminate the whites. Another great step ordered for us, evidently to a higher end, was the securing our Territory forever for freedom-and that, so decidedly, that we are admitted easily as one of the sovereign States of the Union. These steps have succeeded each other rapidly, as if, not far in the future, some still greater developments were yet to be made." And may we not now be witnessing the dawn of these events? Gold mines have been opened but just across the boundary upon the north; the valley of the Salt Lake has come under the control of the national government; the slopes of the Rocky Mountains are invaded by eager crowds; the highway across the continent is becoming more frequented and more safe; can it be long before a steady tide of emigration will be pouring down the Columbia to the valleys of Oregon and Washington? The indications of Providence are sufficiently distinct, to justify us in cherishing high anticipations and to oblige us to wait, with feet shod and loins girded, in readiness to enter into all this land and take possession in the name of the Lord.

CONCLUSION.

In looking back upon the year now ended, we are impressed with the fact that it has been, to the missionaries and their churches, a year of many trials. In poverty, and often amid sore hardships, have these faithful laborers persevered in their divine task—ministers and private Christians alike approving themselves, in patience and self-denial, good soldiers of the cross. In like manner, have those to whom the Society looks for the means of carrying on its work, demonstrated their firm and reliable attachment to the cause—manifesting a prompt and just apprehension of its exigencies, and a depth and truth of devotion most encouraging.

But if in temporal things the past year has been a season of trial, in spiritual things it has been a season of ingathering. Churches have chanted with joy their harvest-home, as they have brought together into the Lord's house the fruits of his abounding grace. While, therefore, owing to financial troubles and the consequent check upon emigration, missionary congregations may not have increased in numbers and in moneyed resources as in some years, they have manifestly advanced in spiritual strength, and so have laid a sound basis for an accelerated growth hereafter.

Thus has the season of man's weakness proved the hour of God's triumph; and while temporal riches have been taking to themselves wings, eternal treasures have been laid up where they shall never be moved. More than ever before, have the churches learned to put their trust immediately in God—looking not upon eloquent preachers and evangelists as mediators to bring down the presence of the Spirit, but going themselves to the Father, believing that to them that ask, the infinite blessing is given.

Surely, this renewed communion with God has not come too When we consider the depth of the corruption which has laid hold upon the popular heart, and the fearful tendency to public and private demoralization, when we bring to view the enormous prevalence of intemperance, the profligacy of politics, the spirit of scorn against Christianity that, subtly or openly, qualifies so much of our literature, the facility with which shallow novelties in religion are caught up, the obstinacy with which old errors and sins are defended, when we remember how large a proportion of the people come under no regular Sabbath instruction, and what multitudes of children are growing up without christian nurture, and how few professing Christians are actively engaged in their Master's work, and what broad wastes throughout the West and South lie desolate—in a word, when the reality comes before us, then, in proportion to the clearness with which the reality is seen. we feel that, in very truth, the blessing from on high has come to meet a dreadful want! It matters little what temporal reverses come upon the nation, provided they are such as to bring the people nearer to God. The vain confidence too often born of success may easily prove our ruin. In nothing does it become us to glory—neither in riches nor in strength, in the growth of population, in the subjection of nature, in the occupation of the continent, in the commercial conquest of seas, in development of political power, or in any triumphs or any renown, but only in the Cross of Christ and the indwelling of his Spirit. In this we may glory; for here is the crown of all hope, the consummation of all rational desire, the fulfillment of the highest aspiration.

It is in the light of such considerations alone, that we adequately apprehend the important work of the Society. Whether it shall ever be given unto it or not, to realize the noble aim of its founders and hold various households of the Lord in permanent brotherly cooperation, the privilege is manifestly granted it, of spreading the conquests of his kingdom in this land and bringing penitent hearts into loving union with his Spirit. Churches are founded by its instrumentality; communities are taught to revere God's law and to own his love; and souls receive the baptism of the Holy Ghost. God is laying across this continent the foundations of a temple, for his indwelling to the end of time; and it is right for us to feel that we are laboring on these foundations, for we see them yearly growing under our hand. This is the Lord's work, and glorious in our eyes. On the shores of the Atlantic, the gates of the Lord's house stand open to the strangers that flock hitherward for refuge from poverty or oppression; throughout the great valley, her numerous altars already invite the too unwilling worshipers, with their promise of consolation and forgiveness; while upon the sieras of the uttermost West, a sacred fire has been kindled, whose light shall overlook the Pacific, and rise, a day-star, to the farthest Orient. Soon, the glens of the Rocky Mountains shall echo to the sound of Sabbath bells, and the frightful wastes of Utah shall begin to be watered with streams out of Zion. Already, the Lord has caused a banner to be lifted among the hills, and hosts of the just and the unjust are flocking to greet it. It is the day of his power, when he is doing great things among many peoples. "Wherefore, awake! put on thy strength, O Zion!" "Go through, go through the gates; prepare ye the way for the people." "They shall yet call them the Holy people, the Redeemed of the Lord."

RELATIONS OF AUXILIARIES, AGENCIES, &c.

State and other large Auxiliaries.

Most of the State Missionary Societies were in existence before the formation of the National Society, and some of them-as the Missionary Societies of Connecticut and Massachusetts-were among the earliest organized efforts in our country for sending the Gospel to the destitute. They have voluntarily connected themselves as Auxiliaries with the American Home Missionary Society, from a conviction that greater unity of plan and efficiency in action would thereby be promoted.

The terms by which such Auxiliaries—acting on the principles of the Parent Society, undertaking the supply of the destitute within their own bounds, and paying over their surplus funds to the Parent Institution—are connected with the Parent Society, are such as to secure the following objects, viz.:

First—The Auxiliary is not superseded or overshadowed by the National Institution, but, on the contrary, is invigorated and sustained by connection

This is secured by the provision that the Auxiliary is the sole agency for this cause that operates on its field. It controls all appointments in the State to which it belongs. From it alone, so far as its means will allow, the feeble churches receive assistance. Thus a direct relation and strong attachment is cherished towards it, in the hearts of the ministers and churches.

Again—while the local operations of the Auxiliary are thus encouraged and sustained, its connection with the Parent Society is such as to awaken an interest in the destitute beyond its own limits, and afford facilities for reaching them. It is not only a Society for local purposes, but it is also a branch of the National Society, and, as such, has the control of all agencies for the collection of funds within its own field, and can direct the manner in which its surplus resources shall be expended beyond its own limits. Thus, the State and other large Auxiliaries are not merely organizations to help the Parent Society; they are integral parts of it, bound together in one whole by a common interest in and free access, through the Parent Society, to the great field to be occupied, and governed by the same general principles and rules in carrying on the work.

Agents and Agencies.

Besides preaching to the destitute and taking up contributions for Home Missions, the Agents of the American Home Missionary Society exercise a general superintendence of the operations of the Society within their respective fields. By correspondence and personal visitation they ascertain the wants of the destitute; assist them to obtain the preaching of the Gospel; and instruct and encourage them to develop their own means for its support. They receive applications for aid, and make such preliminary examination as may be necessary before submitting them for the action of the Executive Committee; and in other ways labor to insure a judicious and economical application of the Society's funds. At present the Society has in its employ no merely collecting Agents, nor any whose services are not required for other purposes in the regions where they labor. The Secretaries of several of the larger Auxiliaries are also the Agents for this cause in their respective bounds.

In certain districts, where the duties of an Agent are likely to be peculiarly responsible, there is associated with him a board of counselors selected from the region of his labors, called an Agency. These Boards of Agency differ from Auxiliary Societies, in that they have no independent existence, but are appointed by the Executive Committee from year to year, and are governed by rules which the Committee prescribe. Their office is to counsel and direct the Agent in carrying out the principles of the Society, and to give advice in relation to such local matters as may be submitted to them by the Executive Committee. The persons composing the Board of Agency, are selected for their intelligence and interest in this cause, and their influence in promoting it; and are so distributed over the field as to secure a personal acquaintance with its condition. The Agent of the Society is also the Secretary of the Agency with which he is associated.

These boards of counsel might not have been necessary, had the ecclesiastical bodies on the ground been able and disposed to pay sufficient attention to the missionary work, and to act as its directors in their respective bounds. But the ministers composing them are usually scattered over a wide extent of territory, and meet but seldom, and only at seasons when they are not much occupied with other business; and accordingly it has been necessary in some cases to organize agencies for this specific work. But in other cases, Synods, Presbyteries, and Associations have chosen to act as Auxiliaries to the Society, examining into the condition of the destitute within their bounds, and recommending the appropriate action for their relief. Ecclesiastical bodies thus related to the

Committees of Missions.

The American Home Missionary Society has ever regarded the ecclesiastical bodies as the appropriate judges of the standing of their own ministers, and of the wants of the churches in their connection. Accordingly, the commission issued to every missionary requires that his credentials be acceptable to the ministerial body of his denomination, within whose bounds he is appointed to And the various Presbyteries, Associations, etc., are invited to appoint each, a Committee of Missions from its own members, to receive application from its churches, and suggest to the Society the action proper in each case. Such a Committee constitutes the official source to which reference can be had for information and advice, in all matters pertaining to missions in the connection to which it belongs. This mode of cooperation has been preferred by numerous ecclesiastical bodies, from the first formation of the Society. It guaranties to the churches of each denomination represented in the Society, that their respective claims shall be fairly considered, with all the advantage of having the indorsement of the body to which they belong. The advice of such a Committee, acting in the name and by the direction of the ecclesiastical body to which they belong, is regarded as the highest authority in matters pertaining to the standing of ministers and churches in their connection, and has the same influence with the Society, as that of the Board of Agency appointed by itself.

There is one limitation to this influence, however, which ought to be stated Should any ecclesiastical body so far swerve from the principles of truth and gospel order, as not to retain the fellowship and confidence of the great body of the Presbyterian and Congregational churches in our land, that fact would cause its recommendations not to be respected, as a basis of action, by the Executive

As cases may occur in which the feeble churches may not be aware of the existence of any Board of Agency, or Committee of Missions, through whom to apply for aid, a general provision is made, that application may be vouched by any two ministers of known and approved standing, who can certify to the fact of the case. If the information thus given is not sufficient, other facts are sough by the Executive Committee, with as little delay as practicable, from the mos authentic sources from which they can be obtained.

Such, briefly, are the relations of the American Home Missionary Society to the various organs, through which the community seeks to act out its missionary feeling. It will be seen that this plan secures the united action, in the mission ary work, of those whose views of doctrine and church order admit of coöperation, and whose interests in the great field are essentially the same. This combination insures a homogeneous policy as to the manner and amount of appropriations, and the qualifications of missionaries; it has discouraged sectional feelings, and diffused throughout each part an interest in all the rest; and thus has formed ties between the West and East, along which has passed from the latter to the former a silent and invisible current of moral influences more valuable, if possible, than all pecuniary grants. At the same time the connection of the Parent Society with the various associations that act with it, is such as to secure to them entire freedom in the missionary work, in their respective spheres, and an influence beyond them, in cultivating the waste places of our common country.

Applications for Aid.

Feeble congregations, applying for aid in supporting the Gospel, are requested to embody in their application the following particulars, viz.:

The name of the church or congregation; the number of communicants, and the average number of attendants on public worship; the denomination and size of congregations immediately contiguous, with the distance to their places of worship; the total amount of salary which the applicants propose to make up, the portion of that salary which they pledge for the given time, and the arrangements that are made for securing it; whether aid is expected from any other source; and the least amount that will suffice from this Society; whether the minister for whom a commission is desired, is the pastor of the church, or if not, whether any arrangements are made or contemplated in the course of the year, with reference to his installment. These statements should be signed by the trustees and elders or deacons, or by a committee of the congregation, and confirmed by the certificates of two or more clergymen, acquainted with the facts. Also,

The name and post office address of the minister whose services they desire to secure; whether he is a resident of the place in which he preaches, and is engaged in any other calling than that of the ministry; his credentials; and the certificate of two or more ministers of known standing, as to his general character for piety, zeal, and acceptableness, as a minister of the Gospel.

Where the ecclesiastical body with which a church is connected has a "Committee of Missions" to act in their behalf, this Committee are the proper persons to certify the statements of the church, the standing of the minister, and his prospects of usefulness in the place where his services are desired; and the application should be sent to them for their indorsement and recommendation.

Applications, after being properly indorsed and recommended, should be addressed to the care of the Agent (or Secretary of the Agency or Auxiliary) for the region where the applicants reside.

As a general rule, the appropriations of the American Home Missionary Society are for twelve months from the date of the application; at the end of which, if further aid be needed, a new application must be made, containing all the particulars above stated, and indorsed; and recommended in like manner. And each congregation applying for renewed aid, should furnish, in addition to other testimonials, the certificate of the missionary, that they have fulfilled their previous pledges for his support.

The address of the Society's Agents and the Secretaries of its Auxiliaries will be found on the cover of its Reports and of the Home Missionary. Where no such medium of communication with the Society exists, applications may be sent directly to the Society's office in New York.

ADDRESSES

At the Thirty Third Anniversary.

Address of Rev. Edward S. Lacy, of San Francisco, Cal.,

ON MOVING THE FOLLOWING RESOLUTION:

Resolved: That the all-pervading influence of the Gospel is indispensable to the conservation of the institutions of our free country.

I hold, Mr. President, that the State which has recently sprung into existence upon the farther side of the Rocky Mountains, is a remarkable illustration of the truth of this proposition. That agent, gold, so powerful to control men, had been concealed, from the foundations of the world, until the country came into the possession of a Protestant christian people; then, almost simultaneously with the treaty and purchase, this great attraction was uncovered before the greedy world. People from every nation under heaven were drawn thither tumultuously by thousands, and without any premeditation as to forms of government, they arose spontaneously into republicanism. There never was raised a question as to what system of government should be adopted, whether free or monarchical: the strongest element of that emigration had been educated under the influences of the Bible, the open Bible, in the Sabbath school, and they were may limit to call any man master; they acknowledged no divine right in one man o govern his fellow; there was for them no king or pope or kaiser, but every man was priest of his own household, and king in his own dominion. There was only one great Ruler, and he was the eternal King, before whom all manind must bow. From this consciousness sprang the constitution of a free State, pontaneously—a self-organized government, which European nations look at with wonder and alarm; for they see that republicanism is the demand and the two of nature.

But the men who flocked thither, were of the most varied character. Many

But the men who flocked thither, were of the most varied character. Many rere persons who could not remain at home, and were glad to break away from he powers of society, and the threats of the law; many were desperate from rushing reverses. It was a settlement without families; arrangements were of made beforehand for the worship of God; hence the necessity of some gency to plant the institutions of religion at once upon that new ground. Early that movement, this Society put forth its hands. Early in 1849, its missionary as upon the ground, holding up the standard of the Cross among that wild and multuous people. How necessary that the Gospel should be proclaimed ere! I believe in the depravity of the human heart. The Gospel, which is e "power of God unto salvation," must be continually preached, or we settle wn in depravity. The Armenians were once Christians, and the Nestorians—aight by the Apostles themselves—and yet where are they? We have to send ssionaries, to bring them again to the knowledge of the truth. But here are an without the restraints of society—and I never knew the power of society er man until I went to California—surrounded by constant temptations; how a such a community exist without the all-pervading influence of the Gospel? here would be the limit of their degeneracy? There is no sister to be shamed, no mother's heart to be broken, no father to be dishonored, their ears will never hear the tale of shame, or if they do, it will not be believed. Men who have been relied on, as pillars in the church, at home, may there be found in the depths of degradation, and bold in the effrontery thereof. I have sometimes met instances where it appeared that religion had failed as a governing power; but I am led to believe, upon investigation, that in every case of open apostasy, it was the true character that was being shown—the mask had fallen! A place like California is wonderful for the revelations it makes of character. You have all heard the stories of our immoralities. They have been too true. The Sabbath has been desecrated with every form of desecration. I have known a candidate for the judgeship in a certain district, to frequent gambling and drinking saloons, and houses of darker name, and to appear in public places with these characters, previous to the approaching elections. And when inquired of in regard to this strange conduct, so contrary to the principles which he had professed to be governed by, he told me, that his "name had been put up, and he was bound to be elected; and that was the only way to make himself popular." He was elected! See what an utter degradation of morals that transaction reveals. Here is seen the indispensable necessity of the Gospel at the very beginning of that settlement, before the rapid fermentation of evil should have finished its work, and the world should see what is worse than heathenism—a denial of virtue and of God. But to show the necessity of a living vigilance by this Society. as the agency of the Church over this field, let me present the facts which make it certain that there is to be a great population there. Consider

1. Our mineral resources. The mines of California are frequently represented as already giving out. But the fact seems to be far otherwise. The extent of mining area, according to the statements of Dr. Trask, the State Geologist, is about 11,000 square miles. Of this, about 400 sqare miles have been worked, or broken. But little more than one thirtieth, therefore, has been touched, and this has not begun to be exhausted. Those great mountains are veined through with gold, and the deeper the shaft is sunk, perhaps the richer may be found the masses of ore. California gives you $60,000,000 a year; and during the past ten years, she has, by estimate, thrown into the lap of the world, six hundred millions of dollars! This is a sum beyond the power of the mind to comprehend; but yet the statement is true; and California promises to continue in the same way. This great fact must attract thither thousands and millions of human beings. Gold is one of the great powers of the world. It humbles upon their knees the proud and the learned, the old and the young, the beautiful and

There are in 2. Our agricultural resources have but begun to be known. the State forty one and a half millions of acres of arable land, and of grazing land thirty millions. Of this vast extent there have been inclosed, as yet, but half a million of acres. It has sometimes been supposed, that our long dry season would render agriculture very difficult. But having learned the times and seasons, and the beneficent provisions of God, our farmers find themselves in circumstances of great advantage. Their grain is never lodged by summer storms, never spoiled in the harvesting by long rains; but with no interruption, and no fear of any, they proceed from the beginning of harvest to the end-leaving their grain in the field in heaps, threshed or unthreshed, until prepared to remove Thus, even with our high prices of labor, they can send to New York market, and undersell the men of Illinois. We raise, as yet, but little more than what is required for home consumption. Yet the little exported last year, and the year previous, brought, I understand, a fair profit. Of the great productive ness of our soil, you have all, doubtless, heard, and perhaps have put it down as fabulous. But the truth is more than fiction. We who have lived there, can testify of that which we have seen, and which our hands have handled. Sixty bushels of wheat, is by no means an uncommon yield per acre; and in some cases, well evidenced, the yields have been eighty, ninety five, and in one case one hundred and ten bushels per acre. The largest crops of the West, I believe are forty or fifty bushels. In San José Valley, there is a field of barley, containing fifty acres, which, from one sowing, has given five crops, and the last was a yield of forty three bushels per acre; this all from one sowing, and, of course, one plowing. These "volunteer crops" are often very large.

For the production of fruits, California seems to surpass all other countries. One orchard netted its owner, last year, I am credibly informed, $80,000, and the previous year, nearly as much. Peaches grow to great sizes, sometimes measuring twelve and a half inches around. Pears weigh three and four pounds; a bunch of grapes fourteen pounds, and a strawberry has measured six and a half inches in circumference—and they ripen in abundance, from the 1st of April until the 1st of December. Our mountain sides will soon be covered with vines, bearing grapes of the most delicious quality. In France, the largest yield is 5,000 pounds per acre, and 2,000 pounds is a fair crop; in Ohio, 8,000 pounds is a large crop, and 4,000 or 5,000 is a large average. But in California, the ordinary crop is from 10,000 to 13,000 pounds per acre, and 15,000 pounds is not unusual.

The vegetables of California are even more remarkable than her fruits. Potatoes sometimes grow as heavy as eight pounds, and are yielded seven hundred bushels to the acre; a beet weighs one hundred and twenty five pounds; a cabbage, fifty pounds; a pumpkin, two hundred and sixty seven pounds; a sweet potato upwards of twenty three pounds. Our "mammoth trees" are the wonder of the world, and are worth crossing the Atlantic to see. The "Father of the Forest" now lies prostrate, and perhaps has lain for ages—the largest of the family. The tree is broken off three hundred feet from the roots, and is there eighteen feet in diameter. By the regular slope of the monster, he must, when standing, have towered four hundred and thirty five feet into the air!

For the production of such things, what a soil, and what a climate are necessary! There never was a more genial clime, warmer suns, or serener skies. All climates desirable for health or comfort, lie within a day's travel. You wear winter clothing in San Francisco, protected by a light overcoat; step on the Sacramento boat in the evening, and you awake in a hot summer morning. In many portions of the State, flowers bloom the whole year round in the open

Concerning our commercial advantages, it is to be remembered, that our State lies facing those vast oriental nations, whose trade has enriched whatever countries have been permitted to take part in it. The recent treaty has prepared the way for new commercial enterprise. The harbor of San Francisco would shelter all the navies of the world at once, and her Golden Gates open right over against these mighty nations.

Consider all these things—the vast, absolutely incalculable mineral wealth, the unrivaled agricultural resources, the healthfulness of the climate—for you no where see such noble men and women, no where such blooming children—and it is certain, that there must be a vast population upon that Pacific side of our great country. Men will go where they can live, and take delight in life, where health and joy come to them from the earth and the skies.

I have spoken only of advantages, of wonders, of wealth. There are disappointments, sickness, discouragement, wickedness, death, every where; these belong to the lot of man. Ministerial labor there, is difficult, from the very fact of the chances of great prosperity. There is no place upon earth, I believe, where it is more difficult. Therefore, from all these things, the necessity of the occupancy of that field by the Church of Christ, is but the more apparent. costs much. But cost must not be feared in such an undertaking. sent or sustained there, seventeen ministers of the Gospel, and they have built as many churches; but you must not think of stopping here. That wonderful country must be the Kingdom of Christ. The foundations must be laid deep and broad, and in season. There is Eldorado County, with nearly 20,000 people, I believe, but with only one minister of our denominations in it—a territory nearly as large as some of the New England States. We now want five men: three for churches vacant, and two to do as Paul did in the regions round about Corinth and Colosse, as an Evangelist, raising the ensign of Christ, and preaching, wherever he can find men-in camps, where it is not advisable to build churches-where men hear no sermons, year after year, unless it be a funeral sermon. We want two such men, to go about, preaching on evenings and on Sundays, in localities where there are no churches, and where there never will be any. These five, we ought to have this yery summer.

It may seem strange, in the midst of gold, that we solicit aid. But we do, and we do it with boldness of face. (1.) There are few christian people there in proportion to others. (2.) Every thing has had to be built from the foundations, at vast expense. (3.) Men get rich there, and come East to spend it; or they die, and bequeath it all to friends who live here; and therefore we feel that we have a right to ask your help, and to expect it. We have enriched every one of you, and now we want your aid in building our churches and our college. We have there an institution upon which we have expended upward of $20,000; but this is not enough—we are in debt; we want a library and apparatus, and buildings. We can not send our children here, as they can from the Western States, to be educated; they would sicken and die, and be sleeping under the clods of the valley before we could even hear of it. Our ministers must be educated there. They are converted in our churches, and we want to watch their growth. There are now in my church six young men, who are very anxious for an opportunity to study for this great end. Two are now in school; one is at sea, studying as he can; the others are waiting their time. We must have schools for the sake of the Church of Christ, for the sake of our country, schools where the mind may be pervaded by the influence of the Gospel, where the growing minds of the coming generation may be secured for Christ. We give you our money by millions—we ask in return a few thousands. There are rich men here, who have devoted themselves and their all to the service of God. How can you better have a perpetual power of good in the world, than by endowing an institution of religious learning, that shall be to that side, what Yale, and others, have been to this—blessing the generations of your race, until the end of time? Noble and glorious idea! I ask, my fellow citizens, that you shall sustain the Church of God, and all her cherished institutions, with no sparing hand; sustain this Society, in its generous endeavors towards us, and you will see, and the world shall see, that the great Republic on that sun-setting side of the mountains, shall be the Kingdom of our Lord, and of his Christ forever.

"Westward the course of empire takes its way;
The fifth shall close the drama with the day—

Address of William Curtis Noyes, Esq., of New York,

ON MOVING THE FOLLOWING RESOLUTION:

RESOLVED, That a diligent and successful prosecution of the Home Missionary work, is essential, not only to the continuance and improvement of our religious character and privileges; but also, to the extension and perpetuity of the civil institutions which secure to us the blessings of liberty.

The proposition embraced in this resolution, may startle some of my hearers who are accustomed to view the great cause in which this Society is engaged, from one only of the many headlands which jut into the ocean of its operations. It is well, however, to contemplate its purposes and objects from a different point of observation, in order that its unequaled importance may be felt and acknowledged. No thoughtful man will undervalue the work of the Society, in its purely religious aspects; but many who give it scarcely a passing thought, will be induced to lend it their favor and aid, if convinced that it has political and economic bearings, which may not be overlooked without detriment to the community. I do not use the word political in the degraded sense to which it has been so generally reduced, but in a higher and nobler one; as pertaining to sound policy, to the administration of civil government, to a just regard for, and distribution of right among men in their several stations and relations. In this sense only one other subject—the salvation of immortal souls—is worthy of being its rival. Nor must it be supposed that the necessity for the vigilant proscution of the work in order to the conversion of men is under-estimated. Never, until the day of Millennial glory arrives, will that necessity cease; for it exists in the corrupted nature of man, that tendency which inevitably leads him, as a general rule when unregenerate, to prefer evil rather than good. Even in this day of light and knowledge, this disposition exhibits itself among all classes, and in private and official stations; producing, as it always has done, violence, disorder, oppression, and misrule. It shows itself in the family circle, in the place of public resort, in the jury box, upon the judicial bench, and in the halls of legislation. It seeks to pronounce the sale of liquid poison. resulting in the destruction of the temporal and eternal interests of hosts of our people, and among them many of our most valuable citizens, as a proper branch of political economy, and to elevate the right to carry it on to the rank of a fundamental principle of government, superior to all laws and constitutions. It aims to declare by the aid of medical science—the noblest and kindliest of human achievements—that a series of successful forgeries is only the manifestation of a disordered intellect—a moral insanity, which deserves, not punishment, but benevolent commiseration. In one section of the country it appeals to a jurythat great landmark of Saxon liberty—to disregard, and they do disregard, laws demanded by the universal voice of Christendom for the suppression of the slave trade; and what is worse and still more abhorrent, it seeks to raise that unholy traffic from the scorn and degradation into which it has fallen, to the dignity of a missionary enterprise—perhaps, in the opinion of its advocates, to a rivalship with this Society. In another section it makes an almost equally successful appeal to the same body, to set at naught the Federal Constitution, the only Personal liberty is, indeed, invaluable, but it must, like all other human rights, be regulated by the law and the Constitution; and they who exhort to the willful violation of either, invoke universal anarchy and contribute in no small degree to the demolition of the fair edifice in which all our liberties are enshrined. The tendency alluded to perverts the precepts of the Bible and the teachings of God to its base uses, and pronounces revengeful murder, not a felonious killing, but a judicial sacrifice; and judge and jury reecho the blasphemy. As a warning to the licentious, such a doctrine is not without its uses, but its general adoption would sap the foundations of individual safety and social order. and such things as these, abundantly prove that this Society, how active and useful soever it may be, can perform only a small share of the work which invites its exertions and demands all its energies.

But passing these and other like considerations, with the sincere assent of the understanding and the heart to their paramount importance, let your attention be directed to the blessed influences which the Society must necessarily exert in forming the character and controlling the destinies of the new towns and settlements which are springing up in all parts of our extended country, and from which our new communities and States must be formed. While many of the emigrants to these secluded and far away districts come from foreign lands, much the larger portion of them are from the older States, and leave behind them-oh! how great sometimes is the sacrifice—the advantages of refined association, of organized society, the schoolhouse, the town hall, the church, and the sound of the preached Gospel. Much privation and suffering must always attend such enterprises, whether conducted by individuals or by large bodies of men, even when impelled as our Puritan ancestors were by a desire "for the glory of God and the advancement of the Christian Faith." The time necessarily occupied in providing for mere physical wants, in subduing the forest, in tilling the ground, and in providing new habitations for themselves and their families, does not permit much heed to be given to more important interests, and as a consequence, while there may be with some, reasonable personal decorum in private conduct, and much devoted piety, there are a large number of others who throw aside all restraint, as if freed from the obligations imposed by civilization; and hence, there is also the absence of all established and united order, resulting not unfrequently in general license and lawlessness. The interesting relation which has just been given by the speaker who preceded me, of the condition of California after the great rush of emigration to that region, of the character of its heterogeneous population, how most of them, including many professors of religion at home. laid aside their morality and religion, and how the reign of vice and misrule prevailed, is unexpected but reliable testimony to the truth of these observations. It manifested itself there, as under like circumstances it always will, in the desecration of the Sabbath, in border thefts, in the violation of family ties and duties, and in the organization of spontaneous tribunals to check and to punish these and similar outrages-a remedy scarcely to be preferred to the evil it corrects; and but for other aid the inhabitants must inevitably continue to descend in the social scale. Only a very few of such districts in the early stages of their progress can sustain the regular institutions of the Gospel; in fewer still, can the inhabitants carry with them a Gospel minister, or support him, or build an edifice in which God may be worshiped; and without these there can not be a well regulated town, village, or community. This great want it is one of the leading objects of this Society to supply. It sends to these remote settlements as well as to destitute localities nearer home, the living preacher, to dispense the word of Truth, and to teach thereby man's duty to his neighbor, to society, and to God. He is usually a man of liberal education, of various degrees of acquirement in most of the elements of human knowledge, in many instances, of refined association and cultivation, he has had the advantages of religious and theological training and education, and above all, and more than all, is of approved pious life and character. But he goes not alone. He is the head of a christian family, and he regards the family institution as sacred, established for the wisest purposes, lying at the foundation of all civil society, and he strives to ennoble and protect it. As it embodies the type of civil government, he renders it obedience and respect, and seeks to mold the people around him into a christian community, with well appointed and good men for their temporal guides and rulers. His own household is an example to separated or disturbed or irreligious households, and they are induced to copy its spirit and imitate its virtues. No, he does not go alone. The spirit of his Master accompanies him; the spirit to do good, to benefit his fellow man, to take from him the evil of sin, and to make him a child of holiness. Moreover, he takes with him the Bible—God's recorded will to men, and he makes it the companion of his life and the ruler of all his conduct. Through its agency he communicates divine knowledge to the benighted, and leads them to repentance and reformation. The beneficial effects of his labors and anxieties are witnessed, in turbulence giving place to gentleness; the dram shop to the school and the church; intemperance to sobriety; profanity to prayer; Sabbath breaking to Sabbath keeping; idleness to industry; denial of God to his reverence and worship, and a disorderly and licentious community to a well regulated and orderly one; for, from a knowledge of and obedience to the precepts of the Bible, private and public thrift and good social order are sure to follow. Home Missionary in a new settlement embodies in his own person some of the most important functions which can be committed to man for his exercise. He is the distributor of tracts and Bibles, the founder of Sabbath schools, it may be the schoolmaster of his neighborhood, it must be the teacher of divine truth; the example and guide in civil affairs, where society is in a formative state, and the comforter of the afflicted and the dying. Well may the dignity of the Missionary calling be the theme of praise. Well may the self-denying men who embark in it, amidst all their trials and hardships, regard themselves as discharging the highest duties to their race. Much as I love another profession, and believe in its usefulness and necessity, that of the Missionary, in its ends and aims, is higher and nobler, and, oh! it is nearer to heaven.

There must necessarily spring, therefore, from the well-directed efforts of every Home Missionary an advanced state of civil society, in all the regions which come within the sphere of his operations. Such a result is inevitable. The consequences are also obvious. The settlement has increased, its population quadrupled, isolated action is no longer possible, and civil government in some of its forms must be organized. The first want of such a community, is to be well governed, by rulers of principles like its own, selected by its own choice, to have its public affairs administered upon the maxims by which the individuals composing it have regulated their own; in short, to become a town, village, or county, with adequate provision for self-government. When this time has arrived, such is the activity of our people, that the desired end is soon accomplished, and from the aggregation of these, there soon arises a free, intelli-

If assent is not readily yielded to these views, contemplate the other side of the picture. Figure to yourself border settlements in which there are no such sanctified influences at work. They may easily be found. They are the very opposite of what I have described — what California was, perhaps is — what a portion of Vermont was more than half a century ago, and what Texas was within a few years past. The redemption of one of these, entirely; and of the others partially, from the evils which environed them, has been owing in no inconsiderable degree, to the labors of the missionary and the preaching of a free Gospel.

My duty on this occasion is not completely performed, until I have adverted to some means of making my observations practically useful. necessities of the cause and the rapid increase of our population, render the employment of a larger missionary force absolutely essential. In 1860, we shall have thirty millions of people; more than half of them beyond the Atlantic slope, and many thousands of them in districts where their spiritual wants must be unsupplied, save by the Home Missionary Society and kindred associations. The expense of sending one missionary, under the auspices of this Society, is small. The trifling sum of $240 will pay for an entire year of missionary labor. The sums wasted, and worse than wasted, in a city like this, on its frivolous and wicked amusements, its luxuries and its vices, would support an army of missionaries and advance the cause of civilization and Christianity half a century. The rich may furnish many from their abundance. The poor, one, or contribute to the support of one, from their poverty; and be no poorer, but richer far and holier, for their self-denial, From the former, no sacrifice of ease or comfort is required. They may retain even their luxuries and yet contribute liberally to the missionary work. No man need abandon his costly equipage; no woman need lay aside her India shawl - both have performed a useful office to humanity by the labor which produced them, and which has put bread into the mouths of the hungry or the famishing, in our own country, or on the sunny plains of Cashmere. No, keep the equipage, it may add to your dignity and importance - wear that splendid shawl, it gives grace and beauty to your person-but take some of the wealth which is behind them, and which their possession implies, to give the bread of everlasting life, to the thousands who are standing with open lips ready to receive it Yes, become a missionary yourself, by proxy, if you can not do it in person, and comply with the last and most solemn injunction of the Redeemer: "Go ye, into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature."

Examples are not wanting to stimulate you to an active performance of this.

Not long after the beginning of the present century, in one of the villages that skirt our own beautiful Hudson, there was a pale, intellectual youth, devoted with great assiduity to study and to books. He became a student of the law, distinguished for his progress, long before he could receive even its lowest honors. As such, and because he was such, he was called to the capital of the State, to share the labors of its highest law officer. There, he became a devout man; adding to his other graces those of piety and religion. His career was worthy of such a beginning. Within a comparatively short period after his admission, he attained distinction in his profession, and the highest rewards of the bar were his, in rapid succession; terminating in the highest law office of the Federal Government. Subsequently, he took up his residence in this metropolis; and for more than twenty years illustrated and adorned the annals of his profession, as a christian lawyer; discharging his duties to his clients, to his fellow-men, and to his Maker, with equal fidelity. Of his talents and learning, I need not speak — they are known to every one. Of his gentleness and kindness, all who knew him retain the sweetest recollections; and of his purity of life and sanctity of character, his three-score years gave constantly accumulating evidence. Seeking relaxation in a foreign country from exacting professional duties, he found, as all must find, the mutability of human hopes; and he rests now among his kindred, whom he loved so well. What better record could he have left, than that for more than a quarter of a century he had been a teacher of christian civilization, and an active preacher of the Gospel to the destitute, through the agency of the American Home Missionary Society; and that during all that time, amidst the frowns as well as the smiles of what men call fortune, he had sustained alone one of its missionaries.

I hold up the example of Benjamin F. Butler for imitation. Well may it be followed; for it points to duty, to God, and to Heaven. The great master of Roman eloquence, without any true knowledge of the future life, could only write of his compeer and friend Hortensius, when afflicted by the news of his death, "Quoniam perpetua quadam felicitate usus ille, cessit e vita, suo magis sugrum vivium tempore;" but with a better revelation of that life, and of the resurrection of the just, we may say of our deceased brother, "he has fought the good fight, he has finished his course, he has kept the faith; henceforth, there is laid up for him a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, shall give him in that day."

Address of Rev. Henry M. Dexter, of Boston, Mass.,

ON MOVING THE FOLLOWING RESOLUTION:

RESOLVED, That as personal holiness is the necessary fruit of Christianity, within the soul, so Missions (first Home, then Foreign) are but its natural development in the world without.

If a tree would thrive well and do justice to God's idea of it, and man's need of it, it must have the right soil and climate. You can grow oranges in a half-barrel of loam in your back-yard; but not by the cargo, nor for the pleasure of the palate. So if any great moral work is to be done on the earth, it can have but a feeble existence, so long as it has merely a faint understanding and limited supply of those first principles, from whose thorough comprehension and generous application only it can derive permanence and strength.

We used to think that we had a good kind of piety here, in this country, generations ago; and, indeed, men are not wanting now who go up and down in the earth, and emit indignant protests to and fro therein, in the endeavor to persuade the people that the former days were better than these, and that we ought to have no manner of patience with the oak of the present until we have crowded it back into the acorn of the past. But we all know that the piety of the land in the days to which reference is made, with all its doctrinal soundness, had but little unction, and next to no feeling of response to that great command, in obedience to which alone the millennium shall come. When God fanned into a flame, in the minds of a few men, the glowing thought of Foreign Missions, the great question which had to be asked long and doubtfully, before it could be answered, was, "Can men be sustained by the churches in a mission to the heathen?" And even now, after so many years of demonstration of the blessedness and glory of the missionary work; after so many pungent popular appeals, tending to arouse the masses of the christian community to appreciation of, affection for, and devotion to that work; we still find ourselves doubtfully asking, for substance, the same question: "Can the Home and Foreign Boards be sustained by the churches, in sending out laborers to all new fields that whiten for harvest before our eyes?" The very fact that such a question can still be asked reveals the fact that the missionary work has not yet settled down, in the minds of the Church, upon its firm basis of everlasting principle. Nobody inquires "Can a man be sustained in the endeavor to become eminently holy?" We all understand that personal repentance and sanctification is a duty, which must be done at all events; concerning which, no questions can be asked or answered. Nobody inquires, "Can I afford to support my aged father—my invalid sister—my infant child?" These are things that must be done; whatever else is left undone. Now the very fact that the work of missions is drifted down into the domain of things uncertain, proves that the Church has not yet come to regard it as a duty pressing upon its conscience with the same weight as its acknowledged and inevitable obligation to purify itself, "even as He is pure." It may well be doubted, indeed, whether Christendom has ever yet got thorough hold of the real root of Gospel principle, out of which the work of missions grows—so as to regard obedience to Christ's last command as an inevitable personal duty, resting—with all the solemnity of a vital connection with personal salvation—upon every christian soul; and not a merely desirable and useful work-when it can be afforded. They tell us that the sweetest and truest strains in the music of our grand masters of song are often, swan-like, their last. It is sometimes so in human The real essence of a soul's history—the cardinal thought which has shaped its activities-finds clearest recognition in that moment of intense selfconsciousness which precedes the rending asunder of the soul and the body. The death-bed is a great revealer of thoughts, intents, realities. In examining carefully, of late, the last recorded utterances of a large number of Home and Foreign Missionaries, who have gone from their work to their reward. I have been struck by the great advance over the common christian theory on this subject, which has been manifested in their dying words. With a remarkable unanimity—almost as with one voice, and many and many times in nearly the same language—they have avowed their conviction of the vital relation of the missionary work to all genuine Christian character. They have not felt that in being missionaries they have earned any title to unusual honor, or done any thing more than it was their duty to do; any thing more than it is the duty of all-in some manner-to do. They have recognized their dependence upon Christ for salvation, with the necessary correlate that, because he laid down his life for us, we ought to lay down our lives for the brethren.

Let us see, now, what is the exact relation of the central and controlling idea of Christian missions, to the central idea of the Gospel; so as to determine the nearness or remoteness of the missionary branch to that great elemental thoughtroot, whose sap must be the foliage, and flowering, and fruitfulness of every

1. Jesus Christ came into this world to save sinners. This involves the previous fact that the whole world—in all its ages, nations, tribes, families, individuals, thoughts, aims, affections, volitions—needed salvation; being wholly alienated from God, worldly-minded, sensual, corrupt. It involves the previous fact that the Infinite, paternal Jehovah, brooding in sad affection over these selfish multitudes, these sinful generations, while turning his holy face in loathing away from the abominations of their guiltiness, yet could not bear that any should perish, and therefore gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life; sending him into the world, not to condemn the world, but that the world through him might be saved. So far then, as God, the Father, was concerned, it is clear that Christ came not to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance. But Christianity is simply helping Christ do his work; in other words, it is Christ's idea, purpose, and system of saving sinners, brought down and adapted to human coöperation, so that every body who loves Christ may walk as he also walked, and work as he worked. Therefore it is plain that God, the Father's, idea of Christianity must be that of helping Christ save sinners.

Nor are we left in doubt that this is Christ's own idea. In the volume of the book it is written that he said: "Lo, I come to do thy will, O God!" That will was, that He might be able to be just and yet justify the penitent sinner. To make this possible was the work which our Saviour undertook; to which, from Bethlehem to Calvary—becoming obedient unto death, even the death of the cross—he gave himself; to which, from the sepulcher to Olivet, and from Olivet to that still distant hour when time shall be no longer—ever living to make intercession for us—he gives himself with unique and eternal

While blessings collateral, in glorious troops and gorgeous companies which no man can number, are come, and are ever coming, to us in the train of the Gospel, that Gospel itself utters in all ears one message. Its first thought, its last thought, its great thought, the quintessence of the gladness of its tidings to the children of men is always and every where just only this: Jesus Christ came into this world to save sinners. The dark benighted pagan, on earth's most distant and loneliest shore, who catches, from afar, the faintest resonance of that single sound, gathers from it a gospel which is able to make him wise unto salvation; while the courtly scholar who, among the echoes of great voices out of the past, and whatsoever lore from the philosophies and theologies of the present, misses that, must go down to his grave, though he lie among kings and honorable men, and amid the tears of a nation, without God and without hope.

Christ evermore watches the earth with this great thought still in mind. He can not forget Gethsemane, Calvary. He can not forget the bitterness which he endured for men. The travail of his soul is not satisfied. It will not be, it can not be, until every man has been told that Christ died for him; has been besought by some human voice in Christ's stead, to be reconciled to God.

2. In the act of conversion, the Christian receives and enters into Christ's idea and spirit, so as, in a sense, to take Christ's place on earth. This is the immediate result of his change of heart. What is changed in his heart, is his old supreme love of self, which is removed, so that a supreme love of God may take its place. So changed, he becomes just like Christ in the feeling of love to God, and of desire that God's will may be done on earth as it is in heaven. becomes like Christ in love of holiness and hatred of sin. Moreover, in feeling that his great burden of sin is lifted, and his great danger of eternal death removed, and that the gates of everlasting righteousness have been thrown open before his erring, but now repentant feet, and that all this is come to him in consequence of the amazing love and long suffering of God in Christ, he is bound to Christ with cords of gratitude, as well as sympathy, that make it impossible for him not to enter into his thoughts of love for man, and be animated by all his purposes of blessing. "If any man have not the spirit of Christ, he is none of his," because he can not be his without being animated by his spirit, and constantly endeavoring to aid him in all his plans for a world lying in wickedness. The laws of mind put an everlasting veto upon any other conclusion.

3. But if the Christian, in the very act of becoming a Christian, becomes transformed into the image of Christ, and enters into vital sympathy with him; then the great purpose of Christ's life will become the great purpose of his, and the central and controlling thought of his Christianity will be that of helping Christ to overcome the world. If he truly and entirely loves Christ, he will love most that which Christ loves most; if he devotes his life to the imitation and aid of Christ, he will aim most earnestly to accomplish that which Christ most earnestly desires. And as Christ gave himself wholly to the labor of procuring human salvation, and destroying the works of the devil, he will do so too. He will enter into the spirit of Christ's words when he declared that the man who does not hate his father and mother, and wife and children, and brethren and sisters, yea and his own life also, can not be his disciple; that he that taketh not his cross and followeth after him, is not worthy of him;

Thus coming into active sympathy with Christ in his work of salvation, the Christian naturally begins to hold toward the world a relation which is rightly represented by the "salt of the earth"—antidoting its tendency to moral putrefaction; by the "leaven which a woman took and hid in three measures of meal until the whole be leavened"—diffusing from its every particle a contagious influence that will not return nor cease until it ferments the entire mass in contact with it; by the "candle set upon a candlestick," giving light unto all that are in the house. Just so surely as, by the common laws of human nature, the great governing love of the heart will subjugate the whole man to its control, and apply the entire machinery of the humanity to the enforcement of its behests, and the accomplishment of its desires, so surely will the real Christian, in whose heart Christ is found the hope of glory, centralize all his faculties around that purpose which animates the hopes of Christ, and devote himself to the work of overcoming the world—warning every man and teaching every man in all wisdom, that he may present every man perfect in Christ Jesus, striving

All this is twofold. The work of overcoming the world is, for each Christian, of necessity, divided into the work of overcoming the world within and the world without. Overcoming the world within—the remaining passions and lusts of the flesh—is growth in grace, is personal piety, is becoming perfect as our Father in heaven is perfect. Overcoming the world without is preaching the Gospel to every creature; is the missionary work, first Home, then Foreign. Therefore these two works, that of personal piety and of Missions, are just the two equal branches of the same root. Neither is any less or more inevitable, as a matter of principle, than the other. Neither is any less or more involved than the other, in the very root and fatness of the essential vitality of christian life. There is no separating them so as to estimate the one as above the other. It would be as absurd to attempt to honor the right lobe of the lungs above the left, or the left auricle and ventricle of the heart above the right, as to say that one of these developments of christian activity is any more needful to the healthy movement of evangelic life than the other. They are one in the principle and feeling out of which they grow; and they so act and react upon each other that neither can complete itself without the other. The real Christian finds himself. in his own measure and place, just as imperatively drawn and driven to that feeling which led Paul to say, "Necessity is laid upon me, yea wo is unto me if I preach not the Gospel," and which compelled Peter and John, after the good deed done to the impotent man, to reply to the veto which the Jewish authorities would put upon their further speech for Christ, "We can not but speak the things which we have seen and heard:" as he is bound to say, with Joseph, when tempted to transgression, "How then can I do this great wickedness and sin against God," as he is bound calmly and eternally to follow the dictate of the grace which bringeth salvation, "teaching us that, denying ungodliness, and worldly lusts, we should live soberly, righteously, and godly in this present

The moment one becomes a regenerate child of God, that moment he enters into the Lord's prayer, and its brief formula becomes instinct with life to him. He understands it now. He can not help breathing it forth in tremulous yet jubilant syllables. It so covers all the length and breadth and depth of his new necessities, that he at once understands that the same divine Being who has created him unto newness of life, made that prayer to be the epitome of the desires of that life. But as he commits his soul to its petitions he finds them bearing him outward toward his fellows, as well as upward toward Jehovah. "Our Father;" "give us this day our daily bread;" "lead us not into temptatation, but deliver us from evil;" here he finds himself led into the expression of desires that are as broad as the race, that can not be satisfied until all the children of earth also say, "our Father." Nor can he beg that God's will "may be done on earth as it is in heaven," without some kindling of a missionary spirit; while no where in the prayer, or out of it, is he informed that the forthgoing and converting element of the christian life is any less needful to the integrity of the soul before God, than the interior and self-sanctifying element. Nor is there any thing in christian experience to suggest this. How true a type of genuine piety was the history of that converted slave who, when his master upbraided him for leaving his fiddle for the active labors of Methodism, replied: "Oh! master, what is good for my soul might be good for every body's soul; and Christ died for all, and oh! he wants all, and mustn't I help him?" And how touching is the record of that other field hand, poor and with a wooden leg, who, when the pastor of his church was calling over the names of the faithful, to find how much each would give to the missionary work, hobbled up to the desk and laid down one package folded in a bit of soiled paper for himself and another for his wife, and another for his children—$15.00 in all—and when his pastor said, "I didn't ask for the money now," replied: "Ah! massa, take it now. God's work must be done, and I may be dead by and by, when the time comes to pay."

How significant, also, was Christ's threefold command to that disciple whose trembling return he desired to quicken into an eternal assurance of faith:

"Lovest thou me? Then—if thou wouldst prove thy love, and furnish everlasting evidence of the reality of thy professed new consecration—feed my lambs, feed, feed my sheep." The Church also, in the midst of all her faltering and blundering, has never failed to recognize the superior beauty of the life of those in her ranks who have most felt the pressure of missionary duty, and who have even almost forgotten the claims of their own souls upon themselves in their intense appreciation of the claims of others—like the soldier whom Napoleon saw at Eylau hurrying on to the charge with the bleeding stump of his left arm, from which a shell had just torn the fore-arm and hand. "Stay, my good fellow; go to the ambulance and get your wound dressed," said the Emperor. "I will," replied the grenadier, "so soon as we have taken that church!" The work of Missions, Home and Foreign, then, has just as close and vital relation to our individual acceptance before God, as the work of personal holiness. We are not to ask: "Can we afford to give labor and money to convert others?" any more than we are to ask: "Can we afford to be holy?" We are bound to do both; yet the one no more really than the other. Our love to Christ as a personal Saviour, binds us to do both; yet the one no more than the other. Personal piety is no more really the natural subjective than Missions are the inevitable objective fruit of Christianity. That the Church understand and feel this, is the great necessity for the conversion of our land and the world. Nobody doubts that there are Christians enough in the world now to convert it all to Christ, if each would but comprehend that his personal acceptance before God hangs as really on his outward labor as on his inward states of feeling. If each man in this audience went home and set his own house thoroughly on fire, New York would be burned up clean before morning, the Fire Department to the contrary notwithstanding. So if these men and women here who love Christ, will but go home and set their hearts thoroughly on fire with missionary zeal, a holy conflagration would be kindled that no earthly power could quench. If each would be a Home Missionary to his own house and neighborhood, and a Foreign Missionary (by alms) to the destitute elsewhere, the Millennium would begin here and now. And if the Church could be made to look upon Missions as a necessity, and not as a luxury of her life, children now living should see the farthest deserts rejoice and bloom as the rose.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Death of Hon. Benjamin F. Butler.

The friends of this Society have already been apprised of the decease of the Hon. Benjamin F. Butler, LL.D., of this city, which occurred at Paris, on the 8th of November, 1858; and the journals of the day have paid their tribute to his eminent services and worth. We allude to the event, to express our sense of the bereavement which this Institution has experienced, and to record a fact, showing his deep and long continued interest in its operations. He was one of its earliest and most liberal patrons, and for thirty years has been a most valuable counselor, an earnest advocate, and a steadfast friend. In 1832 he was elected one of its Board of Directors, and for the last twenty four years has been one of its Vice Presidents, presiding frequently at its Anniversaries, and contributing the aid of his polished eloquence, in the enforcement of its claims.

In 1832, while engaged in the practice of law at Albany, he addressed to the Secretary the following letter, which we commend to the attention of our readers, on account of the noble project it announces, and the christian spirit it

"My Dear Sir:-From your last Report it appears, that the average expense of maintaining the missionaries in your employ, so far as it devolves on your Society, is a little more than $100 per annum. It is probable that it will not, in any year, exceed $150. Under this impression, I take pleasure in proposing to defray, during the present year, the expense of one of the laborers to be employed by you; and I inclose my check for one hundred dollars, to be applied to this purpose. The balance shall be paid at your next anniversary, on ascertaining the average sum. And I desire to be considered as engaging to continue this contribution, so long as Providence shall enable me to do so without injustice to my family or others; subject, however, to the further qualification, that your Society shall faithfully adhere (which I doubt not they will) to the evangelical and catholic principles which have thus far distinguished their operations. I can not sufficiently express to you the happiness I feel in the belief, that I shall thus be enabled, through the medium of your Society, to fulfill the duty of preaching the Gospel to my fellow men. To the guidance and blessing of God, I fervently commend, not only the missionary who may be employed by this contribution, but all the laborers in the service of your Society. May they be men of sound principles and exemplary piety—thoroughly qualified for all their important duties-full of faith, and wisdom, and enlightened zeal!

"May they be kept from all strife and contention, from all improper interference with political or other extraneous concerns; from ambition and intolerance; and from every thing, in a word, that is repugnant to the spirit, or the precepts, or the example of their Master! And may the Spirit of truth direct, and accompany, and bless all their ministrations; and thus secure to them, both here and hereafter, the joy and the crown of those who 'turn many to righteousness,' and who shall 'shine as stars in the firmament forever.'

"I am, dear sir, with sincere and affectionate regard, your friend and other.

B. F. BUTLER." brother.

This pledge has been faithfully redeemed, during the past twenty six years. Amid the engrossing cares of his profession, in the bustle and excitement of political life, at his post in the Cabinet of the National Government, he has not forgotten his purpose, "through the medium of this Society, to preach the Gospel to his fellow men." Nor has he required to be reminded of his pledge, but regularly, twice a year, he has called and laid his check on the Treasurer's desk.

He rests from his labors, and his works do follow him. The fountain of living water, which he has opened in the wilderness, will flow on, in ever widening streams, through all the future; while he has gone to receive, what he invoked upon the missionary laborers he employed, "the joy and the crown of those who turn many to righteousness." On whose shoulders will his mantle fall?

... The Future of our Country.

At a low estimate, the present territory of the United States is able to sustain 300,000,000 of inhabitants, and it would not be extravagant to rate its ability as high as 500,000,000.

> With the density of Russia, we should have 80,000,000. New England, " 123,000,000.
> Middle States, " 170,000,000.
> France, " 500,000,000 66 66 66 64 500,000,000. France, . .. 4.6 660,000,000. Britain, " 1,150,000,000. Belgium,

With a rate of increase decidedly inferior to that of the ten years ending in 1850, we should number, in 1900, 110,000,000; and with the lowest rate of in-

It is altogether probable that, if the country succeeds in maintaining the purity of its political institutions, in one hundred years its population will number more than 250,000,000; and the child is born who shall read the reports of the census which shall sum up that aggregate, while grandchildren of those now entering upon the duties of citizens, shall then be in the maturity of their powers, and occupying the most responsible stations in the gift of a nation nearly ten times as numerous as our own is now.

But what changes, within that hundred years, must have come upon the places with which we are familiar. New England will have been compacted of large towns and villages, and the sound of her factories and her church bells will mingle from end to end, and from the lake to the ocean. Every torrent of her mountains, and the very tides of her marshy shores, will have been disciplined to carry her machinery. She will be one close-knit body of living intelect and force, pouring forth her emigrants, still, to newer territories, and, with the arms of her commerce, and with her moral influence, taking hold on the ends of the earth.

And the great West! Those silent prairies, those far-reaching streams, those broad lakes, those princely lawns and parks, those primeval woods, those innumerable herds and flocks, those endless railroads, those countless steamers, those multiplying factories, those villages—the growth of a night—those cities—built in a year—those armies of emigrants, those toiling teachers and missionaries! What is the meaning of all these things, and what do they say to us? The onward march of that wonderful land is one of the most solemn and affecting sights that the world can show. What shall the end be? Who will feel the pulse that is to beat from the spring of the life that is taking to itself body and form, now, measure its energy, and prognosticate its courses?

But the mountains are crossed! The Pacific gleams in the horizon; the plains behind, once barren, are a watered garden; the furrowed slopes before are still ploughed for gold; harvests wave in all those valleys; a new world has been created along the shores of the Western ocean; a new commerce vexes those "peaceful" seas; new thoughts invade the slumber of nations beyond; new visions rise upon the souls of hoping millions. The world is encircled with strong bands. Each ship that comes to Atlantic or Pacific shores, brings with it a thread that helps to bind some other nation to this, and which vibrates with ceaseless, mutual influences. A network of correspondence has been woven. Teachers and ministers, the Bible and books of human lore, have found a home in every cline. Example is contagious, and nations have caught new flames. Words uttered in the center of this continent, find an echo in Australia and China. The Word of God "has free course," and His kingdom whose right it is to reign, is coming with power!

BUT THESE GLORIOUS RESULTS WILL NOT BE REACHED, UNLESS OUR COUNTRY BE THOROUGHLY EVANGELIZED.

Our industrial, commercial, and political growth is founded on our spiritual progress. Temporal prosperity can not be permanent among an immoral people; and morality is only religion in practice. Good rulers will not be elected by an irreligious nation; and bad rulers will neither make wise laws nor execute any laws justly. No lasting empire can be built upon wickedness. Self-interest will not hold people together. It is a solvent, not a cement. Jesus Christ is the rock around which these shifting sands must gather. this storms will beat in vain; and all waves and commotions in the world's broad sea, will but serve to drive wanderers to this haven, and to accumulate here the fragments of weaker empires, broken off by tempests of revolution, or worn away by the ceaseless inclemencies of oppression. Let the spirit of Jesus Christ rule in the heart of this people, and become the immutable center and the controlling element of its character, and it will constitute an adequate basis for any possible increase, and will secure the happiest and completest rounding out of all that a nation should be or do. The nation that builds on God rises on eternal foundations. The nation whose end is in God, has laid hold on an immortal destiny. The nation that seeks first the kingdom of heaven, shall find that all other things are added to it.
